500,000 British Ready for Nazis In Middle East

Lloyd George's Demands for 'Real War Cabinet' Are Overriden

By the Associated Press

London, May 7.—Warned in the anxious tones of David Lloyd George that America's war help is yet infinitely too little to beat Germany, the British House of Commons today gave Prime Minister Winston Churchill a new mandate to carry on with a confidense vote of 447 to 3.

For nearly 2½ hours the white-maned world war premier and the prime minister of this war engaged in a sober oratorical duel. It was the end of a two-day debate, a totaling up of Britain's newest reverses and a summation of her determination and hopes, and it left Churchill to all appearances unshaken before Parliament and country.

He walked from the crowded house in the midst of a rousing and rare demonstration.

Churchill's speech in the main was a pledge that Britain will "fight to the death, without thought of retirement," on the besieged Greek island of Crete and in the beleaguered Libyan port of Tobruk, announcement that nearly 500,000 British and imperial soldiers now are in the Middle East to block the Axis, and the disclosure that America has promised enough new ships to help Britain through 1942 in the Battle of the Atlantic.

Churchill admitted, in answer to Lloyd George, that Britain needed much more naval help from America, but he added:

"I expect we shall get a good deal more help in many ways."

"We Have No Need to Fear"

"When a mighty democracy of 130,000,000 gets on the move," he said, "one can only wait for full development of those vast psychological manifestations and their translation into physical means.

He concluded:

". . . I feel sure we have no need to fear the tempest. Let it roar, let it rage! We shall come through."

It was toward the Battle of the Atlantic that Lloyd George directed his warning.

"I thank God," he said, "for Secretary of War Stimson's speech Tuesday night suggesting that United States naval forces be used to protect shipments to Britain.

"It is clear from the changed attitude of President Roosevelt and especially from the remarkable speech of Mr. Stimson . . . that they realize how grave the position is . . ."

Sees Threat in Japan

But, he went on, his experience has taught him that American war organization is "full of disappointments."

"In the last war America put their fleet in the Atlantic, every boat, while Japan was guaranteeing the Pacific. What is Japan guaranteeing now? She is guaranteeing that she will take advantage of the first opportunity to wrest domination of the Pacific from America!"

The old Welshman demanded "a real war cabinet," an end to Governmental blunders, an intensified effort for food production and better manned and equipped factories.

Churchill rebuked Lloyd George for his speech—one which, he said, "is not the sort of a speech one would have expected from a great war leader of former days who was accustomed to brush aside despondency and push onward to a distant goal . . ."

He reviewed the Balkan defeats, recalling that Adolf Hitler had said it was a crime for Britain to send help to Greece against the overwhelming strength of "no fewer than 40 divisions."

He and all the cabinet, Churchill went on, would do the same thing again, even with the knowledge they possess today.

Churchill went into the Axis advance across Libya, and the rapid retreat of the British to Tobruk after the single British armored brigade on the advanced frontier had been "defeated, dispersed and largely destroyed."

"Technical Mistake" in Libya

He acknowledged the German armored force in Libya was not much larger than the British; that "technical mistakes and mischances occurred," that the British armored force was disorganized without much fighting.

But now, he contended, "we are lying back on our fertile delta which, incidentally, is the worst ground in the world for armored vehicles."

Churchill acknowledged that the loss of the Nile Valley, the Suez Canal and the mid-Mediterranean island base of Malta would be among the heaviest blows Britain could sustain.

Churchill charged the Iraq coup of the Rashid Ali Al Gailani had the object of getting everything ready for the Germans, and suggested it was timed too early.

However, he asknowledged, "it might be that the Germans will arrive in Iraq before we have crushed the revolt . . ."

At one point Churchill sharply rebuked the former war secretary, Leslie Hore-Belisha, for criticizing the government for a shortage of tanks.

On the final vote the only "Noes" were from the lone Communist member of the House, William Gallacher, and the extreme Left Wingers Denis Pritt and Dr. Arthur Salter.

British Gain Upper Hand; Iraqis Retreat

By the Associated Press

Cairo, May 7.—British troops and the Royal Air Force were declared officially tonight to have dealt crushing blows to the Iraqi forces of Premier Rashid Ali Al Gailani, and military quarters expressed belief that the conflict was near an end because Germany sent him no aid.

British airmen systematically destroyed most of the Iraqi air force, ground troops regained control of a pumping station near Rutba on the vital Mosul-Haifa oil pipeline, and the Iraq siege of the R. A. F. base at Lake Habbaniyah was broken.

Howitzers and cannoneers flown by plane from Basra, near the Persian Gulf, helped the Habbaniyah garrison and Iraqi troops fighting with the British to rout the Iraqis holding dominating plateau positions around the airdrome yesterday.

Heavy losses were inflicted by a closely coordinated British ground and air attack, the British said, and more than 300 Iraqis were captured.

The shattered forces retreated eastward toward Al Falluja, across the Euphrates River in the direction of Bagdad, the capital.

Prime Minister Churchill told Commons in London that approximately 1,000 Iraquis had been killed or wounded, and that 434, including 26 officers, were captured. British losses were officially described as negligible.

Dispatches from Beirut, Lebanon, said that Iraqi war fervor apparently was subsiding and that Bagdad circles were seeking to lay the blame for the struggle on a "misunderstanding" over treaty rights of the British and Iraquis.

Military quarters here said no German planes or troops had yet appeared in Iraq, and they said it was difficult to see how the Nazis could get there in time to render effective assistance.

Renewed R. A. F. attacks on the Mosscar Al Rashid airdrome destroyed several planes, a British communique said.

Plant Turns Out First 105-Mm. Howitzer in U. S.

Milwaukee, May 7 (AP).—The first 105 mm. howitzer ever turned out by private industry in the United States emerged today from the factory of the Vilter Manufacturing Co., producer of such prosaic articles as refrigerators and ice-making machinery.

The gun, which was an eight-foot, 1,200-pound barrel, was the first of 500 the company is to produce under a $1,073,000 Government contract. It is capable of hurling a 33-pound shell 12,000 yards, with a high trajectory which will lob it over hills.

British Bag 21 Nazi Planes, Dover Intensely Shelled

London, May 7—Daylight air battles off the coasts of ngland, reminiscent of the great combats of last autumn, were followed up at sunset tonight by an intense and deadly bombardment of the Dover area by German artillery in France.

A Messerschmitt plane serving as spotter for the Nazi 30-mile guns was reported shot down into the sea, bringing to 21 the 24-hour toll of German planes announced by the British against seven losses of their own.

In the German cannonading, two women were killed, and at lehst 12 persons wounded, including a naval officer who was seriously hurt when his car was set afire. British bombers and fighters sped immediately eastward, apparently to blast the Nazi gun emplacements.

The air battles started late Tuesday, when the British brought down four Nazi fighter planes, and continued throughout the night and today in a stern give-and-take of bombs, air cannon and machine-guns.

While German bombers concentrated on assaults on the Glasgow and Liverpool areas and other cities in northeast and southwest England, the British smashed at oft-raided Hamburg, at Kiel and Le Havre and at German shipping.

R. A. F. night fighters said they knocked down eight Nazi bombers over Britain while antiaircraft got another.

On their own offensive, the British said they set large fires at Hamburg, pounded the wharves elsewhere, and destroyed a 5,000-ton German ship off the Frisian Islands, losing in all five planes, but saving three pilots.

The Germans circled over the southeast coast and the Thames Estuary today and were heavily engaged by the British patrols, who reported downing seven of them. Two British fighters were shot down.

Editor's Death Clews Found By Detectives

Letter and Package Of Perfume Linked To Simon's Murder

Efforts by detectives to solve the brutal slaying of Dr. Heinrich S. Simon, 61, distinguished German refugee, yesterday brought about the following developments:

1. Finding of a letter written in German and addressed, "Dear Doctor" with a sachet package at Eighteenth and Riggs Streets Northwest.

2. Search for two well-dressed men and a "two-tone sedan" said to have followed the cab driver who drove Dr. Simon home at 2 a. m. Tuesday.

3. Further questioning of James Proudfoot, 25, of 1136 Abbey Place Northeast, the cab driver.

4. Questioning of an Arlington, Va., shoemaker who notified authorities that Dr. Simon was at his home Monday giving a music lesson to his daughter.

5. Posting of a $200 reward by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, chief of police.

Believed to be the best clew yet uncovered, the letter in German with the package of sachet were turned over to Detective Sergt. Jeremiah Flaherty about 2:30 p. m. yesterday by Capt. Walter Storm, of the Third Precinct.

Both articles were found at Eighteenth and Riggs Streets Northwest by Privates M. C. Barco and T. Fason, Third Precinct, who were searching the neighborhood for Dr. Simon's hat, glasses and billfold. It was being translated last night. No envelope was found.

Investigators said that Riggs Street was "a little dark street" such as was mentioned by Dr. Simon on his deathbed.

The location at which the letter and packet of perfume was found is within two blocks of Seventeenth and Church Streets, where the dying man hailed Proudfoot's taxicab early Tuesday.

Search for the "two-tone sedan" and the two men was instituted after Proudfoot said the car followed his taxicab to Dr. Simon's residence, 1816 New Hampshire Avenue Northwest.

The hacker said he was hailed by the prominent musicologist at Seventeenth and Church Street where the latter was leaning against a tree in a dazed condition.

Man's Body Found In Tidal Basin

The body of a man identified as John M. Mazewski, of Nuangola, Pa., was found floating in the Tidal Basin yesterday.

Harbor Policemen E. K. Shelton, R. L. Becker and L. Baliles recovered the body at the foot of Seventeenth Street Northwest.

The man's name was on a social security card and Army discharge paper. The condition of the body and the fact that the man was wearing an overcoat led investigators to believe he was drowned in the winter.

Capt. Young Dies At Camp Meade

Fort George G. Meade, Md., May 7 (AP).—Capt. Edgar M. Young, commander of Battery C, 111th Field Artillery, died in the Cantonment Hospital today of pneumonia, Twenty-ninth Division headquarters announced. He was 31.

Capt. Young, from Portsmouth, Va., was a graduate of Virginia Military Institute. He became a second lieutenant in the National Guard in June, 1926, and was promoted to first lieutenant in May, 1935.

Detroit, May 7.—The Tigers raised aloft their American League pennant at 3 p. m. this afternoon and then Sid Hudson took charge of the day's affairs in Briggs Stadium. He unloaded a six-hit pitching job against the Tigers, broke their five-game winning streak, and lifted the Nats to a 4-2 victory.

At the outset, it was all very disarming for the Tigers. Hudson walked three of the first five batters to face him and the 6,257 in the stands visioned a happy afternoon, but the unreliable Hudson changed his tactics. He didn't walk another batter during the game, and held the Tigers hitless in six of the nine innings. He struck out a half dozen.

Played Without Greenberg

He outlasted Schoolboy Rowe and two other Detroit pitchers. Rowe was withdrawn by the Tigers when the need arose for a pinch hitter in the fifth inning after the Nats had taken a 3-0 lead. Big Rowe had given up eight of the Nats' ten hits of the day.

The Tigers, playing their first game without Hank Greenberg who early this morning became Private Greenberg, United States Army, sort of missed the big fellow. His

House Approves $173,749,630 for Defense Housing

With little debate, the House passed and sent tothe Senate yesterday a $173,749,630 bill primarily for construction of permanent housing facilities for defense workers.

The total was the same recommended by the Appropriations Committee.

A State Department request for $241,000 for expansion of its visa division to obtain a closer check on persons entering the United States won committee approval, its report saying:

"The Department has information regarding the known activities of certain foreign governments in endeavoring to introduce agents into the United States in the guise of visitors, immigrants, or seamen and believes that it is highly desirable in the interest of our national defense to centralize all alien visa control as soon as possible."

Attorney-General Staples Has No Opponent in Race

Richmond, Va., May 7 (AP).—With the deadline for filing tonight only a few hours away, it appeared that Abram P. Staples, of Roanoke, the incumbent attorney general, would be unopposed in the August 5 Democratic primary.

Three candidates have qualified to make the race for Governor and two fro lieutenant governor, apparently closing the short ballot lists.

Colgate W. Darden, of Norfolk, who resigned from Congress to make the race; State Senator Vivian L. Page, defeated by Gov. Price four years ago, and State Senator Hunsdon Cary, of Henrico, are the gubernatorial candidates.

State Senator William M. Tuck, of South Boston, and Moss A. Plunkett, Roanoke attorney, will compete for the post of lieutenant governor, which has been vacant since the death of Saxon W. Holt, of Newport News.

Haltal Beats Mioland by Head In $20,000 'Cap at Pimlico

By Walter Haight
A Staff Correspondent

Pimlico, Md., May 7.—In a race as rough as the blade of a hacksaw, the Woodvale Farm's Haltal took a head decision from C. S. Howard's Mioland. The driving finish came at the end of the $20,000 Dixie Handicap witnessed by 15,000 fans as the Maryland Jockey Club began its "four golden days," to be climaxed by the Preakness on Saturday. A length behind the fight for first money came Arnold Hagner's Dit, a neck in front of the Greentree Stable's Corydon.

Despite the fact that he carried top weight of 129 pounds and was buffeted about several times, Mioland made a game effort to take it all but missed by the margin of 1 foot. There was bumping galore in the race but no claims of foul were made. Among others, Mrs. A. J. Abel's Honey Cloud was shut off so abruptly that he almost fell

OPM to Force Firms to Sublet Jobs for Speed

Clause to Be Put In Contracts; 160-Hour Work Week Planned

Defense authorities, determined to obtain further subcontracting of armament orders, will write into new defense contracts the specific provisions forcing the subletting of a certain percentage of the work, Sidney Hillman, associated director general of the Office of Production Management, disclosed yesterday.

He also revealed that the OPM, in conjunction with industrial leaders and committees of the American Federation of Labor and Congress for Industrial Organization, is laying plans for four-shift operation of key defense plants to secure 160 hours of consecutive operations out of the 168-hour week.

Hillman implied at his press conference thot the two-fold drive was the beginning of the OPM's efforts to comply with President Roosevelt's request on Monday for 24-hour-a-day seven-day-a-week production.

He explained that he thought subcontracting could be expanded to include every small plant capable of taking any part in the defense program without specifically demanding it in armament contracts. He added, however, that there was still a "good percentage" of uallfied plants not participating in the program and indicated that if they were not included there might have to be "some changes" in the contracts.

Each to Work 40 Hours a Week

The four-shift basis, he explained, would give each worker 40 hours of labor a week. Schedules would be rotated so that each man would work a different shift each week during a four-week cycle. Any bonuses accruing from Saturday and Sunday work, under collective bargaining agreements, would be shared by all employes, he said.

He declared that the OPM's labor advisory committee would work to install the system first in a limited number of plants, but hoped to expand its use widely.

Curran, 3 Judges Called to Testify At Burko Trial

The names of District Attorney Edward M. Curran and Police Judges John P. McMahon, Hobart Newman and Walter J. Casey were flung back and forth in the District Court yesterday amid charges of a conspiracy.

All four were scheduled to be called to the witness stand today in the trial of Joseph R. Burko, once Newman's clerk in Traffic Court, who is accused of conspiring to collect fines and keep the money himself. Burko claimed yesterday that he was innocent and accused Curran and Casey of plotting against him.

Summoned by Assistant District Attorney Allen J. Krouse was Edward (Dutch) Dietch, immediately after a Government witness pointed Dietch out as the man who "talked" to him about the case Monday. Dietch was described as Burko's partner in a restaurant business.

Police Court Clerk Walter F. Bramhall and Probation Officer Joseph M. Sanford were the first witnesses called against Burko.

Revocation Is Upheld

2 Nazi Agents Arrested; 160 Sailors Seized

BULLETIN
Attorney General Jackson announced yesterday that Manfred Zapp and Guenther Tonn, German citizens under indictment for failure to register as foreign agents in connection with the operation of Transocean, a Nazi news agency, had been arrested and were being held without bail on deportation charges.

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

The United States last night prepared to throw more than 600 Axis seamen into interment camps, following the swift arrest of 160 German sailors yesterday on immigration charges.

Federal operatives, acting on Justice Department orders, rounded up German mariners in sudden predawn raids in cities throughout the country, concentrating many of the aliens at Ellis Island.

At the same time, 125 Italian sailors rounded up in New York were en route to a camp at Missoula, Mont., where they would be joined later by 400 more Italians, now at Ellis Island. Germans who are being seized will be sent to an internment camp in New Mexico. It was indicated, where the crew of the scuttled Nazi vessel, Columbus, is now detained.

Attorney General Jackson, meanwhile, warned a meeting of the American Judicature Society here of a "nonmilitary invasion" by Nazi fifth columnists.

Jackson Asks More Power

The Attorney General, asserting that there are more than 6,000 deportable aliens "free" inside United States borders who cannot be sent back home under present conditions, called for larger authority to deal with the "danger within the gates."

Jackson urged legislation to detain deportable aliens, to prevent arrested foreign agents from gaining freedom by posting bail, to permit wire-tapping to combat sabotage and for denial of the mails and other restrictions to foreign propogandists.

The 160 Germans who were seized were accused specifically of overstaying their leaves in this country. The majority of arrests were made in New York, but sailors were also picked up in Chicago, Minneapolis, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Newark, Jersey City and other places.

The unheralded official action was in line with new regulations governing the admission and deportation of alien seamen, made public yesterday by the Justice Department.

5th Column Activities Feared

The amended regulations decreed that alien seamen may stay in port a maximum of 30 days, whereas they formerly were permitted to stay 60 days. If they overstay their leave without permission they are subject to arrest and deportation.

In New York, District Director of Immigration Buron Uhl announced that the Government had no evidence that the German seamen had engaged in "propaganda or anything like that" but hazarded a "guess" that the arrests might be precautionary against fifth column activities.

A majority of the German sailors were members of crews of tankers of the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, who were placed under the jurisdiction of the Justice Department's Immigration Bureau when, at the start of the war, the tankers were transferred to Panamanian registry.

Deportation proceedings are pending against them, but officials have already indicated they see no way of returning the sailors tot heir homeland and will undoubtedly have to intern them.

The 125 Italians who were sent tot he Montana camp were skilled craftsmen who were to prepare quarters for the 400 remaining Italians.

Final Effort to Bar Transfer of Axis Vessels to Britain Is Overwhelmed

By Hedley Donovan
Post Staff Writer

The House yesterday approved seizure of foreign ships in American harbors by a 266-120 vote and cleared the way for Senate debate on the Bland bill and the convoy issue.

While Administration forces in the House were overwhelming a final effort to bar transfer to Britain of Axis ships in American harbors, the day brought a series of significant developments in Washington's "Battle of the Atlantic:"

1. Senator Vandenberg (Republican) of Michigan, made public a letter from Rear Admiral Emory S. Land, Maritime Commission chairman, disclosing that "only a very small proportion" of vesels leaving the United States for Britain were sunk in the first three months of 1941.

2. Secretary of the Navy Knox, asked whether the Navy is ready to protect war shipments to Britain to the extent suggested by Secretary of War Stimson Tuesday night, told reporters, "The Fleet is always ready and is readier now than ever."

3. Senator Bailey (Democrat), of North Carolina, chairman of the Commerce Committee which may act today on the Bland bill, asked the Maritime Commission to supply his committee with complete figures on British and American tonnage today and at the start of the war, on shipping losses and new construction and on the rate of sinkings since March 1.

4. Viscount Halifax, British Ambassador, talking to correspondents after a conference with Secretary of State Hull, said the British shipping position is "urgent" and "calls for all possible action."

Eight of 205 Ships Lost

The Maritime Commission figures disclosed by Vandenberg appeared certain yesterday to figure prominently in the coming Senate debate on convoys.

Land stated that only 8 out of 205 vessels clearing from the United States for Britain between December 30 and March 31 had been sunk.

Out of 158 vessels sunk in all parts of the world between January 1 and April 30, with a gross tonnage totaling 781,914 tons, only 12, totaling 66,782 tons, cleared from United States ports, Land reported.

Cargo reports, available for 10 of the 12 ships sunk en route from this country to Europe, show that they were carrying a wire variety of materials, including canned soup and jrunes, as well as chemicals and airplane engines, according to the Maritime Commission chief.

Convoy opponents immediately seized on Lond's letter as proof that the British shipping position is less serious than represented by advocates of American naval protection for war shipments to Britain.

Losses Colored, Walsh Says

Senator Taft (Republican), of Ohio, said he was "not surprised" at Land's figures and that a current rumor that 40 per cent of America's shipments to England are being sunk is "silly."

"This shows how information on shipping losses has been colored to make them appear more serious than they are," said Senator Walsh (Democrat), of Massachusetts, isolationist chairman of the Naval Affairs Committee.

$5,580,000 Plan For Recreation Indorsed Here

A $5,580,700 plan to make Washington one of the foremost, if not the leading recreational city in the United States, was indorsed by the Board of Education yesterday. The proposal will be submitted to the District Commissioners shortly, it was said in a request for two $500,000 priority appropriations.

The project, approved by the National Capital Park and Planning Commission March 20, will be presented as a 5-to-10-year program.

It calls for establishment of two all-year community swimming pools; improvement of 36 recreation centers and playgrounds at a cost of $3,428,700; expansion of two golf cuorses; additional bridle, pedestrian and bicyle trails in parks, and other supplemental improvements.

The two priority requests of $500,000 each follow a program advocated by the President's Recreational Committee at a meeting April 8. If the funds are received construction will start at once, it was said at the meeting, on the most needed projects.

Senate Kills Bill Creating New Atlantic Airline

The Senate yesterday killed, by a vote of 44 to 35, a $1,216,000 appropriation for the establishment of a new transatlantic airline and expansion of the transatlantic service now provided by Pan American Airways.

The allotment approved 13 to 12 by the Senate Appropriations Committee, had been offered as an amendment to the $1,151,156,632 Treasury-Postoffice appropriation bill.

The proposed amendment would have permitted the establishment of a new New York-to-Lisbon service by American Export Airlines, a subsidiary of American Export Steamship Lines. The new company would have received approximately $800,000 and would have been permitted to make one trip a week, while funds also would have been provided for Pan American Airways to increase its transatlantic trips from three to four weekly.

Roosevelt Back On Job Tomorrow

President Roosevelt was "feeling better" yesterday after suffering from a stomach upset, the White House said, and was expected to be back at his desk tomorrow.

The Chief Executive cancelled all appointments except a meeting with Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York. What they discussed was not disclosed. Mr. Roosevelt was also expected to spend today resting in the White House before returning to his usual round of appointments and official duties.

Expected U. S. Moves Make Japan Uneasy

By the Associated Press

Tokyo, May 7.—The Japanese gave evidence today of increasing uneasiness over their relations with the United States.

Marked declines on the Tokyo Stock Exchange were attributed to reaction to Secretary of War Stimson's call for protection of shipments to Britain by United States naval forces.

Shipping circles discussed with evident anxiety unconfirmed rumors that the United States may close the Panama Canal to Japanese shipping within ten days.

Shares of shipping, iron, steel and munitions firms suffered most in the market decline, which did not extend to commodities such as rubber, cotton and wheat.

Shipping men said the Panama Canal rumors reached Tokyo from their agents in San Francisco.

(But no confirmation was forthcoming from Washington, the Canal Zone itself or even San rFancisco shipping authorities. Stephen Early, Presidential secretary, said, "I never heard of it.")

Despite the lack of verification, widespread concern over the reports was taken as evidence that important Japanese elements still feel that, despite the empire's ties with the Axis, peace with the United States and continuation of her transpecific trade are vital to Japan's well-being.

Md. Income Tax Receipts Exceed $5,000,000 Mark

Annapolis, Md., May 7 (AP).—State income tax receipts hit the $5,039,116 mark today, with 115,431 residents individuals paying $3,973,676 of this amount.

Officials at the State comptroller's office feel sure the receipts will reach the $6,500,000 goal. The $5,039,116 realized so far represents all the returns filed by April 15. The remaining $1,460,884 of the estimated total yield is expected to be collected by December 15, when the last income tax installment falls due.

In addition to the resident individuals, 2,756 corporations paid $989,658; 815 nonresident individuals, $24,915; 526 fiduciaries $56,680; 829 tax withheld at source returns, $10,132 and 86 amended returns, $4,053.

12 Students to Give All-Boy Recital

Seven piano students, three students of the psaltery and two students of the recorder will be among participants in an all-boy concert to be presented today at 9 a. m. at Sidwell Friends School, 3901 Wisconsin Avenue Northwest.

The program, arranged for the student body and friends of the school, is under direction of Miss Sade C. Styron, instructor in piano and psaltery, and Kenton Terry, instructor in recorder.

Among those participating will be Charles Brown, Chauncey Dewey, Donald Rogers, William Lodge, Thomas Carson, Keith Doty, Grant Spaeth, William Douglas, Robert Gallion, Robert Tate, Thomas Ottsenstein, Albert Dewey, Dan Cappel, Robin Esch and James Carey.

Letts Upholds Charges Against Three Communists

Indictments charging three Communist Party leaders with refusing to answer questions before the Dies Committee were upheld by Justice F. Dickinson Letts in the District Court yesterday. He ruled they must stand trial for contempt of the House.

However, Justice Letts ruled that agents of the committee unlawfully raided the Baltimore office of Dr. Albert Blumberg, secretary of the party for Maryland and the District. The files taken in the raid, which was on March 28, 1940, were ordered returned.

Accused beside Dr. Blumberg of defying the committee are Thomas F. P. O'Dea, president of the Massachusetts League of Massachusetts, and Philip Frankfeld, secretary of the New England Communist Party.

Two Groups Awarded National Safety Prize

The American Automobile Association announced yesterday that the National Safety Council and the Illinois Agricultural Association tied for first place in the 1940 contest for the best sound film on traffic safety.

The bronze sculptured award will be presented in duplicate to the National Safety Council for its film, "No Use Skidding," and to the Illinois Agricultural Association for "Dangerous Trails." It was offered through the Motion Picture Traffic Safety Committee. Judging was by representatives of leading national organizations in the traffic safety field.

Rev. Mr. Zearfoss Goes to Cleveland

Word reached here yesterday that the Rev. Robert N. Zearfoss, native Washingtonian and former member of Calvary Baptist Church, has been called to the pulpit of Lakewood Baptist Church, Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. Zearfoss, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Elmer Zearfoss, of Jefferson Park, Alexandria, Va., had served as assistant pastor of the Lakewood Church since September 15, 1939. He succeeds as pastor, Dr. Arthur S. Lewis, who resigned last January.

He was graduated from Wesleyan University, Middleton, Conn., in 1936, and from Colgate-Rochester Theological Seminary in 1939. He is 27 years old, married and has a 7-month-old daughter. The cleric's father is supervisor of manual training in District public schools.

Md. Board Rules Against Miners' Idle Aid Claim

Baltimore, May 7 (AP).—The April coal mine shut-down in Maryland constituted a labor dispute and miners who were idle during the shut-down are therefore not entitled to unemployment compensation, the State board of review ruled today.

In a two-to-one decision, the compensation board denied the claims of a number of union members employed by operators who are members of the George's Creek and Upper Potomac Coal Association.

The ruling in effect reversed a previous decision of the board, although the majority opinion held that the curernt case and the previous one were not parallel.

Joseph P. McCurdy dissented from the majority ruling, contending that the stoppage of work was due to the lack of a contract fixing wages and conditions of employment.

P. S. C. Hearing Set On Tri-County Plea

Baltimore, May 7 (AP).—The Public Service Commission today set May 21 as the date for a hearing on an application of the Southern Maryland Tri-County Cooperative Association, Inc., for extension of its lines in Prince George's, Charles and St. Mary's Counties.

In addition to the line extension, the cooperative seeks permission to borrow up to $50,000 on a promissory note, and to use $12,000 which it was previously authorized to borrow for the extensions.

Nazis Assert Stimson Plea Is War Threat

By the Associated Press

Berlin, May 7.—The German press tonight revived an old theme—"England will fall"—as the Wilhelmstrasse reiterated, "the consequences we have often talked about will follow attempts of the United States to come to her aid."

A spokesman said these "consequences" meant the repeated declarations by Adolf Hitler and his aides that any ship taking materials to England, whether convoyed or not, is considered fair prey for German submarines.

The suggestion by Secretary of War Stimson that the Navy be used to insure delivery of American materials to Britain was placed by Germans in the category with previous speeches by Secretaries Hull and Knox:

"Attempts of United States policy to involve that Nation in a war which Germans consider England already has practically lost."

Dienst Aus Deutschland, German commentary which is a frequent mirror of the official German attitude, asserted:

Stimson's declarations are considered to be a noteworthy contribution to the elucidation of White House policies and their tendencies."

The Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, terming Stimson's address "the third emanation of his master's voice," added:

"Significant is Stimson's effort to invoke the U-boat psychosis of the 1917 model."

Der Angriff, paper of Propaganda Minister Goebbels, declared the battle of the Atlantic had not yet reached its highest point and that "old tubs being brought out of ships' graveyards will be easier marks than ever."

Henri-Haye Remains Mayor of Versailles

Copyright by New York Times

Vichy, May 7.—Gaston Henri-Haye, the French Ambassador in Washington, remains Mayor of Versailles, according to an announcement in the Journal Officiel.

In recent months numerous changes have been made in French municipalities by order of the ministry of the interior. Henri-Haye has been Mayor of Versailles for many years and it is conceded on all hands that his administration has transformed the town into one of the cleanest and pleasantest in the country.

U. S. Halts Exports To Soviet of Tools Needed for Defense

By the Associated Press

The United States, it was learned authoritatively yesterday, has halted all exports to Russia of machinery or equipment which can be utilized in defense production.

The policy was adopted, it was said, despite strenuous Soviet diplomatic efforts to obtain the necessary export permits and despite the fact that some of the machines involved had been ordered and paid for by the Russians months ago.

Recent developments, however, were said to have made it inadvisable for the United States to permit the export of any machinery which can be used here in defense or British-aid production.

As evidence of that, informed quarters reported, the United States Government recently took over a considerable quantity of machinery—some of which had been paid for by Russia and was awaiting shipment—for use in construction of new air and naval bases in Panama, Puerto Rico and elsewhere in the Caribbean.

One reason for the scarcity of export licenses for Soviet Russia was said to be the signing of the Russo-Japanese neutrality pact, which Pravda, official mouthpiece of the Communist Party, described as a blow at American and British interests.

Cumberland's Water Measure Is Signed

Annapolis, Md., May 7 (AP).—Gov. O'Conor affixed his signature yesterday to legislation authorizing Cumberland to issue $500,000 in bonds for the construction of an auxiliary water line from Lake Gordon to Cumberland.

Two Garrett County measures received O'Connor's approval. One would empower the county commissioners to issue $250,000 in bonds for the construction of a new Oakland high school, subject to a referendum at the November, 1942, election.

The other directs the commissioner of motor vehicles to refuse to issue motor vehicle registration plates to motorists in Garrett County unless county and State taxes are paid.

Alumnae Elect Mrs. Purcell

Mrs. Richard Purcell was elected president of the Catholic University Alumnae Association Tuesday at the body's annual meeting in the home of Miss Winifred McNeil, 1355 Monroe Street Northeast.

She succeeds Dr. Regis Boyle, who was named to the executive committee with Miss Vivian Barr and Mrs. Mildred Crook-Bennert.

Other officers elected were Mrs. Frederick V. Murphy, vice president; Mrs. William Carrigan, secretary, and Miss Margaret Batchelder, treasurer.

Renovation Completed At Thurmont Church

Thurmont, Md., May 7.—The final step in a renovation program was reached recently at Our Lady of Mount Carmel Catholic Church here when a new pipe organ was installed. Stained memorial windows have been placed throughout the church, new carpets laid, the interior refrescoed and redecorated, the sanctuary and altar appointments repurnished, the woodwork restained and new lighting fixtures of Gothic design installed.

The parish celebrated its diamond jubilee in 1932. The Rev. Father Edward H. Roach, formerly assistant pastor of St. Matthew's Cathedral, Washington, is present rector.

Relief for Footsore Soldiers in Sight

Even though the Army is being highly mechanized, the foot soldier hereafter may receive more consideration than he did in World War days.

Senator Reynolds (Democrat), N. C., acting chairman of the Senate Military Affairs Committee, introduced Tuesday a bill to establish a corps of chiropody in the Army to rank alongside the dental units.

Bennett Elected To Head Council Of Social Agencies

James V. Bennett, of Chevy Chase, Md., director of the Bureau of Prisons, was elected president of the Council of Social Agencies Tuesday by the board of directors.

Other officers elected were Mrs. William Kittle, of the D. C. Minimum Wage Board, first vice president; Judge Fay L. Bentley of the Juvenile Court, second vice president, and Charles W. Pimper, treasurer.

Bennett has shown an active interest in welfare problems of the District for a number of years. In addition to serving on the board of the Council of Social Agencies, he is on the board of the Monday Evening Club, Social Hygiene Society, and Bureau of Rehabilitation. He is a member of the American Association of Social Workers and vice president of the Federal Community Chest Forum.

May Queen Is Secret At St. Mary's Seminary

Special Dispatch to The Post

St. Mary's City, Md., May 7.—St. Mary's Female Seminary-Junior College will conduct a May Day celebration Saturday. The May queen's identity is to be kept secret until the crowning ceremony, when Miss M. Adele France, president of the school, will place the crown of flowers upon the head of one of the following graduating students:

Betty DeLashmutt, Rockville; Mary Frances Hipsley, Mountain Lake Park; Sally Ann Owings, Ellicott City; Jean Pippin, Chestertown, or Charlotte Van Horne, Baltimore. The others will appear in the court as princesses with the junior princess, Pat Chichester, of Aquasco, and the freshman princess, Joan Lynch, of Washington.

Czech Refugee Asks to Change His German Name

"For the reason that he dislikes the German name," Richard Neumann, 47-year-old refugee from Czecho-Slovakia, asked the District Court Tuesday to change his name to Richard B. Barton.

Neumann arrived in America three weeks ago, after a two-year flight from his native country. He fled from Prague, where he was a paint manufacturer, after the pact of Munich. Detained 18 months in England, Neumann lived through the violent bombings of last summer and reached Panama six months ago. He obtained entry to this country after a six-month wait in the Latin republic.

Neumann, who speaks excellent English, prepared his application to the District Court without aid of counsel. He declared that he is a citizen of Czecho-Slovakia, giving his birthplace as Porkarec, Bohemia, and hopes to become an American citizen.

Health Theme Added To Tomato Festival

Special Dispatch to The Post

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., May 7.—Future editions of this resort's annual Labor Day week-end celebration will be known as the "Tomato and Health Festival."

Started in 1937 as the "Tomato Festival," Paul Yost, this year's director-general said that the word "Health" was urged by citizens who believed the local mineral springs should share equally with the county tomato in the festival spotlight.

Hood College Fete Slated Saturday

Special Dispatch to The Post

Frederick, Md., May 7.—May Day at Hood College on Saturday will be climaxed with the crowning of the May queen, Miss Natalie Townsend, by the Prince Hood, Miss Millys Nixon.

The festivities will begin in the morning with the traditional father-daughter baseball game. In the afternoon a horse show will precede the colorful coronation ceremony, which will have a Civil War setting and costumes from that day. Miss Julia Deardorff will serve as maid of honor to the queen and Miss Ruth Stottler will act as best man to Prince Hood. They also will be attended by a court of 18 ladies and "gentlemen."

A semiformal dance will conclude the festivities of the day. Miss Jane Simon is general chairman for the day.

Prize Winners

When the 1940 Pulitzer Prizes were announced, Westbrook Pegler's reporting and the New York Times War News received awards. In Washington both appear exclusively in The Washington Post.

Production Held 'Terribly' Inadequate

"In the light of the emergency with which the world is desperately confronted we are doing a terribly inadequate job," William L. Batt, $1 a year production official with the Office of Production Management, told the American Society of Mechanical Engineers Tuesday night.

Speaking at the society's annual banquet, in the Lafayette Hotel, Batt declared that Germany and England—"and they are short on everything"—are producing more aircraft today than we are.

"We should," he stated, "be producing twice the 1,400 airplanes that were produced in April."

"The test is coming of whether a democracy can face the production of a totalitarian state and survive. I think it can. I only pray we have time enough to get this program under way and give England the support that will make America safe."

Officers elected to govern the local chapter for the year 1941-42 were announced last night as Willis B. Ensinger, chairman; J. W. Huckert, vice chairman, and Dr. M. A. Mason, secretary-treasurer. Executive committee members elected for the same term are Carl E. Miller, John E. Younger, Thomas R. Tate and G. W. Haskins.

It was also announced that 1-year junior membership awards had been given three engineering students from Washington area colleges The three students are Leland Stanford Brown, jr., Catholic University; Lawrence L. Wilson, Maryland University, and Guy B. Watson, of George Washington University.

Canada had 167,015 soldiers in service on March 1, 52,400 of them overseas.

Concert Series At Watergate Is Assured

Another season of Watergate concerts this summer by the National Symphony Orchestra was assured Tuesday.

The executive board of the Musicians' Protective Union voted to approve the same weekly pay scale which members of the orchestra received last season. Similar action was taken Monday by the musicians themselves.

Last year the "sunset symphonies" at the Lincoln Memorial Watergate covered an eight-week season. Irving C. Root, superintendent of National Capital Parks, recently announced that five weeks was the most that would be granted this summer.

Accordingly, the issue was whether members of the orchestra would be willing to play a five-week season at the same rates of pay and, if so, whether the union would concur. A demurrer would have wrecked plans for 1941 by making the "sunset symphony" deficit prohibitive.

As it is, the National Symphony Orchestra Association will go about $6,000 into the red in putting on the concerts, said an announcement yesterday.

L. Corrin Strong, president, praised cooperation of the union and orchestra members in agreeing to accept the five-week season at no increase in pay.

For the first time, the concerts will be given Monday and Thursday evenings, beginning June 30. In former years they were held Sunday and Wednesday.

"The musicians' union appreciates the financial problem of the orchestra association and has generously agreed to let its members play at the same base pay that they received last year," Strong said.

"Consequently, the summer concerts committee, under the chairmanship of Harold A. Brooks, is going ahead with its plans for a five weeks' series of sunset symphonies at the Potomac Water Gate."

April Visitors Record At Lincoln Memorial

April was a record-smashing visitor month for the Lincoln Memorial, the office of National Capital Parks disclosed Tuesday.

During the 30-day period the marble monument and its statue were viewed by 362,905 persons—more than twice as many as visited all the other four major memorials and historic sites under N. C. P. supervision.

Previous high for a single month at Lincoln Memorial was 231,000, recorded in July, 1940.

Barber Shop Fire Snarls Downtown Traffic

Rush-hour traffic was snarled for more than 30 minutes Tuesday in the vicinity of Fourteenth and I Streets Northwest, while firemen battled a stubborn blaze in a barber shop at 829 Fourteenth Street Northwest.

Smoke was so thick in the interior of the shop that firefighters were forced to wear gas masks.

Maybe you don't know a howitzer from a mess kit. But it's a cinch you can spot a Division Commander clear across the parade grounds—by the cut and fit of his clothes! "Buck" privates, at only ten paces, look like peas in pod—even to their best gals. It's the same in every-day life! Who wants to be a "buck"—when it's just as easy to look like a "General"? A few minutes at Bond's will show you the difference. For one thing, the difference between Rochester tailoring and the ordinary kind. Those smooth broad shoulders, that soft easy drape, and the smart flat-hipped fit of your Bond suit carry an air of importance. And mighty flattering, too! What's more, Bond's exclusive custom-styled fabrics quietly set you apart from the crowd—a compliment to your good taste. They tell us even our prices rate a 21 gun salute. Do you wonder Bond's "army" of boosters is the largest in America? March in, and see why, today or tomorrow!

D. C. Water Not All Safe, Citizens Told

Washington's water supply could become contaminated by underground currents of other water and the United States Public Health Service has withheld "unqualified approval" of it, the Columbia Heights Citizens Association learned Tuesday night.

This was disclosed in a letter to the association's secretary, Walter L. Swanton, from District Sanitary Engineer J. B. Gordon.

In reply to a query by Swanton, Gordon stated that "under some extreme and unlikely conditions" cross-connections between the city's water supply and local nonpotable water supplies "might become potentially dangerous."

He said the Public Health Service had barred Washington water from interstate commerce in ships, trains and other conveyances for drinking and cooking.

Legislation, he said, is being drawn up authorizing a survey to determine the source of the nonpotable water. The association, meeting at the Mount Pleasant Congregational Church, voted indorsement of the legislation.

The association elected George H. Brown as president to succeed Col. Luther R. Maddox, who has been called to Army duty. Swanton was reelected secretary.

Other officers named were Dr. A. V. Smith, first vice president; Mrs. Ernest W. Howard, second vice president; E. B. Hoffman, third vice president; Col. G. B. Young, treasurer, and Brown and Mrs Howard, delegates to the Federation of Citizens Associations.

North Cleveland Park

The North Cleveland Park Citizens Association Tuesday night came out in strong opposition against the proposed plan now in Congress to close Van Ness Street Northwest, where it separates two Bureau of Standards units.

John B. Dickman, jr., president of the association, declared the closing would lessen property values, reduce fire and police protection and cause a "bottleneck" to traffic.

"We were assured when we bought property here," he said, "that Van Ness Street would never be closed." Residents of more than 500 homes would be affected, according to Dickman. The organization voted to protest to chairmen of the House and Senate District Committees and ask a public hearing, he said.

The group also voted to ask 300 additional policemen for the District and restoration of the "vacant house car" to the Eighth Precinct as well as one additional scout car and two more motorcycle police.

Indorsement of a plan now being advocated by many civic bodies to establish a Federally operated employment placement service for the dependents of men who have been drafted or who have volunteered for Army service also was voted. The move, Dickman declared, would help compensate for the "drastic decrease in income."

3 Agencies Move to New D. C. Center

Three of the first five District agencies to take over new quarters in the 5,000,000 Municipal Center Building began moving equipment Tuesday. The Commissioners will sign a formal occupancy agreement today with the War Department.

Approximately 1,400 employes of the Quartermaster Corps will occupy half of the building. Part of their equipment also was moved into the new Indiana Avenue structure yesterday.

On Pro Rata Basis

Under the War Department agreement, submitted to the Commissioners by John M. Carmody, Federal Works Administrator, the Federal Government will pay the District on a pro rata basis for such cost of operation and maintenance as its portion of the building requires.

The War Department also agreed to reimburse the city for other actual expenses incident to use of the building "which the District would not otherwise incur."

Operating and maintenance costs of the Municipal Center Building were estimated at about $160,000 a year. The War Department will pay roughly about $40,000.

It also was agreed that the Federal Government would provide its own telephone connections and bear the total cost of installation.

Carmody Explains

Carmody, in his communication to the Commissioners, said the War Department would remain in the building until contemplated temporary quarters are finished—"in any event no later than November 1."

Most of the equipment moved in yesterday consisted of file cases, records and various types of documents which must be handy and ready for use when the personnel arrives.

Workers from both the city government and War Department are not expected to take over until May 19 after telephone facilities have been installed.

In addition to the War Department, movers yesterday were the Traffic Department, Fire Department headquarters offices and the City Refuse Division. Within the next two or three days, it was announced, the Police Department and Health Department laboratories will begin to move.

Frances Biddles Honor Guests From Pennsylvania

The Solicitor General and Mrs. Francis Biddle entertained informally yesterday afternoon at a tea for a number of their Pennsylvania friends who are in town in connection with the current American Institute of Law.

Also among their guises were several members of the Supreme Court and a few other Washingtonians. Pouring tea for the hostess were Mrs. Felix Frankfurter and Mrs. Dean Acheson.

Mrs. Mary Willett Will Entertain For Visiting Kin

Mrs. Mary Willett, of 2151 California Street, will entertain at a buffet supper Saturday evening in honor of her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Dean Dunwoody, of Roanoke, Va., who are visiting her for a few days.

Mrs. Dunwoody and Mrs. Willett were known as "The Fitz Sisters" on the professional stage, and won wide acclaim as singers and pianists. On Saturday they will entertain their guests with a concert, including several scenes from operas.

Among guests invited for the evening are Mrs. Duncan Anderson and Miss Alice Brown, of Sewickley, Pa.; Mr. and Mrs. Knox Ide, of New York City; Miss Marian Jones and Ford Tollinson, of Baltimore, and a number of Washingtonians.

Contract Bridge

It is difficult to explain to an inexperienced player that there are times when it is dangerous to lead out an established trick, but today's hand will illustrate exactly what we mean. Defending against a part-score contract of three clubs, West, in the later stages of the play, tried to cash an established heart trick—squeezing his partner's hand more certainly than declarer ever could—instead of leading a spade and relieving East of the strain.

The difference of this play meant the difference between a high and low score and emphasized the fact that weak players should not attempt to win points on close defense. Had East-West taken the six tricks they should have, they would have scored 200 points as against

Today's Hand

Both Sides Vulnerable
WEST DEALER

NORTH: ♠ A 7 4 2 ♡ J 8 5 3 ◇ 9 8 6 5 ♣ Q
WEST: ♠ Q J 8 ♡ 9 7 4 ◇ A K 10 4 3 ♣ 7 2
EAST: ♠ 10 5 3 ♡ A Q 10 2 ◇ Q 7 ♣ A 10 9 4
SOUTH (Uncle Bing): ♠ K 9 6 ♡ K 6 ◇ J 2 ♣ K J 8 6 5 3

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♡	Pass
Pass	1 ♠	Pass	Pass
2 ♡	Pass	Pass	3 ♣
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: K ◇.

110 points which they could win for playing the hand at three diamonds. Their actual score was 100 points plus. This may appear undue concern over trifling scores, but at match-point duplicate the bidding is sliced so thin that trifling scores are important. Uncle Bing, of Buffalo, played South.

West led the king, ace of diamonds and then switched to the heart nine. Declarer took this trick with the king after dummy and East ducked. He played a small trump to dummy's queen; East went up with the ace and returned the spade ten to the king in the closed hand. South then won the king, jack of clubs and put East in the lead again with a small club to the ten. East cashed the heart ace, leaving this situation:

NORTH: ♠ A 7 4 ♡ None ◇ 9 ♣ None
WEST: ♠ Q J ♡ None ◇ 10 4 ♣ None
EAST: ♠ 5 3 ♡ Q 10 ◇ None ♣ None
SOUTH: ♠ 9 6 ♡ None ◇ None ♣ 8 6

East could now have led a spade to ruin the squeeze situation at the next trick and set the contract two tricks. He returned the queen of hearts, however; declarer ruffed, West discarded the diamond four, and the four of spades was thrown off from North. South then played his last trump, squeezing West, to take the remaining tricks.

Declarer was defeated one trick at three clubs, losing two diamonds, two clubs and one heart.

Rules of Evidence Code Debated By Law Institute

Some of the country's best legal minds debated all day yesterday a proposed code of the rules of evidence. The discussion consumed the second day's session of the nineteenth annual American Law Institute meeting at the Hotel Mayflower.

When finally approved by the institute, the code—first of its kind—will be submitted to the various State legislatures for recommended adoption.

The institute's dinner will be held tonight at the Mayflower. The conference, which has drawn 700 lawyers from all parts of the nation, will be adjourned tomorrow afternoon.

D. C. Rotary Club Fetes Clevelanders

Senator Harold H. Burton (Republican), of Ohio; Edwin Blythin, Mayor of Cleveland, and 20 members of the Cleveland Rotary Club were guests of honor yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the Washington Rotary Club at the Willard Hotel.

Senator Burton, former Mayor of Cleveland, was presented an honorary membership in his city's club by A. Z. Baker, vice president.

Senator Burton stressed the need for national unity and good citizenship and also praised Washington for its successful campaign to lower traffic accidents and deaths last year.

Man Given Life For 1933 Slaying

Justice James M. Proctor of the District Court yesterday sentenced William Smith, 37, colored, to life imprisonment for killing Fonnie B. Nelson, 25, colored, here July 9, 1933.

Smith, who was known also as Dock Rogers, evaded capture for nearly eight years, until his fingerprints betrayed his when he was sent to a chain gang in North Carolina for larceny.

Smith killed Nelson in a quarrel which grew out of a dice game. He was convicted of second degree murder last week.

Senate Indorses 85% of Parity For Crop Loans

By the Associated Press

The Senate moved Tuesday to provide crop loans at 85 per cent of parity by voting to reject a House-approved bill to provide 75 per cent loans on cotton, wheat, corn, tobacco and rice and send the measure to a conference committee.

Senator Bankhead (Democrat), of Alabama, leader of a bipartisan Senate group favoring the 85 per cent loans, was named chairman of the Senate conferees.

Speaking at length for rejection of the House measure, Bankhead said the export market for cotton and wheat had been lost and the mandatory Government loans offered the best method of keeping farm income on a parity with other groups.

Other Senate conferees included Smith (Democrat), of South Carolina, chairman of the Senate Agriculture committee; Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma; McNary (Republican), of Oregon, minority Senate leader, and Aiken (Republican), of Vermont.

Arlington Asks Sparing Use of Water

Continued Dryness And Big Demands For Construction Causes Request

Sparing use of water in Arlington County between 4 and 6 p. m. was requested Tuesday by A. T. Lundberg, county water superintendent, who warned that the continued dry spell and the increased demands of county construction projects is creating a heavy demand on the county water supply.

Lundberg urged that during the two afternoon hours water be used only for essential purposes, and not for watering lawns or gardens.

County Manager Frank C. Hanrahan said that a water line, now under construction, expected to be completed within the next week, will relieve the water shortage along the Columbia Pike, Oakcrest and other sections of the county, by furnishing water through the new line to the Gravelly Point Airport, thereby releasing water for other sections of the county through existing mains.

The county manager said a request has been made to Federal officials for $650,000 to make needed additions to the water and sewer facilities in the county. If the request is approved, $250,000 will be used for the construction of another reservoir.

2 Prince Georges Boards Call Up 45 Selectees

Two Prince Georges County Selective Service boards have ordered 45 registrants to report for induction today. Board No. 2 at Upper Marlboro has scheduled 40 men for induction and Board No. 1, Hyattsville, has notified five replacements to report.

Walter Johnson Backs Stewart at Montgomery Rally

Walter Johnson, former big league baseball pitcher, urged Montgomery County, Md., voters Tuesday to put A. Charles Stewart into the House of Representatives seat for which the "Big Train" was an unsuccessful candidate last fall.

Johnson addressed a rally of Republican workers at the county courthouse in Rockville, at which Stewart promised to be "a full-time Congressman" if chosen in the special election May 27.

Stewart's Democratic opponent is Mrs. William D. Byron, widow of the former Sixth Maryland District Representative who defeated Johnson for the seat last fall.

Mark Wilmarth, Engineer, Dies

Northampton, Mass., May 7.—Mark Wilmarth, 87, retired civil engineer, who was in charge of constructing many large Government buildings, died yesterday after a long illness.

As a civilian engineer with the United States Engineering Corps, he directed the construction of the Government Printing Office and the War College in Washington, D. C.

He was an intimate friend of President Theodore Roosevelt and served as an usher at his inauguration.

Born in North Oxford, Wilmarth was a graduate of Worcester Polytechnic Institute.

Wife Sues Leon Janney

Hollywood, May 7 (INS).—Stage and Screen Actor Leon Janney was sued for divorce today by his actress wife, Wilma Francis. She charged cruelty. It was understood that a property agreement had been effected out of court. They were married at Fredericksburg, Va., March 20, 1939, and separated last October, according to the complaint.

New Welfare Chief Named In Arlington

F. M. Clevinger's Appointment to Succeed Moody Effective June 1

The board of public welfare for Arlington County Tuesday announced appointment of French M. Clevinger as superintendent of public welfare, effective June 1. He fills the vacancy created by the resignation of James P. Moody who has accepted a post with the State department of public welfare.

Recommended by the State department of public welfare with which he has been associated since 1936, Clevinger comes to Arlington County from Wise County, where he has been superintedent since 1938. Prior to that, he was superintendent in Buchanan County.

Clevinger is a graduate of Emory and Henry College. His graduate work in social service was taken at the University of Chicago School of Social Service Administration.

He qualified for the position under the Virginia Merit System, which was put into effect on April 19, 1941.

Other New Items In Arlington County

The first competitive drill to be held between Arlington and the District of Columbia schools is scheduled to take place at the Washington-Lee High School Stadium today at 1:30 p. m. between three auxiliary companies at Anacostia High School and three auxiliary companies at Washington-Lee.

The awards will include a blue ribbon for each member of the first-place company and a white ribbon to each member of second and third place company. The ribbons will be suitably inscribed to indicate the nature of the contest.

Army officers will judge the event and the Anacostia High School Band will play for the Anacostia companies as they march on and off the field and during the inspection. Likewise the Washington-Lee High School Regimental Band will play for the local auxiliary companies.

At the end of the competition both battalions will form for regimental review and announcement of awards.

Word was received in Arlington yesterday that Private Bernard Medville, of 716 South Twenty-first Street, has been promoted to specialist, fourth class, in Headquarters Company, Sixty-seventh Armored Regiment of the Second Division at Fort Benning, Ga.

Private Medville was inducted into service January 10 at Baltimore and received initial training at Camp Meade. He is a clerk in regimental headquarters.

Dr. Walsh Attacks Streit's Plan For 'Union Now'

Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, S. J., chaged Clarence Streit Tuesday night with "appalling arrogance as well as political gaucherie" for excluding Latin-American nations from immediate participation in his plan for "union now."

The vice president of Georgetown University and regent of its Foreign Service School, analyzing Streit's new book, "Union Now With Britain," before the Critics' Forum of Washington at the Willard Hotel, expressed his opposition to the writer's scheme for uniting the world's democracies into a federation of free men.

"It asks the American people to hand over to a union parliament certain important rights reserved by the Constitution to the Congress of the United States," he asserted.

But, said the famous Jesuit priest, the most unacceptable of all elements of "Union Now With Britain" is "the cavalier and fundamentally offensive attitude adopted toward Latin America."

Jobless Fund Claims Declared Alive Until Paid

Judge Nathan Cayton, of the Municipal Court, declared Tuesday that the District government's claim against employers for contributions to the unemployment compensation fund remains alive and collectible until the money is paid.

Judge Cayton held that the claim is not barred by failure to begin proceedings within three years. Many claims are barred after this period by the statute of limitations.

The decision is believed to involve many thousands of dollars, although the case before him involved only $69.23. Payment was refused on the ground that the three-year period had expired and that the claim was no longer valid.

"If this defense were sustained," said Judge Cayton, "the broad social objectives of the act would be defeated; this and other employers would be relieved of their obligations and the public interest would suffer."

Submarine Net Ready to Guard New York Harbor

New York, May 7.—Preparations for a possible invasion of the port of New York's shipping by Axis Power submarines were being completed recently when a new submarine-cable net, together with buoys and other gear, were placed on the eastern shore at Fort Wadsworth, Staten Island.

This was the first time since the World War that such an extensive defense unit had been employed by the Coast Guard. The fact that this great steel net, which will extend from Fort Wadsworth (the imaginary line for quarantine in the upper bay) to Fort Lafayette has been many months in the making, was disclosed by authoritative sources last evening. Guards have been placed about the antisubmarine gear and no persons with cameras will be permitted at Fort Wadsworth, it was reported.

Rev. P. W. Yinger Honored by Church

The Rev. Paul W. Yinger, pastor of Cleveland Park Church here, Tuesday was named assistant moderator of the Middle Atlantic Conference of the Congregational and Christian Church in Montclair, N. J., the Associated Press reported.

The Rev. Adelbert J. Buttrey, of Montclair, was named moderator, succeeding the Rev. Arthur D. Grey, of Plymouth Congregational Church, Washington.

The conference embraces Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey and the District.

Coronor's Jury Clears Policeman In Shooting Here

Policeman Francis E. Davis, 28, of the Second Precinct, was exonerated by a coroner's jury Tuesday in the fatal shooting, April 29, of Robert Gray, colored, 32, of 1725 U Street Northwest.

It was testified that Davis, working in plain clothes, had arrested Gray on a soliciting charge and that the prisoner resisted arrest. The officer attempted to subdue the man and Gray got possession of Davis' blackjack, striking the policeman with it.

Davis shot Gray in the abdomen as the latter had the blackjack raised to strike again, it was said.

The jury decided the death was a justifiable homicide.

Committee Nominates Lon Folger's Brother

Reidsville, N. C., May 7 (AP).—The Fifth Congressional Democratic Committee yesterday nominated John H. Folger, of Surry County, to fill the unexpired term of his brother, Representative A. D. (Lon) Folger, who died from injuries received in an automobile accident.

The committee decided to request Gov. J. M. Broughton to call an election after 30 days notice.

Levy Asked For eBthesda Fire Unit

Volunteers Seek $1,500; Aide Appointed for New Beer Department

Bethesda Volunteer Fire Department, through its attorney, James H. Pugh, Tuesday for the second time asked the Montgomery County commissioners to levy $1,500 for the department.

The request declared the department is the same volunteer department that has been in operation since 1926 and is entitled to the county allotment of $500 per piece of apparatus for its three engines. The volunteers separated from the Bethesda Fire Department when it became a paid department and a new chief was appointed from the Washington Fire Department. The volunteers opposed the new chief, A. J. Bargagni, and built their own firehouse after considerable litigation. The commissioners took the request under consideration.

Charles Buscher, of Four Corners, was appointed assistant manager of the new beer department of the county liquor control board at an annual salary of $2,100. John Bonifant, of Colesville, was appointed a clerk in the office of the county accountant at $125 a month to replace Ora King, resigned.

Johnson Named Clerk

Calvin Johnson, of Chevy Chase, was appointed desk clerk in the county police station at Bethesda to replace James Nichols, appointed clerk to the trial magistrate's court. Resignation of Hazel Atwood as clerk in the commissioners' office at Rockville to accept a post with the Chinese purchasing commission at the Chinese Embassy was accepted.

The commissioners authorized an $800,000 refunding bond issue for partial payment of the $1,207,550 in bonds maturing in the next two years. The county levy is expected to provide $200,000 each year. The commissioners took the action because it was believed the bond market is more advantageous at present than it will be later.

The board authorized purchase of two road rollers, four dump trucks, a hoist truck and a pickup truck for use by the county engineers' office in road construction in the county. One project to be handled this summer is completion of the Whites Ferry Road from its present terminus to Whites Ferry.

More Beer Trucks

The board approved purchase of two additional trucks for the liquor control board to handle the beer wholesale business which has required more than four trucks originally purchased to care for the business. The beer department did more than $4,000 business Saturday.

It was announced that all Montgomery County war dead, regardless of color, will be included on the tablet to be erected on the courthouse grounds by the American Legion. H. J. Moore, chairman of the Legion committee in charge, will confer with the commissioners Tuesday.

The commissioners granted a permit to the Silver Spring Lions Club for use of the grounds in rear of the Silver Spring National Guard Armory from June 2 to 7.

Former Grid Star Becomes District Attorney's Aide

Stephen C. Miller, 26-year-old former Notre Dame football star, was sworn in as an assistant district attorney here Tuesday.

Charles B. Coffin, chief deputy clerk of the District Court, administered the oath in the office of District Attorney Edward M. Curran, who assigned Miller to criminal prosecutions in the Police Court.

Miller starred for Notre Dame for three years and was a coach there one more year, receiving his arts degree in 1936 and his law degree in 1938. He has been an attorney for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation for two years.

The new prosecutor lives at 1013 Urell Place Northeast.

Sorority Girl's Initiation Steals Show at Theater

An intermission crowd standing outside the National Theater, where the "Student Prince" operetta was being presented, was several minutes late getting back to its seats Tuesday night.

A sorority initiation, was being held by Amevelle Chapter of the National Sub-deb and Miss Virginia Battle, 16, of 500 Dahlia Street Northwest, amused the group 15 minutes with her rendition of "Oh, Johnny, Oh."

Mrs. G. G. Sward Elected President By Takoma Women

Mrs. Gilbert G. Sward, of Chevy Chase, Md., was elected president of the Takoma Park Women's Club Tuesday at its annual luncheon meeting in the firehall, Carroll and Denwood Avenues. She succeeds Mrs. Paul W. Burk, of Takoma Park, D. C.

Others elected are Mrs. Frank A. Richmond, of Orchid Street Northwest, first vice president; Mrs. D. V. Sandifer, Silver Spring, Md., second vice president; Mrs. Frank Marshall, Sligo Park Hills, recording secretary; Mrs. Walter C. De Groot, Indian Spring Park, Md., corresponding secretary, and Mrs. Frederick G. Umhau, Shepherd Park, treasurer. Directors elected are Mrs. Benjamin Abbott, Mrs. Burk and Mrs. Frank A. Nichols.

The women heard a talk on "Nutrition: Its Relation to Health," by Frances Kirkpatrick, head of the home economics department of George Washington University. A quintet from the choral group under the direction of Mrs. Edmund L. Green presented a musical program. Mrs. William McQuacker and Mrs. Harold Axtell were co-chairmen of the luncheon.

Navy Calls Falls Church Town Sergeant

Town Sergt. W. H. Glenn of Falls Church, Va., has been called back to active service by the Navy and will report for duty at Philadelphia on May 14, it was learned Tuesday night.

Falls Church faces the loss of two more officials. Lawrence E. Laing, member of the town council from the Third Ward, has been summoned by the Selective Service Board for physical examination on Friday. Town Attorney John A. K. Donovan has already reported for examination.

In addition, Councilman Ralph S. Keyser has been called back into active service by the Marine Corps, from which he had retired as a brigadier general.

It is understood that the town council at its meeting next Monday night will consider asking permission of the Civil Service Commission for Federal employes in the town to serve as town officials.

All three councilmen whose term expires this year are Federal employes and would be barred from running for reelection unless action by the Civil Service Commission was obtained. The three officials affected are Charles Kellogg, First Ward; Charles Pendleton, Second Ward, and Lawrence E. Laing.

What can we learn about FLAME-CONTROL from these cannons?

Everybody knows there is far more power in modern guns and today's propellent powders than in the old-fashioned wide-mouth cannon.

In the old-fashioned cannon power was wasted, spent in violent explosion and shock—in uncontrolled flame. But with new guns and powders we have built-up power, e-x-p-a-n-d-i-n-g pressure, because the flame is controlled.

Now—FLAME CONTROL In Gasoline!

Just as the modern gun needs modern powder, so modern engines need modern gasoline. Old-fashioned gasolines waste potential energy in violent, uncontrolled explosion.

In the new Hydro-formed American Gas the explosion is controlled—the combustion is regulated. The result—as in the modern gun—is power with less wasteful explosion. Violent shock is cut down, and in its place comes increasing thrust on the pistons, driving them with terrific energy.

Flame Control Gives Cushioned Power!

Because the flame is controlled, power is cushioned. The pent-up energy of the gas is now transformed into a silky-soft f-l-o-w of power. Violent shock is cut down, replaced by velvet s-m-o-o-t-h-n-e-s-s, as sustained as it is dynamic.

Revolutionizes Old Theories of Road Octane!

Official results of extensive road tests by Industry Committees show that conventional gasolines, on the average, lose octane numbers on the road. But Hydro-formed American Gas actually gains octanes on the road, actually surpasses laboratory ratings. It is more volatile, more aromatic—distributing its vaporized anti-knock constituents more evenly and impartially to all cylinders alike.

Hydro-formed AMERICAN GAS Still At Regular Gas Price!

In spite of its enormous improvement, in spite of its vastly increased value to you—you can still buy Hydro-formed American Gas at regular gas price.

Famous AMOCO-GAS Now Hydro-formed, Too!

The new Hydro-forming process has also been applied to Amoco-Gas, the original special motor fuel, which likewise moves forward and upward to an all-time high in quality and efficiency.

Hydro-forming is the latest triumph of gasoline science, the result of a revolutionary new refining process—the newest demonstration of how much work per drop gasoline can turn out.

Women Manage Factories, Design Equipment for Defense

This is the fourth of a series of articles by Inez Robb, International News Service staff writer, revealing the roles of women in America's national defense industries.

By Inez Robb
International News Service Staff Writer

Eight years ago, when she was still in high school, Anne Kavun won a beauty contest which entitled her to be known as Miss Bensonhurst, Long Island. It also entitled the school girl to carry home with her a gold-plated ash tray.

Miss Kavun, now 23, likes to remember that plated ash tray in these busy days when she is general manager of the Coney Island Electro Plating Works. She is now managing a small firm working at great speed to electro-plate airplane parts for national defense orders.

"The defense orders are received under subcontract from such places as the Wheeler Shipyards," she explained in her trim office within the shadow of Coney Island's ferris wheels and scenic railways.

Men Have Pride in Her

Beautiful and bright as a dollar, this young girl is the only woman in the Coney Island Electro Plating Works. She bosses a busy and contented group of men who take considerable pride in her. In turn, she fills with neatness and dispatch all defense orders sublet to her firm.

Miss Kavun is typical of the efficiency and intelligence of many women in small business who are contributing to the sum total of national defense. She knows the electro-plating business forward and backward. Since she got a start in the business seven years ago, she has educated herself in the chemistry of the business and pored over endless books on plating processes.

"As a rule, plating on Government defense work is done to Government specifications," she explained. "Often we receive the article to be plated in rough State, and it must first be polished with heavy machinery. But sometimes I got jobs that require a knowledge on my part of the most practical sort of finish for the object and the use to which it is to be put."

Products for Army and Navy

Around the plant, Miss Kavun wears a serviceable smock over her chic dark dresses. Her plant turns out products for the Army and Navy, but her fingernails are as long and red and polished as if she spent her days playing bridge.

The trolley car carries Miss Kavun to her office from the Brooklyn home where she lives with her parents. She loves her work, even though the hours are lengthening considerably in these busy times. She admits to only one hazard in her work—she counts as lost that day whose low descending sun sees her in a pair of stockings that have not been torn to ribbons around the plant.

Half way across Brooklyn from Miss Kavun in another small factory, another woman manages a plant working over-time to turn out hospital equipment for the United States Navy. She is Miss Jeanne Tascarella. The two women are as happy an argument for the success of the American melting pot as one could wish. Miss Kavun's parentage is Russian, Miss Tascarella's Italian. Both are staunch Americans, turning out defense essentials for the land to which they are proud to owe allegiance.

Getting Material Is Difficult

Seven years ago when Miss Tascarella's father was incapictated by illness, she took over the active management of the family factory. She had no special training. But today she designs hospital furniture, writes specifications and reads blue prints like a veteran. Her secretary is the only other woman in the plant.

"At the moment we are making 140 portable operating tables for the United States Navy," she explained. "The Navy has also just placed an order for $2,000 worth of white enameled steel chairs such as doctors use in their office."

Business women in defense industries are one thing, but an artist is something else again. But something just as essential, it develops, as the woman who can run a plant or boss a factory.

A Model for a Giant Tire

Miss Delong spends eight hours a day in her studio sculpturing in clay the experimental tire tread designs contemplated by Firestone's development engineers. From her painstaking and exact clay models are cast the molds in which rubber eventually is poured to fashion tires for many of the new vehicles with which America is speeding to mechanize her Army.

Recently this girl, who weights a scant 120 pounds, made the working model for the gigantic tire, 9 feet in diameter, which is to be used on the heavy bombing planes turned out in this country to meet democracy's needs here and abroad.

Fighting Churchill

In his radio address of April 27, Winston Churchill made no bones of the very serious difficulties that beset the British in the Mediterranean. While "grievous events were taking place in the Balkan peninsula and in Greece," he said, "our forces in Libya have sustained a vexatious and damaging defeat." He would not predict the outcome, but he warned his listeners that the one thing certain about war is that "it is full of disappointments and also of mistakes." Yesterday, in the House of Commons, Churchill sought to disperse the pall of gloom that had swept in on the wake of the disasters in Greece and Libya and more recently the new complications that have arisen in Iraq. He announced that nearly 500,000 imperial troops stood guard against the Axis in the Near East. He proclaimed a halt to the British retreat in the Mediterranean basin. "We intend to defend to the death and without thought of retirement Crete and Tobruk." He went on to say that "we have every reason to believe we shall be successful" in holding the Valley of the Nile, Suez and Malta. He promised assistance to the Iraqis to "get rid of their military dictator as soon as possible."

Significantly Churchill made no reference to Gibraltar, the possibility of a German thrust in the direction of French North Africa and Dakar. The British situation in the Mediterranean, indeed, continues to be fraught with grave perils. But the once widespread feeling that Great Britain might soon have to clear out of that vital region has ebbed somewhat. The fact that the British are still holding out at Tobruk after being besieged there for a month; that the German-Italian forces in the western desert of Egypt have made no progress in that time while the British have been able to make use of that time to reinforce the Army of the Nile; and, lastly, that the Iraq situation appears to be clearing up in their favor has revived hopes that the British will be able to hold on to their positions in the Near and Middle East. That hope Winston Churchill has now seen fit to encourage. But if the situation in the eastern Mediterranean appears somewhat brighter for Great Britain, that fact should occasion no complacency. The main struggle now as heretofore is in the Atlantic.

The Irish Of It

A well-known French Ambassador to London before World War I used to console himself and his staff with the words: "We now await the inevitable German blunder." Sure enough, the blunders came so thick and fast that Germany alienated Britain, and the Ambassador's dream of an Anglo-French entente was realized. Most of us, however, have been persuaded that this capacity for fatal blunders was something peculiar to Junker leaders of Imperial Germany, and that the leaders of the Third Reich are much too shrewd to commit them. But one recent instance shows that the German capacity for blundering is by no means extinct. Take the German leaflets dropped over Eire (South Ireland) after one of the aerial raids on Belfast. The inhabitants of Eire were warned that similar punishments might be visited upon themselves, if they persisted in acts of mercy to their brethren across the Ulster border.

In this case the insolence was pointed by ignorance. No Irishman has even considered Ulster a foreign country, and though he may have personal, religious or political reasons for disliking Orangemen, or even "Far Downs" in general, he would never dream of disowning them. The answer to the threat was what anyone with the least understanding of Irish psychology or Irish history might have anticipated. When Belfast was bombarded again the other night, the letter of Irish neutrality was thrown to the winds. Fire apparatus and ambulances from Dundalk and Dublin rushed over the Ulster border. And all through the night and the following morning Dublin and Belfast fire brigades fought the flames side by side. The result was an outburst of gratitude throughout the whole province. According to the correspondent of the New York Times, this fraternal gesture from Dublin established overnight "a bond of sympathy between Northern and Southern Ireland . . . such as no British or Irish statesman had been able to bring about in a decade." The correspondent might as truthfully have written in a century.

Thus it seems that one blunder by the supposedly infallible Goebbels propaganda machine may have gone a long way toward solving the supposedly insoluble "Ulster question." It now remains to be seen whether the Nazis will make good their threat to give the inhabitants of Eire "a few fires of their own to put out." If so, this second German blunder—who knows?—may be the very means of giving Britain the additional seaports and bases she so desperately needs in the Battle of the Atlantic.

Chain Broadcasting

It is not surprising that the anti-monopoly order issued last Saturday by the Federal Communications Commission has brought forth numerous protests. That order will effect some far-reaching changes in the relations of radio stations to broadcasting networks. No business organization likes to see established practices banned, and that is particularly true when the required changes involve a sacrifice of privileges. But the real question at issue is not whether the large radio networks find the new order burdensome, but whether it will best serve the public interest.

The FCC's order is based on the generally acceptable assumption that the public interest in radio may be protected most effectively by active competition among broadcasters and network systems. It recognizes, however, that this competition will be limited in any event because only a relatively small number of radio stations may be operated successfully in any community. Still the commission insists that no artificial restraints upon competition be added to those inherent in the nature of the radio spectrum. Accordingly it has laid down a policy of forbidding licenses to stations that are bound by contract to broadcast the programs of only one network. Even nonexclusive affiliation contracts between stations and network systems will be limited to one-year periods, and no network will be permitted to operate more than one standard broadcast station in the same area.

At present only three major networks are in operation and this field is dominated by the National and Columbia Broadcasting Companies. The FCC does not deny that they are rendering good service. Its concern is with the concentration in a few hands of so much power over this vital means of communication, and the evidence is plentiful of concentrated power. When existing networks forbid their affiliate stations to utilize national programs from any other source, they close the door of opportunity to new enterprise in this field. When they insist upon five-year contracts for this purpose, they effectively bolt the same door and any hope of creating new networks is virtually destroyed. It does not appear that Congress ever intended to grant such monopolistic privileges to three broadcasting chains.

Of course, the rules now adopted by the FCC should have been put into effect before the present network systems came into being. Lack of foresight in the past, however, is no reason to perpetuate relations that encourage monopoly. Rules similar to those included in the present order have already been applied to television and frequency modulation. Their application to existing radio broadcasting systems cannot be postponed indefinitely because important readjustments will be required. All that can be reasonably asked is that the commission afford ample time for effectuation of the changes. Competition is still the mainspring of our economic system, though there is need to prevent competition from degenerating into mere chaos.

Oceanic Power

All the signs seem to indicate that the speech of Secretary Stimson Tuesday night was the forerunner of action by the Administration which will give our Navy the job of insuring our condominium of the Atlantic Ocean with the British. This is the only issue facing the American people today. Mr. Stimson, as became a man who has held high office for the past 30 years, spoke with a sense of history when he based his broadside on the fact that we are an oceanic power. Two oceans, indeed, are our borders. For this reason the friendly control of those oceans is imperative to our national security. Yet the Axis powers, whose hostile intent to our country has been perfectly apparent since the tripartite agreement of last September, are now disputing the Anglo-American control of both our borders. Sea control is essential to Hitler's dream of world conquest, for, as Cicero said, "he who rules the sea, rules the world."

Secretary Stimson did not rest his case for the intervention of our Navy in the Battle of the Atlantic only on grounds of self-defense. He spoke in the same terms as Secretary Hull used a while ago of the barbaric force that Hitler is spreading over the world. But men react primarily to the instinct of self-preservation, and defense, therefore, is the prime consideration for nations. In this era of far-flung attack our defense rests upon the maintenance of the present modus of sea power in our border oceans. Syllogistically, therefore, the best defense is to see that our Navy at least protects the aid we are sending to our British partner in the Atlantic condominium. We have it in our power to do so. We can protect our continent and at the same time to "turn the tide of darkness back from the Atlantic world." Only those who are lost to all sense of our material might and the spirit which has made us great could think otherwise. The decision which the Secretary of War seems to foreshadow would have been taken long ago if our recognition of ourselves as an oceanic power had not been overlaid by decades of internal expansion back of a taken-for-granted status quo on the high seas.

Power And Glory

Adolf Hitler is the Reichsfuehrer, a role which combines the premiership he assumed in January, 1933, the Presidency that was Hindenburg's until the latter's death the following year and the leadership of the National Socialist Party. Benito Mussolini is the Capo del Governo, head of the Italian government, as well as Duce, or No. 1 man in the Fascist hierarchy. In comparison with his fellow dictators, however, Josef Stalin has hitherto been satisfied with a minor official position. A member of the Presidium of the Supreme Soviet of the U. S. S. R. and of the Communist International's executive committee, his most potent office has been that of secretary of the central committee of the Communist Party, a post he has occupied since 1922. In Russia others have been permitted to enjoy the pomp and circumstance of high office; Stalin has been content with power and its exercise. Now, after 17 years of dictatorial rule in which every possible rival has been eliminated, Stalin has openly come forward to act in his own name. And Viachesleff Molotoff, who has doubled in brass as premier and foreign minister of the Soviet Union, has relinquished the premiership which Stalin himself has now assumed, being kept on as foreign minister and also being named vice premier.

Just what this change means is anybody's guess. Had Molotoff been eliminated altogether, the belief entertained in some quarters that the change of the guard at Moscow presages a major change in foreign policy would be more credible than it appears to be today. The assumption of the premiership by Stalin throws no present light on the Russian mystery. About all it suggests at the moment is that, in view of all the purges and repurges that have occurred during recent years in Russia, there are more jobs at the top in the Moscow government than there are men with sufficient prestige to fill them. Anyway, since Stalin will now only be exercising in his own name the powers he has exercised all these years through others, it is difficult to see how that shift of the dictator from behind the arras to the spotlighted throne will change matters.

The House Approves

The passage by the House yesterday of the bill to permit President Roosevelt to requisition idle foreign ships in United States ports is a welcome development. The outcome of the war may depend in very real measure on the outcome of the present Battle of the Atlantic. For Great Britain to win that battle, her very considerable tonnage losses of the last 20 months must somehow be offset while, at the same time, ways and means are found to fight the menace of the U-boat, the bombing plane and the mine. The measure which the House has now approved by a vote of 266 to 120 should make it possible for this country to acquire a substantial volume of idle shipping which can then be employed, to use the President's words, "in such a manner as will make their cargo space immediately effective in accomplishing our objectives of all-out aid to the democracies." It is to be hoped that the Senate will take speedy action in approving the measure. Already an unconscionable amount of time was lost by the prolonged House debate. Fortunately all inhibiting amendments were voted down by that body so that the measure as it goes to the Senate is one which requires no changes.

BOY AND BIRD

The small hand clasped around
Bright plumage of the bird
From the tangle of vines on the ground—
Since then it had not stirred.

Between forefinger and thumb
Moved only alert, bright eyes—
Watching the boy's eyes come
Closer, like mimic skies.

The boy was careful to press
Enough to fit the shape
Of the bird—while quietness
Watched only to escape.

He felt a trembling run
Through fibers close to his own
And he opened his hand to the sun—
In a flash the bird had flown.

Between them something had stirred;
Unknowing, the boy possessed
A moment that has no word,
But sings in the secret breast.

Letters To The Editor

A Country Unprepared

I don't agree with Lindbergh on the outcome of the war, but must admit that he is correct. The United States certainly is not prepared for war. We are devoid of leadership. In a time of national danger we can't even keep industry going, and labor unions are able to destroy the country without interference from the Government. The Secretary of Labor appears favorable to undesirable aliens who agitate against our safety, and the President himself is powerless or unwilling to act.

A fatal lethargy characterizes everything we do. We play with the idea of helping Great Britain, but don't quite do it. We are afraid to stay out and afraid to go in, and this attitude is encouraged by the leadership of the President, who follows public sentiment instead of trying to crystallize and lead it.

We are a helpless and hopeless country. We are going the way of France and Norway, and it is only a question of time before we are also vassals of Hitler. When it is too late, as usual, we shall wake up.

The only consolation in the whole picture is that labor unions, who will have been our undoing, will suffer more than the rest of us, because labor will really be slave labor under Hitler, and they will work long hours at small pay and like it. VERNE RUPERT.

Bethesda, Md., May 2.

Our Domestic Scene

Day by day, old cleavages widen and new fissures appear within our country. All this plays right into Hitler's hands and one can well imagine how he loves it all. First, divide your opponents and then divide the people within each country. This formula has worked to perfection in every country except Great Britain and Greece.

It seems incredible that this country could have learned nothing from the tragic sequence of events in Europe during the past three years. One is forced to believe that either Hitler is very smart or the rest of the world very dumb.

Immediately upon the outbreak of war in September, 1939, we expressed the hope that France and Great Britain would not allow themselves to become divided, and, knowing Hitler's genius in this direction, it is to be assumed that they guarded against this possibility, even though they fought for four years during the last war without important division. Nevertheless, within three weeks they were divided, providing Hitler with another pushover.

No doubt Hitler observes our domestic scene with great satisfaction. FREDERICK SHANNON.

American Way Of Life

Your recent editorial entitled "A Bit for a Bark," in which you commended Mr. William C. Bullitt for his forthrightness in reference to the Russo-Japanese neutrality pact, started me reminiscing a little. I can still remember when Mussolini marched into Rome, supposedly for the purpose of rescuing Italy from the clutches of the Communists. I recall when Hitler borrowed this idea from his senior partner and proceeded to suppress Communists in Germany. I remember when for many years the United States refused to recognize Communist Russia, because it was then, as it is today, intent on destroying democracy throughout the world. And I have a vivid memory of the time when Mr. Bullitt was credited with having influenced the New Deal Administration to recognize Stalin's regime.

At that time, the depression which began during Hoover's Administration was still at its height. A certain element in this country evidently thought that if Stalin could be induced to spend some of the gold which he confiscated from the Russian families, the terrible depression might be somewhat mitigated. So Stalin was told that if he would stop his subversive propaganda in the United States, his bloody dictatorship would be forgiven and recognized as a legitimate government.

But, far from having any intention of ceasing his communistic activities in America, crafty Stalin saw a greater opportunity to strengthen his position through his prospective embassy in Washington. Of course, he promised to desist, and was promptly recognized. And to make his promise more realistic, he ordered Communists throughout the world to proclaim themselves friends of democracy, and he clinched it with a fake democratic constitution for the U. S. S. R.

Fortunately, the plain people refused to be deceived. But a segment of the educated group, chiefly in the teaching, journalistic, and legal professions, was taken in completely. However, when Stalin made friends with his former enemies, the Nazis and lately, with the Japanese), the American Communists saw the duplicity of their idol; and, like the prodigal son, many of them have returned to the household of their fathers.

Let us hope that all those who were seduced by the Communists' blandishment will also come back and will not be so gullible in the future and will remain with us common people in our simple faith in the American form of government—a unique Government which grants us the liberty to exercise our God-given rights of "life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness."

Responsibility Of Peace

It seems that the gentlemen who want peace with the Nazis at the price of slavery are the same kind who wanted peace after World War I without assuming any of the responsibility of maintaining peace. Failing to assume that responsibility by so-called isolation has placed us in a serious way. What would our failure to support Britain now do? Leave us to fight alone a hostile world and alienate us from those who were once our friends.

PEGAY CLARKSON POLLARD.

Arlington, Va., May 3.

Phelps-Dodge Mining Co. In 1917

Mr. Pegler, in his May 3 column, states that the Phelps-Dodge mining difficulty during the last war was led by a lot of Communists known then as I. W. W.'s, and that when the strike got out of hand "certain persons" loaded the lot of them into box cars and shipped them out. He also criticizes the recent decision of the Supreme Court, which was based on Section 8 (3) of the National Labor Relations Act, which says that it shall be an unfair labor practice for any employer "by discrimination in regard to hire or tenure of employment, or any term or condition of employment to encourage or discourage membership in any labor organization." The act of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation in refusing to hire prospective employes solely because of their affiliations with a labor union definitely squares with the act as a bold and flagrant violation of Section 8 (3). The history of the original Phelps-Dodge case is extremely interesting, since it gives us a better picture of their antilabor policy which is being followed through today.

A strike was called in the Warren district of Arizona, a copper mining industry, during June and July, 1917. There was no violence on the part of the workers, nor any threat of violence by those on strike. No machinery had been set up for the settlement of labor disputes.

Early in the morning of July 12, knowledge of this scheme reaching the sheriff and a large armed force presuming to act as deputies under the sheriff's authority, comprising about 2,000 men, rounded up 1,186 men in the Warren district and put them aboard a train (box cars) and carried them to Columbus, N. Mex. The authorities at Columbus refused to permit those in charge of the deportation to leave the workers there, and the train carried them back to the desert town of Hermanas, N. Mex., a nearby station. The workers were wholly without adequate supplies of food, water, and shelter for two days where they were abandoned by the guards, who had brought them there and left them to shift for themselves. The situation was brought to the attention of the War Department, and on July 14 the workers were escorted by troops to Columbus, N. Mex., where they were maintained by the Government until the middle of September.

This deportation was carried out under the supervision of the sheriff of Cochise County. It was formally decided upon at a meeting of "citizens" on the night of July 11, participated in and controlled by the manager and other officials of the Copper Queen Consolidated Mining Co. (Phelps-Dodge Corporation, Copper Queen Division) and the Calumet & Arizona Mining Co. In order to carry out the plans for the deportation sucessfully, the leaders of this intrigue utilized the local offices of the Bell Telephone Co. and attempted to exercise a censorship over parts of interstate connections in order to prevent any knowledge of this scheme reaching the outside world.

The President's mediation committee sent a written report to Gov. Campbell and Sheriff Wheeler, of Cochise County, to the effect that all such illegal and undemocratic practices must cease at once.

A committee of the Sixty-third Congress investigated this strike and submitted the following report, which I quote in part: "It seemed the militia was on the side of the mine operators in this controversy and evidence seems to conclusively prove such to have been the case. . . . Defenseless women and children did not escape the hostilities of this quasi-military organization. A number of the militiamen seized the opportunity while clothed with the authority of the State to engage in various lawless acts. . . . In other instances the acts were of an immoral kind and of such a nature as to be unfit for publication. . . ."

The Phelps-Dodge Corporation, replying to a letter from the President's mediation committee, requiring the company to bargain collectively with its employes and not to discriminate against the men for union membership, said that they considered such a request unnecessary and contrary to their best judgment, but "since we have no alternative in the matter, we shall endeavor to carry out your wishes in the spirit as well as the letter."

This, I hope, gives us a better picture of the true situation that existed in the mining case than the abbreviated, distorted presentation of Mr. Pegler.

Army Transport

A bugle sounds the hours in correct military manner, while the ship's bell announces the nautical time. The big Army transport is traveling on the high seas. It's a crowded transport. Families are separated. Wives are given cabins with other wives. Four to a room and a bride sighs. She does like other women and her companions are very nice women; still this isn't her idea of a romantic honeymoon. What, tod, is she going to do about her trousseau? When officers must wear a uniform from morning until night, formal evening gowns seem a bit out of place, especially when they get wrinkled in the one steamer trunk, that can't be longer or higher than a decreed number of inches.

The ship is a floating Army camp. An Officer of the Day hurries here and there. So does the Adjutant. A pretty young girl stands near the railing and considers strategy at sea. The situation isn't what she had expected. War Departments don't seem to plan for pretty young girls.

Transports are very complicated. There are orders and counter orders. They are difficult to board. There must be various vaccination and inoculation certificates and a last minute medical examination when minds begin to dwell on measles and the possibility that last night's mosquito bite might really be chicken pox.

Life on transports is equally complicated. The Bulletin Board lists the regulations. Shorts may be worn on only one part of the deck. Nothing is said about how to get to that one part. Children must be kept quiet from 2 until 4 in the afternoons. Nothing is said about how to keep them quiet and the conscientious mother wonders if her husband will be courtmartialed because his six-month old son loudly objects to cutting teeth.

Everyone must be present at the hour set for meals, unless excused by a doctor's certificate. The pretty young girl immediately begins to look for the Ship's Surgeon. So does the colonel's lady. There is such a thing as beauty sleep, and nice women do not get up at 6:30 in the morning for a fattening thing like breakfast.

There are drills in the morning and drills in the afternoon. All the interesting young officers are concerned with orders. Only the much-married ones: the pretty young girl decides, wander about the decks. No, and she gets excited, there is a Congressman on his way to inspect some coastal defenses. He is a very attractive Congressman. Perhaps he would like to learn about the Army from her. No, a Mrs. Congressman appears and the P. Y. G. (pretty young girl) sighs at the loss of another illusion. Where is the romance to life at sea?

A Life and Fireboat drill is announced and ominously commences. Life preservers, the P. Y. G. decides, are definitely unbecoming; but so, her Colonel father announces, is drowning. People stand and stare at one another in a strained unnatural silence, broken only by an excited, "What is that speck on the horizon?" The speck proves to be a non-belligerent ship; still anything can happen in these days of wars and rumors. The P. Y. G. begins to wonder just what she should save. Bracelets and necklaces are very pretty, so is His picture; still a box of candy can at least be eaten.

The General's wife stares at the speck and begins to wonder about rank. Is Mrs. Congressman supposed to precede her into the life boat? It may be women and children first, but there's no mention of which women and which children. The conscientious mother wakes up her six-months-old baby who lustily objects to the fit of his life preserver, with the result that none of the passengers hear what they are supposed to do in case of a real alarm.

The P. Y. G. makes discoveries. Attractive lieutenants are very proud of being able to light cigarettes in a sea breeze. It's a sure way to a man's heart. So is a lesson in nautical terms, like bow and stern. Soldiers, however, come running. "Sir, Kelly was missing at mess call." Tense words at sea, even if the missing Kelly is found fast asleep on his bunk.

Rumors travel from one part of the ship to another. That tall, dark lady is a spy. The letters she is constantly writing are secret reports. Nobody ever inquires as to how she managed to get all the necessary orders to get on an Army transport, just as nobody is disappointed when she turns out to be a lieutenant in the Army Nurse Corps and very definitely not a spy. By that time gossip has decreed that a major is on a secret mission and veteran Army wives are beginning to watch the pretty young girl. Walking one mile around the deck is exercise; two is something else, and three is definitely serious.

The adjutant agrees. On land, there can always be a previous engagement, or a man can at least run home. He sighs. The sea presents unsuspected problems. The P. Y. G. agrees. One girl should be happy when she is surrounded by 500 eligible men. But one girl can't dance with 500 men and feet can only walk so many hours without ceasing to feel like feet. Then how can there be a date for a movie when the deck is automatically turned into a movie theater after dark and you're already there? There is no place else to be. And what food are men when there is no other unmarried girl closer than a thousand miles to be interested in their charms and virtues. So the P. Y. G. moans at the loss of another illusion. Where is the romance to life at sea?

But inevitably land is sighted. The atmosphere changes. Engagements at sea often have lasting results. Doubly so, when one girl is engaged to 500 men. The adjutant sighs. An Army transport is merely an Army camp at sea and every solution is always left to the adjutant. But he brightens. After all her father will soon be a general and she is a very pretty young girl. Engagements at sea can change the course of many a life. Why his commanding officer used to know the P. Y. G. when she was only 2, which, the adjutant muses, is almost as helpful as a superior on an efficiency report.

Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

The Core Of American Policy

IN BERLIN this week Hitler himself in veiled language and his spokesmen in plain language said that American intervention will prolong the war. While insisting that Germany will nevertheless defeat Britain, they admitted to their own people that it is within the power of America to compel Germany to fight a longer and more difficult war.

LIPPMANN

This is a conclusion which none, not even Col. Lindbergh, will deny, and it is the decisive justification of our whole policy. Stripped of all wishful thinking, underlying all argument as to whether the war can be won and how it is to be won, there is the undeniable fact that the American intervention, which was first announced in June, 1940, has given the United States a whole year in which to mobilize and arm, and there is the practical certainty, acknowledged by Berlin, that the United States now has the means to gain for itself another period of time in which to make itself powerful.

For a Nation which a year ago was unprepared to stand alone, had a good but insufficient Navy, no Army, and no great industry organized to produce weapons, the winning of the time needed to get ready has already been for Americans a very great victory. If as Col. Lindbergh says quite truly we are still unready to meet Germany and her allies in a head-on collision, then there exists the most compelling reason imaginable for doing what Berlin admits that we can do—for winning more time by prolonging the war in order to postpone, even supposing for the sake of argument that we could not prevent, a German victory.

If national policy must rest at last on the coldest and most realistic calculation, what can be more realistic in fact than a policy which has already given an unprepared democracy a year's time to prepare and can, if it is now boldly and resolutely followed, give more time and more time?

NO ONE CAN calculate accurately the risks of the future because there is in all these matters an immense incalculable factor—what we call so inadequately the morale of the peoples, what our forefathers would have called the souls of men. If last June when France capitulated and Britain stood alone and open to invasion, we had followed the counsels of Col. Lindbergh, had refused to send supplies, had announced that Germany was the victor, what would have happened in Britain? What would have happened in France, in Greece, in the French empire, in China, in the Far East? What would have happened in Canada? What would have happened in South America?

Will anyone presume to deny that in adopting the Lindbergh policy of sealing the doom of Britain, we should have provoked a moral collapse throughout the world by means of which Hitler would now be the master of four continents and now the undisputed victor and now the leader of the triple alliance against the United States? By not following the Lindbergh doctrine we have made Hitler fight for another year and have made him admit that he does not know when he can win. We have used that year far less effectively than we should have used it. But nevertheless we have used it well enough to give ourselves the power by means of naval intervention and our industrial effort to insure for ourselves more months, more years, to increase our power. We have been told that our support of Britain has stripped us of weapons: that is the falsest argument in the whole agitation against the national policy. What we have done in support of Britain has made us already immensely stronger than we were 12 months ago—stronger in every respect than we could conceivably have been had we condemned Britain to defeat and acknowledged Hitler and his allies as the masters of Europe and Asia and Africa. By disregarding Col. Lindbergh's advice we have not won the war. But we have prevented the war being lost, and by that achievement we have multiplied immeasurably the defenses of America.

WHAT WE HAVE still to do, and shall most certainly do when the President makes known his decision, must rest at last upon the same cool, objective calculation of the American interest. But that real calculation has been obscured and confused by the recent agitation: we have been asked to calculate the chances of a British or a German defeat, and to stand inert unless we can bet on a sure thing. If this were merely an ignoble calculation, we might pass it by. But it is in fact a false calculation which hides from the American people their vital interest and, as the paramount theme of the Nazi propaganda, is designed to paralyze American policy.

In the last and coldest analysis of the position the question for us is not whether Britain will eventually be defeated but whether, if we could not prevent her defeat, the British peoples throughout the world are to be captured by Hitler or are to fall back and are to gather around us. It is hard for anyone to write and it will be hard for most men and women to read this. But it must be said. For in this gravest hour of decision we must discount all possible illusions. We must face the very worst that is possible if we are to become immune to deception, disappointment, and despair.

THE VERY WORST, as Berlin itself admits, is that eventually in spite of all our efforts the Germans will overcome the resistance of the Empire in the Middle East and of the British people in the British Isles. On this—the very worst calculation possible—what is the American interest? Is it to hasten the disaster or to postpone it? The American interest is to postpone it, not only because this means time which is our own greatest need, not only because the longer the war the more exhausted will be Germany and Italy, but also because if a disaster can be postponed, who dares to say it cannot be averted altogether?

But even more critically—and this consideration we should above all take to heart—if the worst is eventually to happen to Britain, the consequences of letting it happen without our intervention will be infinitely graver than if we have intervened. For if we stood aside and let Britain be defeated, the defeat would be absolute — the British power would become incorporated into Hitler's empire. If on the other hand we are supporting Britain, no victory that Hitler can win in Europe will be conclusive—all he can hope to do is to force the British power in the world to retreat and fall back upon us.

The difference is all the difference in the world. Assuming the worst, it is the difference between a surrender and a retreat. It lies within our power,—and this at the bottom is the issue before us,—to determine whether, if the defeatists are right that Hitler cannot be resisted in Europe, the British and their Allies are to surrender or are to retreat perhaps but to surrender never.

Fair Enough

Freedom Of Thought

THERE HAS BEEN a note like the growl of a mob forming in a dark street in the controversy over the beliefs and activities of Charles A. Lindbergh and Burt Wheeler. To make matters worse, the loudest voices are those of individuals who discredit and embarrass any cause to which they attach themselves, any public person to whom they gratuitously contribute their support.

Lindbergh and Wheeler, opposing participation in the war on patriotic grounds, were bound to discover in their following all the conspirators of the Anti-America Bund and the equally traitorous though less effective Fascist Italian groups. The mission of these people is to aggravate quarrels between Americans and to prevent the delivery of effective help to Britain. Whether Lindbergh and Wheeler like such company or not, they cannot elude them, although it seems incumbent on all opponents of the Nation's course toward war to repudiate such support and to single out individuals for personal denunciation. They know the names all right.

But the attacks on these men for their beliefs have been outrageous and are growing more indecent day by day. The United States is not at war, and anyone who believes Britain can't win, with or without our help, and we couldn't win a fight with Germany and Japan, certainly has a right to say so.

Co call such a person a fifth columnist, which means traitor and nothing else, is to abandon intelligent discussion and resort to name-calling. This, as President Roosevelt, paradoxically, pointed out in one of his big speeches, is sure proof that the offender has run out of legitimate arguments. Moreover, the patriotic records of these two men compare very well with that of any individual in the war party. The counter-blast of "warmonger" is just as bad.

I am convinced that Lindbergh and Wheeler are wrong in believing this Nation could live free and prosperous in the same world with a victorious Hitler. But I agree that after we have fought in the war, as I believe we will, we will have neither freedom nor prosperity even though we should win. I don't believe a victorious Britain could absorb back into peaceful production all the men and women who have been called up for war duties without bad internal disorder, or that Britain can escape the adoption of those elements of Hitlerism which are socialistic. It is idle and baffling to try to foresee the future, but it is just as futile to beleive that, after this war, either Britain or this country will resume the familiar ways of freedom for which we think the British are fighting. In fact, in this country, long before the war began, we were inching along toward compulsion and restrictions on the people and confiscation of property.

What, then, would be the sense of fighting at all? The answer is that Hitler's treatment of the Poles has shown what we could expect from a victorious Germany, whereas if he is put down we make our own future, whatever that may be. And I don't forget that Hitler and the German nation made this war and that their ambition to rule the world is the challenge which makes it necessary for relatively free peoples to fight. It is not a choice of President Roosevelt or Churchill. This is the German war of conquest, and we don't know the limit of Nazi ambition.

But, like the bridge which rocked itself down at Tacoma, we are losing our equilibrium in this debate over the position of Lindbergh and Wheeler. The intelligent phase of the discussion apparently has left most of the people convinced that Lindbergh and Wheeler are sincerely mistaken. But a few loud members of what might now reasonably be called the war party have been dealing in dirty personalities and aspersions on the courage of men whose bravery is permanently established. And the principal source of this hystirical abuse is a spring or sewer from which pollution has been flowing into our journalism and radio entertainment, and thus into our national character, in a steady stream for years.

That contamination now is apparent on almost every page and in the most casual conversations and in the Government, too. It will be a sad day for American freedom when honest, intelligent discussion is howled down by mere clamor not unlike the voice of Dr. Goebbels.

Frederick Acts To Remove Peril

Frederick, Md., May 7 (AP).—The city, acting under a municipal ordinance through Contractor Thomas J. Crum, today began work to "make safe" the fire-swept Central Trust Co. building.

Falling glass from shattered windows in the building narrowly missed workmen bracing the walls. The announced plan is to tie outer walls together with wooden trestles to make them safe, in the opinion of the city, when debris is removed from the second floor.

City Engineer W. Raymond Walter authorized the action when owners failed to comply with a ten-day notice. The aldermen awarded the contract to Crum at a meeting last week.

Straws In The Wind

THE PRESIDENT'S approval of the new bomber program was a step far more positive and significant than his order for the Atlantic patrol, his release of additional merchant ships for the British, or any of the other ineffectual half-measures which have recently been the order of the day.

ALSOP

For if the President meant what he said in his letter asking Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson to expand bomber output, he has at last half-consented to an end to "business-as-usual." There is some dispute as to whether he really did mean what he said. The degree of civilian sacrifice to be required to produce the bombers remains to be settled between the War Department and the Office of Production Management. The allotment of first priority to bomber or shipping production must be fought out between the War and Navy Departments. These issues do not seem to have been squarely faced in the protracted White House conferences that preceded the President's move.

YET BY ordering the bomber program, the President has taken the first step along a road which can only have one end. If the bombers are to be turned out in time, civilian sacrifices must be very considerable indeed, in automobiles and other lines of heavy consumers' goods. And the Navy must relinquish its present first call on all raw materials and semi-finished products unless the bomber squadrons desperately needed now are to wait on a two-ocean fleet that cannot be finished until 1946. These things being so, and the President having openly acknowledged the need for the bombers, he can hardly draw back.

The fact that the bomber program has at last gone through is evidence that able men, with some notion of the scope and character of the problems confronting them, can always get a job done in the end. When Robert A. Lovett and John McCloy were brought into the War Department about Christmas time from a New York bank and law office the prospects were dark indeed. Before they had been in the department two weeks they grasped the obvious inadequacy of the air program. They sensed its weakness in bomber schedules. And they realized that the heart of the difficulty was planning wrong end to, by contracting for finished goods rather than expanding the facilities for making finished goods.

They immediately prepared a revision of the air program, with particular emphasis on expansion of facilities for the increased bomber output it was already clear Britain would desperately need. Their revision was in form for a decision within a few weeks. But first the various obstacles in their path had to be surmounted.

THE OBSTACLES were so numerous that their position seemed hopeless for a time. The Air Corps was then disorganized, and in subjection to the ground officers in the Army bureaucracy. The Army itself had to be won over. The OPM and the Army divided authority over the air program, and the high officials of the OPM, among them William S. Knudsen, were disinclined to believe that the air program was inadequate. Furthermore, the doctrine was current at the OPM that the job could not be done, and to this argument was added the argument that it did not need to be done. The President was beset by conflicting advice from all these sources, and had only the words of Lovett and McCloy that bold and difficult steps must be atken. It is hardly to be wondered at that he deferred a decision until his advisers could be somewhat more unanimous.

One by one, however, the obstacles were cleared away. First the Army approval was obtained. Then Lovett and McCloy achieved increased influence by their appointments as Assistant Secretaries of War. Then the division of authority between the OPM and Army was largely resolved in the Army's favor, by a quiet assumption by Lovett of the responsibility the OPM seemed too timid to use. Finally, the OPM argument that "it could not be done" was met by documented evidence to the contrary, including a showing that the machine-tool plants would be able to meet the new program's requirements. Thus, in the end, the problem went to the President again, and the second application was successful.

AS WAS NOTED above, certain questions remain to be settled before the bomber program can go through at full speed. Nevertheless the President's reluctance to go the whole hog all at once does not diminish the significance of the new step. Furthermore, other signs of a changing atmosphere have also become visible of late. One was the order to pool all available machine tools, taking them from civilian purposes and converting them to defense uses wherever possible. Under consideration for six months, this order was not issued because of the civilian sacrifices it entailed. Its eventual issuance was another indication that the period of business-as-usual is drawing to a close.

KINTNER

Then, too, there was the magnificent speech on Tuesday from Lovett's and McCloy's chief, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson. Secretary Stimson told the people the blunt and disagreeable truth, in blunter and more understandable terms, than they have ever heard it before. The speech was made at the urging of the President, who has asked all members of his Cabinet to speak out whenever possible to educate public opinion. And it was approved in detail by him.

THESE ARE no more than straws in the wind, to be sure. The bomber program, the machine tool order, the Stimson speech—such things as these do not insure final fact-finding and fact-disclosing by the President. But if the wind is blowing as they indicated, then perhaps the time of fact-facing and fact-disclosing is not so far off as these last stagnant weeks in Washington have made it seem.

The Once Over

Papers of Private Purkey

Dear Ma:

This is to let you know I reached the new camp in good condishun in fact in better condishun than ever on account of we made the trip by train and my feet got a rest. It was a two day trip so I got a relief from all inspeckshuns, vaccinashuns, intelligents tests and kitchen police work two. It sure was a rough railroad though and I got bumped around so I thought maybe I was in a tank again. We didn't smash through no farmhouses or barns or hit any trees on the trip though so I knew we couldn't really be in no tank.

It would have been a swell trip accept Sergeant Mooney was still with us and he kept trying to think of work for us to do. He seamed to be very unhappy that there was no potatus in our coach he could make me peel and he kept staring at me like he was about to order me to crub the coach seats with soap and water, pick up all butts and papers from the aisles or dig a hole in the bottom of the train or sumthing.

On the train we got a newspaper with pitchers of the first of them new 25-ton tanks turned out by the Chrysler company and the verdick was that it was a well job, the general shape being not much different from them funny Chryslers of six or seven years ago what was shaped the same coming and going. Our old car was a Chrysler and if I get put in one of them new tanks I won't feel so strange becuz I had experience with this make auto altho personly I would like a Buick tank on account I am parshul to Buicks. One of the boys in my company whose folks have money and everything says he don't want no part of no tanks until he gets a Cadillac.

Well we are being the arsenal of the democrats by daylight saving time now witch gives us more time to wish we was out of the army and back home where we could really use the daylight for more fun like going down to Coney or taking a ride in the park with some nice girl like Nellie Dimmock. By the way I wrote her but got no answer. In the army daylight saving don't seam to make mutch difference becauze there is just more time to sit around and think how tired I am. And as long as there is any daylight the sergeant will always find some work for a jeep to do. You are not safe from no sergeant until it is too dark for him to find you.

This new camp is unfinished bizness like most draft camps and it looks like the contractors had kept changing their minds day by day and maybe started to build it all over again just when they had it almost done. It is full of carpenters witch run around like a lot of sceneshifters and when I see 'em quitting and going home every night it makes me wish I had learnt to be a carpenter. I wood have been a bum carpenter I guess but no worse than some the ones they got building these camps.

War In The Orient

By Vicente A. Pacsis

Tension Intensifies In The Far East

MANILA—ALTHOUGH no one expects any explosion in the Pacific an dSouth Seas in the near future, observers unanimously await a new rapid succession of developments in the raging war of nerves.

Japan, so far, seems to be winning the new war, not to mention her war of arms in China which she seems unable to liquidate. The new war started when the Japanese promted a Thailand-Indo-China sirmish, then forced the combantans to arbitrate at a conference in Tokyo which she fully dominatede. Geographically, the Japanese diplomatic thrust at Indo-China represented a substantial advancement in the much-announced Japanses southward expansion.

Ie was then and only then that the British, the Dutch and the Americans retailiated. The British began frantically to reinforce their garrisons in Singapore, Hongkong and Australia. The Dutch, stronger in their East Indies possessions than in Europe, followed suit. They virtually ignored into closing a Nippon-Dutch economic conference in progress. And their navy, and whatever else could be salvaged of their European war machine that Hitler wrecked, joined the more formidable Dutch colo-

NEARER HOME, and therefore more telling on Nippon nerves, were the activities under American direction in the Philippines. Conferences between the United States High Commissioner and the heads of the American Army and Navy became more frequent. Substantial reinforcements in men and arms came by air, by transports, by commercial ships. More and more, the streets and picture houses and cabarets in and near Manila were swarming with American sailors. American naval units began to appear more frequently and in more formidable strength. And, in the skies, the roar of American planes became almost ceaseless day and night.

The peak of the nerves drive on the democratic side was reached recently when ranking British and Dutch officials converged on Manila to talk coordinated defense with ranking American representatives. One day recently British Air Marshal Sir Robert Brooke-Popham, commander in chief of British forces in the Far East, descended from the sky in a British plane at Manila, to be discovered by the newspapers one day later. A few days after him, E. N. Van Kleffens, Dutch minister of foreign affairs, arrived in Manila. Thereafter, the Manila press began talking of an Anglo-American-Dutch axis.

THE MANILA conferences were held with a backdrop of continuous reports that in the British, Dutch and American possessions there were military and civilian activities calculated to prepare populations for emergency. In Manila, Commissioner Sayre and President Quezon created a civilian emergency administration to direct and control every activity from evacuation to digging up delayed-action bombs. The country was fast being put on a war footing.

It was then that Japan, up to now flabbergasted, scored what appeared to be a decisive victory. Her loquacious, former American servant-boy foreign minister, Yosuke Matsuoka, wangled a neutrality pact from Dictator Stalin. And this after the world democratic press had reported that he received only lukewarm receptions in Rome and Berlin and Moscow.

There was near-consternation in the British and Dutch possessions, observers said. For it was then feared that, having eliminated a potential enemy in her rear, Japan was poised to spread her long overdue coprosperity program to the South Seas at the point of her naval guns. In Manila, the feeling was different: Matsuoka, the articulate guessed, got a dud. Stalin was only egging on Japan to fight the democracies and Japan knew it; therefore, she will be more reluctant to fight than ever.

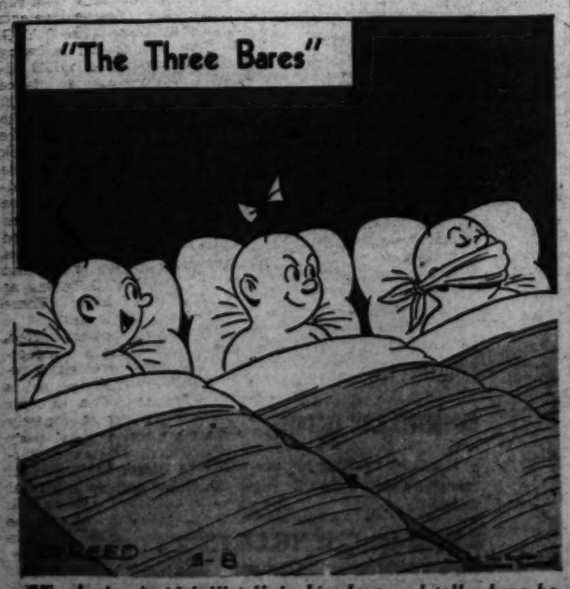

BUT WHETHER America believed this or not, she took another crack at the by-now soothed Japanese nerves. In Manila it was announced that the United States Army would henceforth take over the Philippine national defense program, furnishing leadership and perhaps arms and money. The move virtually gave the United States Army in the Philippines a reinforcement of about 150,000 men, all with a minimum military training of six months. When it is remembered that the American garrison in the islands has always oscillated between 6,000 and 10,000, the new strength really expanded the American Army in the Philippines on a scale much greater than at home.

Japan, however, is not one to fail in the follow-through. Even while American Army transports were unloading unprecedented contingents of troops, the Japanese newspapers pressed the Japanese advantage and began talking of a great war with Japan, Germany and Russia on one side and the United States, Great Britain and China on the other. They guessed that "this war might come before June." Matsuoka returned to Tokyo urging that "we must be quick in action in order to cope with the momentous need of the times." June is very close, of course, and the best authoritative American comment was that "the United States will not go to war before April, 1942."

WHAT AND where the next thrust in the war of nerves will be, nobody can foretell. It is becoming patent, however, that the Philippines have been selected the Far Eastern depot of American assistance to Britain, Netherlands and China. Planes being ferried across the Pacific are now regularly passing here to their various designations in the East which may be Batavia, Singapore or Chungking. It is this new development that Japan may seek to encounter with a diplomatic or military weapon.

Mt. Vernon Juniors Tender Seniors Farewell Banquet

As part of a 61-year tradition, the juniors at Mount Vernon Seminary Tuesday night held a farewell banquet for the graduating class. A gypsy theme dominated the program.

Original songs and music were composed by Jeanne Bradley for the junior class and by the Harmony Group for the seniors. A silver loving cup, presented by the class of '12, was passed around the table to each of the girls as they stood and sang "Auld Lang Syne."

Rites Are Held For Wigginton In Frederick

Special Dispatch to The Post

Winchester, Va., May 7.—Final rites for A. J. Wigginton, 84, for 37 years a deputy sheriff of Frederick County, were conducted this afternoon, the Rev. T. M. Swann officiating. Interment was in Mount Hebron.

Mr. Wigginton, in point of public service, had the longest record of any Frederick County official. He was first appointed to office by Sheriff Clark Purcell, January 4, 1904. He had served continuously ever since.

He is survived by three brothers and a sister.

Edward F. Harlow

Oronge, Va., May 7.—Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Edward Franklin Harlow, 71. Mr. Harlow is survived by his wife, Mrs. Eddie Cook Harlow; a son and a daughter.

Mrs. Emma M. Hazard

Orange, Va., May 7.—Funeral services were held yesterday afternoon for Mrs. Emma Miller Hazard, 59, who died in a Charlottesville hospital. Mrs. Hazard was a Red Cross worker, a member of the Kings Daughters, the Parent-Teacher Association, the Homemakers and other organizations.

Surviving are a son, C. C. Hazard, and a daughter, Mrs. Horace Bartley, and five grandchildren, all of Orange.

11 Ships Out of 369 Lost With Red Cross Aid for British

Loss of $1,056,000 of relief supplies destined for Great Britain was announced Tuesday by Norman H. Davis, chairman of the American Red Cross.

"Of 369 ships carrying 910 consignments of relief supplies to Great Britain, the American Red Cross has only lost cargoes on 11 ships," Davis said.

The value of losses, he stated, represents 9 per cent of the total value of Red Cross relief sent to Britain.

Davis emphasized that no vessels whose cargoes consisted solely of Red Cross materials had been lost and said "only 3 per cent" of the ships having Red Cross supplies as part of their cargoes had been lost.

"The confirmed losses at sea of supplies shipped by the American Red Cross," he said, "have been limited to date to shipments to Great Britain. It has been assumed that one shipment of supplies to Greece valued at $120,000 has been lost, but this report has not been confirmed.

Tydings Opposes Airline Subsidy As 'Extravagance'

By the Associated Press

Battling an Administration request for subsidizing a second transatlantic airmail line, Senator Tydings (Democrat), of Maryland, told the Senate Tuesday that this was an "extravagance" at a time when Congress was "going to bleed the people white with new taxes."

He urged defeat of an $800,000 subsidy to begin a weekly round-trip flight to Europe by American Export Airlines, Inc., subsidiary of American Export Lines, steamship company now operating over the only route open to Europe by way of Lisbon.

Support for the proposed second airline to Europe came chiefly from Senators Hayden (Democrat), of Arizona, and O'Mahoney (Democrat), of Wyoming. They said Pan American Airways already had received more than $90,000,000 in Government subsidies, although the Government had sold less than $40,000,000 in airmail stamps.

Despite the attack by Tydings and others, Administration leaders claimed enough votes to approve the subsidy and send it back to the House which previously had rejected it.

Swiss Ask U. S. Assurance Against Seizure of Ships

Copyright by New York Times

The Swiss government has informed the United States government that it has decided to introduce the Swiss maritime flag for Swiss-owned vessels on the high seas and expects assurances from Washington that vessels carrying its flag will not be seized, commandeered or claimed in any other way in connection with the war.

Basle has been designated as port of registration in conformity with the Declaration of Barcelona of April 20, 1921, by which the right of land-locked nations to carry their national flags on the high seas has been recognized.

German funds in the United States are believed to be camouflaged in some cases as Swiss holdings. Germany has been putting increasing pressure on Switzerland to conform to the "new order." But the Swiss government intends that its to-be-acquired ships will be used only for the "indispensable transportation of raw materials and foodstuffs needed by Switzerland."

Right of Seamen To Strike in Port Upheld by Court

Philadelphia May 7 (AP). — The Third United States Circuit Court of Appeals ruled Tuesday that seamen on merchant vessels have a right to strike while the ships are moored in domestic ports without violating the traditional law of the sea that the master is in supreme command at all times.

The ruling upheld a National Labor Relations Board order directing the Southern Steamship Co. to recognize the C. I. O. National Maritime Union of America as the sole bargaining agent for the company's deck, engine and steward personnel.

Upheld also was the board's order that the company reinstate five men who participated in a sit-down strike on board the City of Fort Worth at Houston, Tex., July 17, 1938.

The company operates between Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico ports.

Cottons Gain Smartness As Popularity Increases

Week Set Aside To Honor Native American Textile

By Jane Driscoll
The Post Fashion Editor.

A SMARTLY tailored dress that will really wash—that is what virtually every Washington woman is seeking these days. Whether Government worker, housewife or society butterfly she is preparing to wear cottons during the summer season.

Throughout the United States, National Cotton Week will be observed May 16-24, inclusive. Newspapers, magazines, radio stations, home demonstration agents and local department stores will all pay tribute to one of the most important and plentiful textile fibers known to man. Local stores will do their part by making available chic outfits of cotton which reached a new peak as a summer fashion favorite.

Go in Best Circles

Women have come to appreciate the easy-to-wear and easy-to-wash qualities of cottons. These dresses are no longer considered quaint and demurely sweet outfits for juvenile parties. They go to dinners, teas, cocktail parties, formal entertainments, as well as to business and sports events.

The American scene will give special impetus to the wearing of cottons this season. From dawn to dusk Americans will be working or vacationing in home territory where it is warm enough to warrant cottons in profusion. Especially in Washington—known for its hot, humid summers—will cotton frocks be appropriate.

For town or country wear, summer cottons will either speak loudly or softly. Among the more subtle color combinations are the crinkled cottons in pin striped suiting. Everybody in the fashion world is talking about them. They have won fame on the grounds that they not only are cool and practical, but also do not show wrinkles.

Seersucker Popular

In addition to the crinkled suiting type fabric, there are new so-called sheer seersuckers that are widely approved. Actually they are either muslin or organdie that has been given a starched finish and an interesting crinkled texture. The idea came from the Swiss who popularized it with their native costume.

Cottons that speak for themselves are the checkered chambrays, Glen plaid seersuckers, flamboyant flowers on unbleached muslin and bold patriotic striped chambrays. In the medium priced bracket the favorite is gingham with emphasis on checks and plaids. There are also all kinds of piques, gabardines and cotton lace in the picture.

Outstanding this summer are sports wear type dresses—the perennial shirtwaist dress fashioned along new svelt lines. They are more casually tailored with fly fronts, set-in or contrasting belts and yokes, stitched-pleat skirts and interesting pocket treatments. Chambray and seersucker stand in first place for lower price dresses and pique in the higher priced group.

A cotton dress, print or plain, is the best bet for a Washington summer. At right is a typical print style of white cotton birdseye pique with colorful vine design. Note its easy to wear flared skirt and convenient side pockets.

If you like your cottons plain, you'll take chambray, such as is shown at left. The adjustable lap-over front makes this type of dress very practical. Made on plain tailored lines, this frock serves as an effective background for the embroidered patriotic emblem. A good type of dress for business wear.

Mature Woman, With Grown Daughter, Is Baffled By Bachelor's Courtship; He Says He Loves Her But Never Mentions Marriage; She Asks Advice

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: For the past year and a half, I have been going with a bachelor who is now 38. He has a good job and no dependents and is going to law school at night, studying very hard for his degree, which he will receive in another year. He doesn't drink or smoke and is everything a woman could wish for. I see him regularly once a week and on holidays. You see, he doesn't have much time for me, but I can always depend upon these dates.

We have confessed our love for each other, but I am always the one to mention it first. I told him once he was hard to understand and he replied that he doesn't understand himself sometimes, and that he finds it difficult to express himself. He seems to take me for granted. I have been married and have two daughters, one of whom is grown and the other now 14.

I am in business for myself and doing rather well, which means that I don't have much time for romance, either, but I am always glad to see him. My real problem is that he has me guessing—by which I mean that he has never mentioned marriage. I wonder if he ever will. I feel he may be waiting until he has finished his law studies—but what do you think? I am very much in love with him, but if I thought he wasn't interested in marrying me, I would give him up. Please give me your opinions at your earliest convenience.

REGULAR READER.

Seasoned Bachelors Fight Shy of Marriage

DEAR R. R.: I daresay the man has no positive intention of marrying you. But on the other hand, it is likely that he hasn't definitely decided against the idea, either. I suppose he hasn't thought much about it, one way or another. However, the fact that he is still a bachelor, at the age of 38, certainly indicates that marriage doesn't particularly appeal to him. And I imagine he drifted into this easy-going alliance with you primarily because you seemed to him to be a woman of independent mind and interests, with more things to think about than merely husband-hunting, which he has probably discovered is the principal pursuit of the erstwhile unwed girl.

It's a toss-up whether you stand to gain or lose by playing along with him for another year or two. Despite the fact that most men like to think of themselves as adventurous creatures, straining on convention's leash, it seems to me they are greater devotees of placid routine than they realize. And I have observed more than one woman, with the patience and wit to "condition" a consciously cautious male to her devoted companionship, over a period of years, eventually maneuver him to the altar. She does it by habituating him so thoroughly to her worshipful ministrations that, finally, he comes to regard marriage to her as the lesser of two evils—the greater evil being the prospect of losing her companionship altogether, after he has learned to take her as much for granted as, say, his right arm.

If you are approximately the man's age, and young and attractive in appearance, and not so much interested in re-marrying (just for the sake of being married), as you are singlemindedly desirous of having this man for husband, it might be worthwhile to treat this as the most important relationship in your life for another couple of years. At the end of that period, if he hasn't proposed marriage, you might say to him, as a friend of mine said to the man who thereupon married her (after a similar courtship): "See here, Henry. We've been going together for years now. It's time for us to reach some decision about the future. We should either get married or stop going together—and I don't much want to do the latter. What do you want to do?" Henry allowed as how he didn't much want to stop seeing the gal, either—so they were wed. And to this day he teases her (but fondly) about having done the proposing, whereupon she retorts that she doesn't care if she did, since it worked out so well.

If, however, you are five or more years older than the man (as the fact that you have a grown daughter suggests that you may be), and if you hav a strong hunch that he isn't "the marrying kind," and if (these two points being true), you are beginning to fret about his noncommittal attitude—it is certainly advisable for you to stop treating him as a potentially permanent investment.

You might go on seeing him once a week, as before—if his occasional company brings more sunshine than melancholy into your life. But you should look facts in the face and evaluate the relationship more as a friendship than a romance, and make a sensible effort to cultivate the interest of other men. In so doing, you will be piling up insurance against heartbreak in your dealings with him—firstly, by avoiding the proverbial mistake of "putting all your eggs in one basket," (and of "counting your chickens before they are hatched;") and, secondly, by letting him see you have no intention of tying yourself down to him if he doesn't care enough for you to marry you: an attitude, by the way, that will elicit a proposal from him if it is in the cards—particularly if you bring a rival suitor or two into the picture, in the next few months.

Hats Flattering For 1st Time in 10 Years, Expert Says

Hollywood—"Because women's hats are flattering for the first time in 10 years," Milo Anderson, best known for his adeptness in creating lovely period gowns for the screen, is genuinely interested in designing ultra-modern hats this spring. The Warner Bros. stylist suggests:

Very wide, floppy - brimmed shapes worn with printed frocks, and the larger the design the larger the hat to balance it. Felts in both willful and gentle shades, basic-toned milans, starched white and tinted piques and huge tailored organdie hats to wear with streamlined suits. All-flowered chapeaux to dress up suits or monotone frocks.

Milo warns against "outfits" that look like outfits. "If you've a gold eagle or an anchor or your sleeve, eliminate the emblem on your hat," is his counsel.

New Fabric Makes Better Slip Covers

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

Slip covers of the future probably will all be made of two-way stretch fabrics that fit as snugly as the you-know-whats which were also improved by this wonderful new modern fabric. For not only are fabrics being constantly developed but it looks as though slip covers were going to envelop most of our world before they're out of ideas.

Picture frames and mirror frames are being gayly slip-covered this season—the fitting being done by means of zippers inserted diagonally in the corner seams. Waste baskets look very devilish with slip covers—so do lamp shades and cornices that finish the top of windows.

Slip-covered tables are smart as well as novel. Make them with a fitted top and a short box pleated apron or with a circular skirt to the floor. This idea is charming for big tables as well as little tables—we saw a tier table with each shelf slip covered with a round flat chintz top made with a hole in the center and a placket. Another fresh and pretty effect was achieved by slip covering the top of a low round tea table with flowered chintz finished with a 6-inch hang-over ruffle of plain chintz.

Slip-covered walls are achieved by zipping, hooking or tacking a figured fabric to one or two walls of a plain colored room. Slip-covered fire screens are cheerful for summer, too—as are slip-covered chests, headboards for beds and slip-covered radiators.

With the proper directions, slip covers are easy to toss off, providing you have a good sewing machine and know how to use it and its attachments.

Summer Again Poses Problem Of Getting Tanned

Hollywood.—There's a right way and a wrong way of getting a nicely evened tan this summer.

First of all, don't begin with the grim attitude that you've got to change from white to brown in a week. And don't drench your body in olive oil or any heavy oil unless you want your skin to be seared like a French-fried potato. Use one of the sun-tanning lotions on the market, as these have been chemically analyzed and the special tanning agents in them prevent the burning rays of the sun from penetrating the skin.

Start with five minutes of sun on both sides of the body the first day, then build up gradually, adding three minutes each day. Never take over 20 minutes on each side at any time.

Even Ida Lupino, who is allergic to too much sun, has found that this gradual method of getting a tan doesn't harm her thin skin or her health. Ida prefers the 10 o'clock sun, for its rays are less penetrating. While work in "The Gentle People" is prohibiting a regular sun bath.

Priscilla Lane Disregards All Dress Taboos

Hollywood, Calif. — Priscilla Lane flouts all taboos directed at girls of small proportions by wearing every and any style designed for her more Junoesque sisters. Priscilla merely adapts them by "clever tricks" to her own height, which is a pretty five-feet-two.

'Tis said that a shorty should never wear a pancake sailor lest she shrink like Alice in Wonderland. But Priscilla gets around this ban by tying frothy veiling under her chin and in a perky crown bow, or by decorating her hats with flowers that add 3 inches to her height.

Another "don't" leveled at the diminutive miss regards the wearing of contrasting blouses and skirts. This proved an easy one for Priscilla.

Learn to Write Clever Letters

THE POOR letters you've written—how they can haunt you! Jim, you're sure, thought your note a bore. Your fastidious new friend, Sue, must have found dozens of crude mistakes. But what can you do about your letters if you just aren't a "writer"?

Lots! A touch here and a touch there—and your letters would sparkle with personality.

Did you start your note to Jim with an apology—"Meant to write sooner?" That's something you never, never do. Begin with a big smile: "Hurray for your nice newsy letter. I've read it FOUR times!"

Then did you peter off after the first paragraph or two, just try to fill space until the end of the page? Even the smallest tidbit will sound exciting if you say things vividly: "Some more of these spring days and I'll be like Toby the cat—just a-settin' in the sun all day!"

And even the most fastidious friend will be impressed when you've checked up on letter etiquette.

Woman Holding Sedentary Job Should Combat 'Settled' Look

By Ida Jean Kain

IT ISN'T ALWAYS vanity when a woman attempts to hide the fact that she is growing old. With the hard-working business woman, it's more apt to be the instinct for self-preservation that prompts her to try to forget a few birthdays.

The sad part of it is that when you have a sedentary job you are forced to work after hours to keep from getting a middleaged figure. Sitting has a decidedly settling effect. Unless it is counteracted, you lose your suppleness and bounce—you not only look stodgy, you feel it.

One of the best investments you could make would be to buy a stretching bar. Just a few minutes of stretching bar exercises for the waist, stomach and hips, every day, is guaranteed to keep you slim and supple and feeling fit.

Start Off Easy

Have the rod low enough in the doorway that it can be grasped with the hands when standing on tiptoes in the bare feet.

Start off with the easy exercise of grasping the bar while standing on toes, then pushing down with the heels in an attempt to stand flat-footed. That pulls your waist out slim.

Then hang on the bar with hands shoulder-width apart, feet just clearing the floor, and swing from side to side at the hips with legs held together like a pendulum.

After that, relax for a full minute.

When you are ready to go on with your stretching, hang on the bar and flex alternate knees up toward the chest—that's to strengthen your abdominal girdle and give you a nice flat front line.

Pull your waistline slim again by standing close to one side of the doorway with hands and feet in line, and sagging sideward as far as possible. Repeat two or three times, then try it to the other side. You should be able to increase this sideward arc of the body as time goes on.

Kicking Good, Too

Another sure-fire exercise is to stretch and kick at the same time. Grasp the bar and swing the right leg up in front and away up in back in a rhythmic count. Rest, then swing the other leg. Begin with just 25 counts for each leg and gradually add to the number until you are doing 100 counts in all.

You will like working out on a bar of this kind. Besides giving you a firm, slim midriff it pulls you out of a posture slump, tones the pectoral muscles supporting the bust, and straightens the shoulders. There's nothing to beat it for keeping you young.

Actress Tells How To Eliminate That Tired Look

Hollywood, Calif.—Ask a screen actress for her secret of beauty and she'll usually say she isn't beautiful and hasn't any special regimen for beauty. But you'll discover, with a little prying, that she does, like every other girl in the world, have a few dependable tricks. Persuaded to discuss the subject, Geraldine Fitzgerald had this to say:

"Have you noticed how, after a day of hard work or several hours of nervous tension, your face shows the strain? Either the muscles about the mouth tighten or very fine lines appear so that this feature, which should be the most beautiful of all because it is the easiest to guide in the paths of beauty, involuntarily becomes the keynote to your mental weariness.

"I counteract this condition just as soon as I get home, before the expression of strain deepens and mars my appearance. I first cleanse my face with a bland soap and water, then with a good cream, removed with tissues or soft clothes dipped in rosewater.

"After applying a heavier cream, I lie down in a comfortable position for a facial massage. The best massage I've found was that taught me by Perc Westmore, head of the makeup department at Warner Bros. In includes these movements:

"Place the middle fingers of both hands at the corners of the mouth and rub gently upward in large rotary strokes. To relax the eyes, place four fingers over the closed lids and stroke outward and up over the temples. Repeated over and over, these movements will do wonders toward soothing the nerves and giving the mouth a happy, healthy upward curve."

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Those 'Good Old Days' Were Pretty Spurious

Modern Public Doesn't Know What It Missed; First Big-Time Show for the Army Tonight; This, That and the Other About the Theater

THIS IS THE SEASON OF THE YEAR when the old-timers among the observers of the cinema remember when. There are, of course, many among the present generation who will not be able to, but there still are a few who can. It takes a little going back—20 years or so, at least.

BELL

There was a bit of subterfuge, circumlocution and one or another of many deceptive blandishments held out to the public in those "good old days." What I mean is that when the spring and early summer temperatures began to mount and the lure of the outdoors grew constantly more potent, the motion picture exhibitors became more and more worried about what might happen to the box-office during the heated term. Something always did and usually it was recorded in red ink. The trouble was in that B. C. (Before Conditioning) era, that the motion picture theaters of the Capital were sweat boxes—unless you knew where the exhaust fans were placed and were canny enough to choose a seat in the particular strip of the given theater where an artificial breeze blew.

It was customary, under the circumstances, to place on the summer screens only the pictures least liable to exert an urgent mass appeal. Nobody would attend, anyway, so why waste the good ones? They always were held for the fall trade, beginning with the Labor Day holiday.

All of this, naturally, would have no point were it not for the fact that things are so different today. When the weather gets hot—and, the Chamber of Commerce to the contrary, notwithstanding, Washington can get hotter than the inside hinges—the motion picture theaters, with their modern refrigeration plants, are the only consistently reliable places in which a person can cool off. And instead of the worst pictures of the year, one is apt to see the best. That old "hold 'em back 'til fall" business long since has been heaved into the ashcan. July is as good an January on the screen these days.

So, up to now, you have thought this merely a build-up for the announcement of a long list of sterling attractions coming along to local screens during the summer months. It is no such thing. That chore has been pretty well attended to—I hope—already. A veteran of those spurious "good old days" just happened to remember how much more fortunate the present public is and, bereft of other inspiration, thought he would sound off about it.

Soldiers to See Great Show

One of the most distinguished figures in the American theater, who modestly wishes to remain anonymous, drops a personal note to say that the first experimental Army camp show will be given at Fort Belvoir, Va., tonight at 8. The performance will be out of doors and no admission charge will be levied. And look what will be presented free! The company will consist of Ed Wynn, among the greatest of the contemporary buffoons; Jane Froman, famous singing star; Betty Bruce, one of the most talented of the tap dancers; the La Varres, acrobats from Ed Wynn's "Boys and Girls Together," and eight beautiful girls—count 'em, eight. All of these patriotically have volunteered their services. There may be as many as 10,000 men present, together with representatives of the War and Navy Departments. The Army Band will play for community singing before the first "curtain." Ed Wynn and his company will arrive in Washington at 2:30 this afternoon, with our old friend "Bill" Fields as official escort. The show will be repeated Friday night at Camp Meade, under the auspices of the Citizens Committee for the Army and Navy.

With one of the most successful Washington seasons in its history just completed, the Theater Guild-American Theater Society is active in preparation for the new subscription season opening in the National Theater next autumn. Subscribers will receive their renewal blanks within the next few days and are exhorted to remit their orders and checks for next season at the earliest possible moment. An enormous waiting list of new customers already is on file in the office of Sales Manager Bess Davis Schreiner, in the National, and those desirous of continuing their favorite seat locations had best get about it promptly.

When that horrendous Hoosier, Joe Cook, hurls a midnight fiesta, he really tosses a banquet. We will get around in due course to an adequate appraisal of the rout Joe heaved in the Lincoln Cafe, with Father Hartke, his Harlequins, functionaries from the Earle and members of the press as his guests. The chef evidently got hold of the "Cook Book."

Even Rose Melville Would Have Recogn ized This One!

JUDY CANOVA as she will be seen in the title role of Republic's picturization of "Sis Hopkins," opening tomorrow on the screen at the Metropolitan Theater. While this is a reasonably accurate modernization of the role played so many years on the stage by Rose Melville, there are other sequences in the picture that will come as a surprise to those who remember "Sis Hopkins" as a bucolic item of perennial appeal

In Hollywood

—With Hedda Hopper

Hollywood, May 2.

With all this talk of freedom going on, it's no secret that everybody wants to be free. It's also widely known that some actors, either because they have personal beliefs or want publicity, go in for all sorts of causes.

HOPPER

But just why Orson Welles and Melvyn Douglas want to stick their necks out and sign a petition deploring the deportation of Harry Bridges will forever be a mystery to me. Whether Harry Bridges should be deported or not is up to the United States Government. There's a suit going on about it. But when you're before the public in a glorified position, you have a duty to perform to that public. And whether Melvyn Douglas or Orson Welles are right or whether they're just making an error in judgment, it's bound to do both of them a great deal of harm. What do you think, public?

I hate to see fine comics like Abbott and Costello lose their sense of proportion after one picture hit. Sure, "Buck Privates" is a knockout. It's got the country roaring. But it takes more than one hit to make a big shot in Hollywood. Both the boys are building houses with swimming pools, and I hear tell that Costello now is not too pleased with Abbott as a straight man. They're working hand in glove together, and it's just too bad if they can't continue that way. Too bad when actors go off the deep end.

Now that the Jack Warners have made up, the rumor is it wasn't a separation—just a suspension . . . Wonder why Norma Shearer refuses to go into Metro's publicity department. Howard Strickling and the boys have been pretty wonderful to her through the years.

Greg Bautzer and Dottie Lamour are deep in the throes of "will we" or "won't we" be married before the Army snaffles him up a month hence.

Producer Bill Stephens and Murray Silverstone are trying to buy the radio show "We the People" to put on the screen . . . Liza Wilson, now that she's dropped 50 pounds, may drive east with Nancy Carroll and visit Liz Whitney in Virginia . . . Lucille Ball denies that she and Desi Arnaz are heir-expecting.

The S. S. America is unhappy over that "Sea Wolf" expedition to San Francisco, because the seasick actors got so much publicity that over 200 would-be travelers cancelled their reservations.

Through a fan letter Director Rheinhold Schunzel heard about a Polish stage play running in Cleveland, based on the life of Gen. Osciusko. He liked what he read, went on to see it and bought the film rights.

Little publicized is the friendship between Greta Garbo and Charles Bickford who worked together in "Anna Christie." Says Charlie, "She has a grand sense of humor." I can ditto that sentiment, Charlie, because we laughed our way through her picture "As You Desire Me," and she not only appreciates a good yarn, but tells many.

For years we've boasted of the discoveries Rudy Vallee made on his air show, like Charlie McCarthy, Bob Burns, Alice Faye, the late Joe Penner, Burns and Allen, Frances Langford, Tommy Riggs and "Betty Lou." But to my way of thinking, the greatest discovery of them all is Jack Barrymore, when everybody said Jack was washed up. Well, if what he does with Rudy is being washed up, I'd like to bathe in the same pool.

Seven-month-old John Scott Weissmuller thinks his mamma is a big sissy! The other day Johnny, sr., took his offspring for a swim—papa churning along underwater and baby scooting along on top of him—when mamma strolled into the scene, took one look and passed out cold! At that, you can hardly blame her—this teaming up with Tarzan must be quite a strain.

Louella O. Parsons'

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, May 7 (NS).—"Jawn" Barrymore is himself again. When he was asked by Hal Wallis to make a test for "The Man Who Came to Dinner," he answered with a characteristic Barrymore letter which said: "The character is low-down, vicious, malicious, nauseating—but in due modesty, I think I am best qualified to play the old reprobate."

PARSONS

I agree with Jawn, not because the man in the wheelchair is all the things he says—but I believe Barrymore is such a good actor that he will be just as good as Monty Wooly, who created the role on the New York stage. Clifton Webb did very well, too, in the Chicago company.

You will admit that Phil Barry did nobly by Katharine Hepburn in "Philadelphia Story," both on the stage and screen. So it isn't in the least surprising that he has written an original screen play for her. Katie gets back to Hollywood in July and negotiations are now going on for her to be starred in the Barry original for M.-G.-M. She won't be seeing the boy friend, Garson Kanin, when she gets here for he leaves for the Army June 1, having been drafted.

Roland Young is back from New Orleans and he says never has he had such a warm, cordial reception. He went with Joe Pasternak and Bruce Cabot for the opening of "The Flame of New Orleans" and he tells me that the city lived up to its reputation for real Southern hospitality. They were all received with bands, parades and were entertained at clubs and at many of the fine, old homes. The theater was so packed that they had to put chairs in the aisles. By the way, the reported engagement of Roland and Buff Cobb is just that—a report. They are merely good friends.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random: Townsend Netcher dining with the very pretty Bonnie Edwards at Mike Romanoff's. Joe Schenck, on his way to the country, stopped in Romanoff's with Sid Grauman and a few friends. The reception Joe received must have warmed his heart for it seemed that everyone wanted to welcome him home; Ronald Colman, so 'tis said in real estate circles, has bought the swank Grosvenor Apartment House in Beverly Hills.

Ken Murray with his former flame, Cletus Caldwell, at the House of Murphy. Wonder what happened to Cletus and Rudy Vallee, who have been so devoted? John Carroll and Virginia Hill, a Southern belle, at the Rhum-Boogie; Nelson Eddy is making daily personal appearances in court during the lawsuit brought against his stepson, Sydney Franklin, jr., for an automobile accident almost at my front door; George Raft is financing Mack Grey, his bodyguard, known as the killer, in a night club to be called the Copa Cabana.

Simone Simon at the Scheherazade with Al Bloomingdale, her New York boy friend; Mitzi Green and Dan Dailey, jr., dining tete-a-tete at Leone's; Bill Lundigan has made a date to part with his tonsils; the Alan Tomblins are not getting along these days as well as their friends wish; Bette Davis' groom, Arthur Farnsworth, who was a former flier, hosted a party at the It Cafe with Jimmie Mattern, famous around-the-world aviator. A group of twelve quiet birdmen were the guests.

That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Gift for Starlet's Just Like Mother's

From now on Virginia Weidler and her mother aren't going to keep secrets from each other.

Mrs. Weidler and Virginia were looking in a jeweler's window a few days before Virginia's birthday, when Mrs. Weidler, seeing a gold wrist watch, told her daughter it was the most beautiful one in the window. Virginia agreed.

The next morning Mrs. Weidler sneaked away from the set of "I'll Wait for You" while Virginia was working in a scene, and bought the watch for her daughter. A few hours later, Virginia made some excuse to leave, and bought its twin to surprise her mother.

Leonard Lyons:

New York, May 7.

PRACTICE—During the President's recent Caribbean cruise his aide, "Pa" Watson, made a $5 wager with Secretary of the Interior Harold Ickes. Watson designated another passenger, Attorney General Bob Jackson, as his stakeholder and representative . . . When they all returned to Washington, Ickes conceded that he had lost the bet. The triumphant Watson thereupon asked Jackson to deliver the stake— which the Attorney General did, plus a bill "For Legal Services Rendered—$100" . . . Watson showed this to the President, who said: "We will now write a letter to the Solicitor General, Francis Biddle, tell him the facts—and accuse Bob Jackson of engaging in the private practice of law while Attorney General of the United States.

LYONS

THE LETTER to Biddle was dispatched. And at the next cabinet meeting the President told the assemblage: "I hereby accuse Bob Jackson of practicing law on the side" . . . The attorney general arose and assured his colleagues that Solicitor General Biddle had checked the statutes and found that there is nothing in the law books which prohibit the attorney general from engaging in the private practice of law. Furthermore—when Biddle sent this report to "Pa" Watson he enclosed another bill: "For Legal Services Rendered —$100."

PRICE—James Cannon, the writer, is going into the Army this month. He told this to a bandleader who often has been penalized by the Musicians Union for accepting employment at a salary less than union scale . . . "Well, I'm going into the Army for $21 a month," Cannon told the bandleader—who replied: "Me, too. I've been called also. That means I'll be working for $21 a month" . . . "If you do," said Cannon, "It'll be the first time you're working for scale."

PLEA—Friday night, Donald Ogden Stewart attended a party. He mounted a chair—preparing to make a political speech. In a rear room, where the bar had been set up, some of the guests were talking . . . Stewart asked for silence and then shouted to that rear room: "Will the boys in the back room see what I'll have?"

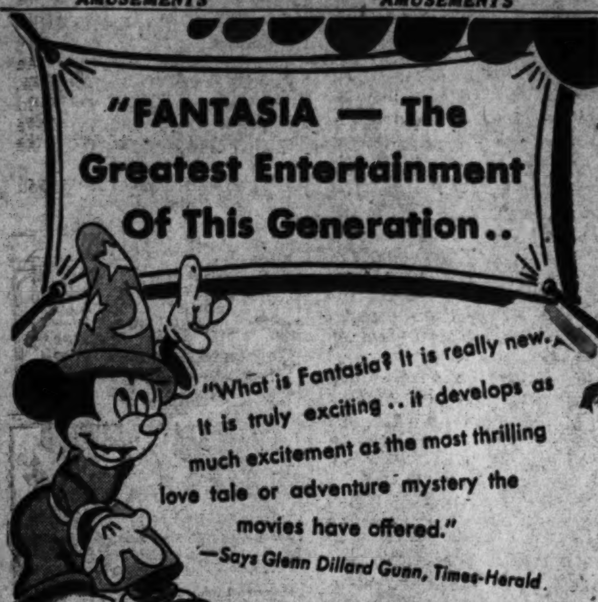

CHANGE: Last year the Italian government issued a series of new postage stamps. The faces of Hitler and Mussolini, together appeared on those stamps . . . Recently, they were ordered withdrawn from sale, in Italy's poorer sections—because the people using these stamps were spitting on the wrong side.

DISAPPOINTMENT: At Fefe's Monte Carlo, Mrs. Gilbert Miller, Lady Mendl and Mrs. Byron Foy watched the featured attraction—the three strip teasers who perform there . . . Fefe heard that the eminent ladies were not quite pleased . . . "Didn't you like our strip-teasers?" he asked . . . "The trouble with them is," Mrs. Miller explained, "we aren't embarrassed enough."

RETURN: Mathea Marryfield, who does the nude "Champagne Dance," returned to this country on the S. S. Excalibur Monday, and told these stories, at Leon and Eddie's . . . In Rome, she was invited to entertain at the home of Princess del Drago. One of the guests later told her: "I expressly asked that you be invited. I'm in mourning, and so I couldn't go to the theater to see you." The dancer replied: "My dear sir, why not come to Milano next week and see me there? No one will know you." She later learned that the man was Il Duce's son-in-law, Ciano . . . Mathea did her nude dance in Sweden. And once, in Gothenberg, she was told that King Gustav would attend. And so after her performance, for the first time in Scandinavian history, a nude brunette, in full view of the audience, curtsied before a King.

HEIGHT: Primo Carnera, the monstrous heavyweight, worked as a stooge in Miss Merryfield's act, when she toured Italy. Primo's contract had a special clause, in which it was agreed that the sensitive Carnera would not be teased about his height . . . That clause was adhered to most literally. For Primo saw no humor in the fight in which he had to engage, at each performance—with the 4 foot comic of the troupe.

Mystery Yarn Of First Rank At the Little

By Richard L. Coe

Once before—in "Night Train"—Star Margaret Lockwood and Director Carol Reed collaborated with stunning effect. Now they have returned to the Little screen in another British film, "The Girl in the News," a superbly contrived drama of circumstantial evidence which proves their "Night Train" success was no fluke.

"The Girl in the News" is not concerned with the exciting derring-do of espionage; the war, obviously the early part of it, is an unimportant detail in her story. By the merest chance she is accused of one murder; the cunning of a coldly assured killer turns the finger of Fate toward her in another. Her story is intensely clear to an audience; its writhing suspense comes from the terrible conclusions that enmesh her.

Miss Lockwood plays a nurse whose elderly employer has a penchant for sleeping tablets. When she takes too many of them after willing a goodly heritage to the nurse, a very nearly conclusive case is worked out against her. But not quite. Having difficulty in getting a place after her acquittal, she is relieved to receive a marked newspaper circling an advertisement which would be the very thing for her. She gets the job under an assumed name, without a hitch, and very shortly is an affectionately regarded member of her employer's household. He is an attractive, wealthy invalid of middle age. With only the barest of hints we learn that his beautiful wife and somber butler have a dark plan for his future. The patient dies from an overdose of sleeping tablets.

Author's and Director's Triumph

Fortunately, Nurse Lockwood has an able lawyer who believes in her. It is through him her first acquittal was accomplished, more for himself than for her, to be sure. This always credible association brings conviction to what might otherwise have been merely happy coincidence.

Admirable as the cast is, it is difficult to see how both author and director can fail to receive chief credit for making "The Girl in the News" the superbly engrossing tale it is. As Mrs. Roosevelt posed the question of circumstantial evidence during the Hauptman trial, so this new film accomplishes the same thing—with far more conviction. Reed's directional flavor is tightly drawn, too, employing slight touches for telling effects.

Implication of the hitherto unsuspected nurse is evolved silently and quickly when the victim's wheelchair is found to be too large to enter the room where the fateful tablets were kept. Hidden behind a door in the darkness, the nurse hears her case swiftly analyzed by her supporter's closest pal.

Besides Miss Lockwood as the nurse (she is used to long-suffering from "The Lady Vanishes" and "Night Train"), there is an elegant portrait of silent evil from Emlyn Williams, who wrote "Night Must Fall" and, as autobiography "The Corn Is Green." He is the conniving butler and a more studied bad man you're not likely to find. Barry K. Branes is the able attorney, pleasantly efficient. Another chap you'll recognize but may not place, is Basil Radford as the serious doctor. He was one of the cricket chaps in "The Lady Vanishes" and "Night Train."

THERE'S a rule for your guidance you may not find in the copybooks—but that doesn't subtract one whit from its truth.

Because when you buy a new car this spring you want one that will see you through many a summer.

So while you're trading it's good sense to trade up—up to something solidly good through and through.

Trade up, for instance, to the FIREBALL power of Buick's more efficient valve-in-head straight-eight.

Trade up to the thrift of Compound Carburetion† — exclusively Buick's, and as much as 10% to 15% more economical of gasoline than last year.

Trade up to a splendiferous big Body by Fisher—to Buick's all-coil springing that is forever cushiony yet forever free from service attention—to stout, ride-steadying torque-tube drive with nothing about it to go wrong.

Buick's bodies are roomier, its frames huskier—its steering gears go three to four times as long without adjustment and its main bearings have half-again the service life in them.

Sikorsky Breaks Helicopter Mark In Own Machine

Stratford, Conn., May 7 (AP).—Igor I. Sikorsky walked nonchalantly out on a meadow today, strapped himself into a machine of his own design and broke the world's helicopter endurance record of 1 hour and 20 minutes by 12 minutes and 25 seconds without reaching an altitude of more than 30 feet.

Most of the time the famous plane designer's craft, resembling a huge dragon fly over a field, remained suspended about 4 feet above the ground. Once or twice it reached a low level of less than 2 feet.

The heliocopter left the ground in vertical flight at 12:16.30 p. m. (E. S. T.), broke the record of 1 hour 20 minutes and 40 seconds established by Heinrich Focke, of Germany, in 1937 at 1:37 p. m. and floated softly to the ground before a small, cheering crowd shortly before 2 p. m.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Many of those gnawing, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. These poisons may start nagging backaches, rheumatic pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

London, May 7 (U.P.).—Reports of differences between Marshal Petain of France and Admiral Darlan, his vice premier and political "heir," circulated in British quarters today.

New Ford Plant Will Build 270 Bombers a Month

By the Associated Press

Detroit, May 7.—The Ford Motor Co. is planning to produce 270 bombers a month in the plant it is erecting near Ypsilanti, Mich., probably half of them ready to fly, Charles E. Sorenson, production manager, said yesterday.

Addressing a luncheon of representatives of the British Purchasing Commission, Army and Navy officers and officials of the Office of Production Management, Sorenson said it originally had been planned to build 100 planes monthly, but that this volume now had been increased to 270 a month.

"The Ford Co. will not only build more bombers than we originally planned," he said, "but probably will do some of the assembly operations rather than shipping the parts to the new assembly plants to be erected at Tulsa, Okla., and Fort Worth, Tex.

Our Boots Holds Excellent Preakness Drill

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Detroit, May 7.—They raised the American League pennant over Briggs Stadium today, but there was no joy in the Tigers' dugout. It was the reminder, merely, of a dear, dead glory. If you've seen a beaten champion return manfully to his corner at the final bell, knowing that he is licked and that his title will pass when all the votes are in, you have an idea of the kinship to today's ceremonies.

POVICH

The Tigers, league champions of 1940, are done, washed up and completely blighted in this year's pennant race. Because early this morning, eight hours before the pennant went aloft on the center field pole, the man who won it for the Tigers was departing with a contingent of 49 other Detroit military draftees to a nearby Army camp. When Hank Greenberg walked out of the Tigers' life for at least a year, he was taking with him the Tigers' pennant hopes.

He leaves the Tigers a hollow shell. They won't miss the 150 runs big Hank drove in last season any more than Hitler would miss his Luftwaffe. Two out of every three of his hits were for extra bases. The strain his presence in the batting order imposed on the enemy pitcher softened up that fellow for Greenberg's Tiger mates. Bluntly, he was the most powerful hitter in baseball.

Manager Del Baker is not tossing up the sponge, of course. He couldn't afford to do that. But Baker probably better described the Tigers' current plight in a brief speech at a farewell party for big Hank the other night. Said Baker: "Nobody's going to take Hank's place on this club. We'll have another outfielder playing in his position, but Greenberg will still have left a vacancy in our outfield."

At that same party, Lefty Gomez paid his tribute to Hank. Gomez, as usual, couldn't suppress a gag. Said the Yankee pitcher: "I suppose you Tigers feel bad about Hank going into the Army, but I'm tickled to death. If you took a vote of the American League pitchers, Hank would be our choice to go into the Army. It would be the biggest load off our minds."

Greenberg Lacked Ruth's Color

Aside from his habit of hitting home runs, there has been little that was Babe Ruthian about Greenberg in his American League career. His homers, like Ruth's, were lusty swats, but Greenberg had none of the tremendous color of Ruth. His was not the picture swing that was Ruth's. The Babe swept the ball into the stands with a rythmic stroke, Hank clubbed it with the power of his arms. Greenberg could look grotesque when he missed a swing, the Babe was merely the picture of power foiled when he struck out. Ruth struck out with a gusto that pleased the fans, Greenberg simply struck out.

But, paradoxically, in his last game for the Tigers before donning an Army uniform, Greenberg did display the Ruthian touch of rising to the occasion and having a Great Moment. Against the Yankees yesterday, Hank was under something of a cloud. He was about to bow out of the league without a 1941 home run to show for his efforts. That it was galling to Greenberg must have been obvious. And then he struck a Ruthian note. He got a 1941 home run. In fact, he got two that afternoon. Like Ruth he was rising to an occasion, at last.

Minus Greenberg, the Tigers are, of course, tapped out as far as the pennant is concerned. They needed his power to win last year and without him they are just another ball club—a first division entry, perhaps—but no longer dynamite. Rudy York is the only remaining home run cylinder on the Detroit team that was modeled on power lines, what with an infield that can't get around. The man who has been assigned to Greenberg's job affords a pretty good tip-off on Manager Del Baker's plight. The new Tigers' left fielder, and the best man available to Baker, is one Ned Harris who hit .312 last year, but in the Texas League. And still plaguing the Tigers is, of course, Clark Griffith's no-trade ban against league champions that forbids them to buy or trade for accredited big league talent.

Three pennants have befallen Detroit teams since Greenberg landed a regular job with the Tigers in 1934, and he has been the greatest single factor in them all. But the blunt truth is that the Detroit club all but missed out on this star because of a front-office error back in 1929 when they signed him off the New York lots.

Called 'Impossible' at First

The Detroit front-office under the regime of the late Frank Navin made the mistake of signing the big fellow to a Detroit contract, rather than to the contract of one of their farm teams. Had Greenberg been signed to a farm contract, they would have had as many as seven years in which to develop him. As it was, the Detroit club was limited to three years of experiment with Greenberg. During the first two years Hank was the club's property, he was described as "impossible," a fair hitter, but too awkward in the field, and much too slow.

Luckily for the Tigers, Greenberg made the grade in his last year on trial. He did it by the greatest application to the game that any ball player ever made. He was on the field at 10 a. m., begging park employes to hit grounders to him, or importing sandlotters to pitch to him while he batted for hours. Big Hank underwent physical torture to win his job. His flat feet are no myth. There were times when he begged Manager Bucky Harris to take him out of the line-up because his feet hurt, but those times were only when the Tigers were comfortably out in front. Hank spent more time on those tartuous feet than did any of the regulars whose dogs didn't hurt. But eventually he collected the dividends, and the Army seems to have collected a pretty nice sort of soldier-in-the-making.

Re "Grudge" Fights

New York, May 7.—Ordinarily, any boxing fan who believes a grude-fight story is a hopeless sap. The better ballyhoo artists like Harry Markson, of Mike Jacobs' staff, avoid this old chestnut like smallpox. But now it is our embarrassing duty to tell you that Ken Overlin, the middleweight champion of the world, really hates Billy Soose, the would-be middleweight champion of the world. Or, rather, he hates Soose's manager, Paul Moss. He thinks Paul, who seems to be a harmless sort of fellow to us, put something over on him in Scranton last summer when the judges awarded Soose the verdict in that much discussed non-title fight.

CONSIDINE

Just what this will mean when Ken squares off against Willie Friday night at Madison Square Garden, with Mike Jacobs' world's middleweight championship on the line, remains to be seen. Chris Dundee, Overlin's manager, has been trying to cool off his ordinarily gay gob for several days. Dundee is smart. He knows that hate has very, very little to do with boxing. Boxing is a cold, calculating science that has nothing to do with the more violent passions. He is afraid Ken will "blow his topper."

But Ken won't listen to him. Ken's current ambition, as of press time, is to knock Soose into Moss' lap, to prove, if nothing else, that Sam Goldwyn was right when he said that a rolling Moss gathers the Soose that laid the golden egg. The sight of Ken knocking anybody into anybody's lap is hard to conjure, even after a pack of reefers. That's what is worrying Dundee. He's afraid that Soose, with his excellent left jab, will spear out a decision over the ancient mariner (who is trying to stop one of the three middleweight title claimants) while Ken is trying to dent Billy's chin with an unaccustomed haymaker.

They're Not Novices

The fighters, for all their animus, have two things in common. Each has had more fights than Jiggs and Maggie. They call this Overlin's 139th fight, which is an awful lot, but he's had well over 200. Soose started fighting when he was 15. He had perhaps 200 bootleg-amateur and college fights, before he turned pro. There won't be much slaughter in the ring Friday night, but there isn't likely to be a solitary mistake in the science of boxing. I couldn't possibly pick a winner, a failing which will come as no shock to my vast public.

Few persons seem to know that anger has little to do with the average prize fight. With the possible exception of Schmeling, in the second fight, and perhaps Galento, Joe Louis never really hated an opponent in his life. John Henry Lewis, whom he butchered terribly in the first round, was and is one of his best friends.

Joe cooled him out in a hurry, he told us later, in order to spare him the punishment John would have had to take if the fight had gone five or six rounds. Joe's idea of merciful fending for a friend was to corner him in the manner of a starved tiger and beat him into a drooling pulp in much less time than it takes to hunt and pick these words

Bold Irishman Declared Out Of Big Race

Woodvale Farm's Colt Reels Off Mile Trial In 1:38; Curious Coin Also Works Out

Pimlico, Md., May 7.—A sensational workout by the Woodvale Farms' Our Boots and the withdrawal of Bold Irishman were the principal developments on the Preakness front today. Our Boots, a dismal failure in the Kentucky Derby, took the track between the second and third races and whipped off a mile in 1:38, only three-fifths of a second over the track record. This may or may not have been the reason, but one of the press box's staunchest supporters of Whirlaway at Louisville sent downstairs for a box of aspirin.

Bold Irishman, last in the Survivor, Tuesday's feature, was found to be coughing this morning, which led to his being scratched from Saturday's classic. The consensus of press box opinion was that it probably was a good thing that Bold Irishman was withdrawn because he was going to catch his death of cold Saturday when Whirlway went past him.

While Trainer Steve Judge is still playing peek-a-boo regarding Our Boots starting, he said that the colt "cooled out" in good fashion and he would announce tomorrow as to his going to the post in the Preakness. Although his right front hoof was wrapped in tape at the spot where he is said to have "grabbed" himself in the derby, Our Boots did not favor the leg.

Jockey McCreary Is Up

Jack Conn McCreary, the nation's top rider in winners this year, was in the saddle and Our Boots worked alone. He broke the son of Bull Dog in front of the stands and the colt hugged the rail throughout. Our Boots clicked off the first quarter in 24 1-5, the half in 47 2-5 and the three quarters in 1.11 3-5.

Another Preakness candidate to work out just after Our Boots was Coldstream Stable's Curious Coin, which missed the derby and shipped here from New York to face the colts from the Blue Grass country.

Under a strong rein all the way, Curious Coin worked a mile and a quarter in 2.08. He worked under an exercise boy and went as follows: 1:17 2-5, 1:42 3-5, 1:55 2-5 and 2:08. A stablemate joined Curious Coin at the five-eighth pole and was running beside the Preakness candidate at the wire.

Trainer James Fitzsimmons reported Bold Irishman had a slight fever today.

"He undoubtedly was not himself in the Survivor," the Wheatley Stable conditioner said "and it took the race to bring out the coughing."

Until he confers with Mrs. Henry C. Phipps, the Wheatley Stable owner, Fitzsimmons does not know the status of Choppy Sea in regards to the Preakness.

Dispose in Trial

Max Hirsch arrived from New York and sent the King Ranch's Dispose through his Preakness trial. The Discovery colt displayed his usual order of speed in going a mile in 1:40 2-5. He was timed the half-mile in 0:49 3-5, three-quarters in 1:14 and 7 furlongs in 1:27.

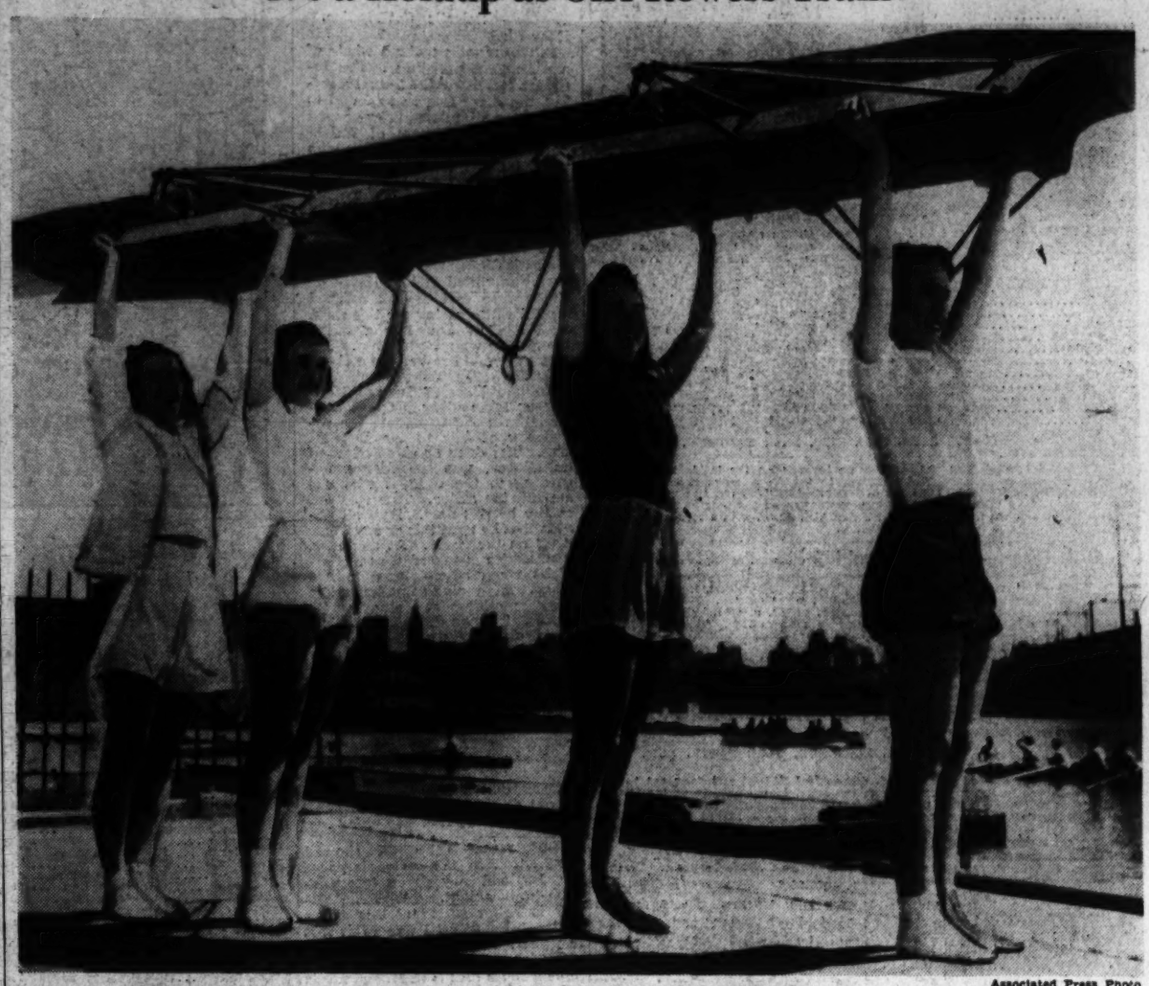

Hirsch had no excuses to offer for his colt's failure in the Derby, but is satisfied Dispose likes the Pimlico track.

"It's in him to spring a surprise," Hirsch said.

Dispose was the only Preakness candidate asked for speed this morning, as Curious Coin waited until the afternoon. All the other likely starters were out for gallops.

J. P. Jones, trainer for Crispin Oglebay, was highly pleased with Ocean Blue's fine performance in winning the Survivor Stakes and said the Blue Larkspur colt was a sure starter. Hal Price Headley's Alaking and Millsdale Stable's Kansas, second and third in the Survivor, are considered only possible starters as their connections reserved comment until later. Another possibility is E. K. Bryson's Cavalier. The probable field follows:

Yankees Beat Tribe; Rosar Gets 3 Hits

By the Associated Press

Cleveland, May 7.—The vaunted pitching which carried the Cleveland Indians to 11 victories in a row before their streak was finally broken yesterday was shattered today by the New York Yankees, who laced out 15 hits and triumphed 7 to 5.

The victory jumped the Yankees from fourth to second in the crowded first division of the American League.

The Indians battled gamely, pounding Marius Russo for 10 hits and putting on a two-run rally in the ninth which ended with the bases loaded. But the young southpaw was effective in the pinches and had the support of three double plays in obtaining his fourth victory.

Private Henry Greenberg Begins Year of Army Service

Star Tiger Player Goes Through Hard Day in Being Inducted at Detroit

By the Associated Press

Fort Custer, Mich., May 7.—Private Henry Greenberg, one of Uncle Sam's $21-a-month men, started his year of military service tonight wishing he could be known merely as No. 36-114-611 instead of the former slugging outfielder of the Detroit Tigers.

The 30-year-old Greenberg, inducted into the Army at Detroit today, underwent a hard day as he moved through the Selective Service channels as an object of attention in every move he made. The curious gathered everywhere to see the lanky ball player who until yesterday was reputedly the game's highest salaried player.

Solemn and serious, the tanned Greenberg towered over other draftees in the induction group of 300 as he took the oath of allegiance and was pronounced a soldier at 9:50 a. m. (E. S. T.) by Capt. C. C. Curtis, jr., of Grand Rapids, chief of the induction center.

Spent Time With Friends

Greenberg, the American League's most valuable player of 1940, was granted permission to spend several hours with friends before leaving for camp. Meanwhile, distracted induction officers got things back to normal. There wasn't much accomplished, they admitted, while the Tiger home run hitter was on the premises.

It was an unusually long day for one accustomed to completing his daily chores in a few hours at the ball park. Hank was awake before 6 a. m., admitting to only an hour or two of sleep, and appeared half an hour later bith Billy Sullivan, Tiger catcher, at draft headquarters.

Hudson Hurls Nats to Victory Over Detroit

The Nats did nobly by Hudson, particularly Roger Cramer, who bashed out three hits and made a wonder-catch in centerfield to stifle a Tiger uprising in the seventh. They threw up a brilliant defense behind their young pitcher. Jimmy Bloodworth and Cecil Travis each started a side-killing double play when Hudson lacked control in the first two innings, and in the sixth, George Case made the best throw of his life to cut off a Detroit run at the plate. Mickey Vernon sealed Hudson's triumph with a one-handed stab of a ball off Campbell's bat for the concluding put-out.

Hudson started to get tough all of a sudden in the second inning. He walked York and Gehringer with none out and was in deep trouble, but he braced to the extent of shoving a third strike past the dangerous Bruce Campbell, author of two home runs the day before, and then caused Higgins to ground into a double play.

Cecil Travis Singles

Cecil Travis put the Nats' first run in motion when he dumped a single into left field with one out in the fourth. Jimmy Bloodworth banged an important single to right that moved Travis to third, and he scored when the Tigers were unable to turn Chapman's grounder into a double play.

It was with two out in the fifth that the Nats staged their big inning with three successive hits against Rowe. George Case smashed a single over Higgins' head, and on the hit and run play, Roger Chamer banged the perfect double off the right field screen, Case scoring from first after being under way on the pitch. The Nats got a second run in the inning after a tragic sequence for the Tigers. On Vernon's high pop foul Catcher Birdie Tebbetts stood flatfooted while Third Baseman Frank Higgins chased the wind-blown ball almost back to the plate but was unable to catch up with it. The ball was uncaught, and on the next pitch Vernon singled to center to score Cramer.

The Tigers didn't make a hit off Hudson until one was out in the fifth, but it eventuated as their first run. It was a triple to left center by Campbell, who scored when Higgins followed with a double to left. Hudson restricted the damage to one run, however, when Tebbetts and Pinchhitter Mullin grounded out to Travis.

Case's Throw Nips Croucher

Hudson was in trouble in the eighth when Croucher led off with a single to right. He struck out Harris, but Croucher raced to second when the ball got away from Ferrell. Croucher reached third when McCosky bounced a single off Lewis' shins. York raised a high fly to Case and the Tigers' threat ended when Case's superb throw to Ferrell nipped Croucher at the plate for a double play.

259 Trackmen Meet Saturday In Lexington

By the Associated Press

Lexington, Va., May 7.—One of the fastest Virginia "Big Six" college track meets in years has been forecast for Washington and Lee's Wilson Field Saturday when 259 varsity and freshman competitors gather for the title battle.

With several existing State records expected to go by the boards, a strong field representing Virginia, the defending champions, William and Mary, Richmond, Virginia Tech, V. M. I. and W. & L. has collectively bettered several times and distances in dual meet activity this season.

There is an excellent chance for new records being set in the pole vault and perhaps other field events, but as usual most of the glamour is expected to be provided by the speedsters on the cinder paths.

The half-mile, the mile and the two-mile, as well as the 100-yard dash marks may all be bettered, with perhaps the aid of a fast track and better-than-average "pushing" in the competition. In addition, Virginia's Tom Todd has driven across both high and low hurdles in dual meet affairs this spring in times which, if equaled again here Saturday, will make both existing marks ready for burial.

U. of Va. Holds Records

Both hurdle records are held by Cavalier trackmen. Frank Fuller clipped two-tenths of a second off the highs last year to set a 14.6 mark for his predecessors to drive for. Todd has done 14.5 already this spring and is a potent contender for low hurdle honors. The record is 24.5, set by Virginia's Everett in 1934.

Jimmy Dale, of V. M. I., who recently nosed ahead of Virginia's Beverley Tucker in the two-mile event, probably will be pushed hard by Tucker Saturday, which may make for a new record in that event. The existing time of 9:52.6 was set by Dick Dunja, of W. and L., in 1935. Tucker has covered the distance in 9:56 this season.

Redbirds Still Leading N. L. Race

Warneke Weakens In 8th Inning; Southworth Shifts Four Pitchers

By the Associated Press

Brooklyn, May 7.—A burlesque ending to one of the season's tensest baseball dramas brought the Brooklyn Dodgers a 4-to-3 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals today in the first clash of a two-game series between the titans of the National League.

The Redbirds, who won 11 games in a row before dropping a decision at Boston yesterday, remained in first place by a small percentage although the Dodgers advanced half a game in front in games won and lost.

The Cardinals had charge of the game, 3 to 1, going into the last half of the eighth. Then lean Lon Warneke, who had given only three hits previously, suddenly weakened in the face of the determined Dodgers and Manager Billy Southworth tried to win by manipulating his pitchers in the manner made famous by his predecessor, Ray Blades. In the short span of the eighth and ninth innings he cleared out his bullpen by making four shifts for six batters.

Reese and Herman Single

The trouble started when Peewee Reese and Bill Herman hit successive singles with one out. Lefty Clyde Shoun came in to pitch to the left-handed hitting Reiser and gave a single for a run. Right-Hander Ira Hutchinson then was called to face right-handed hitting Joe Medwick and forced him into a double play on the first pitch.

Hutchinson was left in at the start of the ninth and walked the first man. Lefty Max Lanier walked the second man, Dolph Camilli. Dixie Walker bunted and Lanier tried to cut off the runner at third, but was late and the bases were loaded with none out.

Even then the Redbirds almost escaped. Pinch Hitter Paul Waner flied to Terry Moore in short center and Moore made a great throw to the plate to catch Camilli in a double play. But Reese came through with a sharp single to left for the winning run.

Harvard Square Triumphs in Jamaica's Race Feature

Only 3 Run In 6-Furlong Sarazen Race

Air Brigade, 1-2 Favorite, Is 2d; St. Peter Trails; 10,460 See Card

By the Associated Press

Jamaica Race Track, N. Y., May 7.—After three straight favorites had failed to finish in the money, the somewhat dazed talent installed Mrs. Ethel D. Jacobs' recent handicap winner, Air Brigade, a 1-to-2 shot in the Sarazen Purse, fourth and featured contest of today's program. Only three horses competed in the 6-furlong test for 3-year-olds. Air Brigade, despite Bazil James' whiplashing, chased Arnold Hanger's Harvard Square all the way, taking a four-length beating.

St. Peter, a French importation from R. Sterling Clark's barn, was the only other starter. The colt, on exhibition here for the first time, showed no speed and trailed Air Brigade by 15 lengths. Harvard Square, whose 1941 debut earlier in the meeting saw him fourth in the Wood Memorial Stakes, made the flashy time of 1:11 1-5 over a track that had dried out fast. He paid $5.50 for $2.

Harvard Square is engaged in Belmont's Toboggan, Roseben and Swift. His scintillating score today indicates he may prove a tough nut for any horse to crack in future fixtures. He is weighted at a mere 109 pounds in the 6-furlong Toboggan. The Bostonian gelding ran some smart races as a 2-year-old, and was rated not far behind the cream of the crop.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—STAR COPY, $25.90, $5.50, $3.90; PRETTY LADY, $2.80, $2.50; CAN TREAT, $4.80.

STAR COPY swung around the outside of the leaders to take command in the opening furlong and drew clear gradually. PRETTY LADY was off in the first flight, was hard ridden and had no excuses. CAN TREAT raced wide and closed with good energy to show a fine effort. SHEMITE made up ground in the closing stages.

SECOND RACE—One mile and 70 yards. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 2:52½. Off at 2:53. Winner, Mrs. H. W. Boyle's br. c. (3), by Bostonian—Jane Williamson. Trained by I. K. Mourar. Value to winner, $700. Time, 1:47⅗.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—BIG JACK, $7.50, $3.90, $3.20; TANTRUM, $3.20, $2.50; MISTY MEADOW, $4.80.

BIG JACK saved ground from the start, came through on the inside to dispose of the leaders and won easily. TANTRUM forged to the front early, shook off EXIT MARCH after a half, withstood challenges of MISTY MEADOW, but was no match for the winner. MISTY MEADOW went to serious contention on the outside, took a slight lead in midstretch and then faltered. PENNY ARCADE closed with a strong rush after being outrun.

Daily Double—STAR COPY and BIG JACK Paid $74.10.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—DUNDRILLIN, $3.60, $2.60, $2.60; FATTY, $2.70, $3.10; BIG SEVERN, $5.10.

DUNDRILLIN took command when asked, disposed of FATTY and drew out to win handily. FATTY was in the first flight from the start, jumped poorly at the twelfth fence and had to be roused to hold place safe from BIG SEVERN. The latter was well placed throughout and showed a good effort. BRIAR BLUE gained ground in the closing stages after landing badly at the eleventh.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—SILVER ROCKET, $7.00, $2.90, $2.30; BUKHARRA II, $2.70, $2.20; LAUDERKIN, $2.60.

SILVER ROCKET came out for racing room, disposed of BUKHARRA II and won going away. BUKHARRA II outran the field early, weakened gradually in the final quarter and was not persevered with when beaten. LAUDERKIN moved up menacingly approaching the stretch and then tired. WAR SHADOW held a forward position early under hustling tactics.

FIFTH RACE—Six furlongs (chute). Purse, $1,300. Handicap. For 3-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 4:27. Off at 4:27. Winner, G. C. Greer's blk. c. (3), by Bostonian—Little Lie. Trained by R. B. Archer. Value to winner, $950. Time, 1:12⅗.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CAPE COD, $4.90, $2.60, $2.20; COERCION, $3.10, $2.60; BARRYMORE, $2.60.

CAPE COD took command entering the stretch and drew out to win easily. COERCION had keen speed to take a clear lead early, could not resist the winner, but held on willingly. BARRYMORE was hard ridden and had no excuses. ESCOLAR closed some ground.

SIXTH RACE—One and three-sixteenths miles. Purse, $20,000 added. The Dixie Handicap. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 5:04. Off at 5:04½. Winner, Woodvale Farm's dk. b. c. (4), by The Porter—False Modesty. Trained by S. Judge. Net value to winner, $19,850. Time, 1:58⅗.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—HALTAL, $17.10, $4.50, $3.60; MIOLAND, $2.90, $2.50; DIT, $4.50.

HALTAL, steadied going to the first turn while in the first flight, came through in close quarters at the far turn, wore down DIT under vigorous handling and held MIOLAND safe right at the close. MIOLAND had a rough trip. He was off in a tangle, bumped with YOUR GRACE at the first turn, improved his position approaching the stretch, came to the inside in the final drive and hung right at the close. DIT forced the early pace of HONEY CLOUD, took command nearing the half pole, withstood bids of YOUR CHANCE approaching the stretch and weakened suddenly inside the sixteenth pole. CORYDON, outrun in the early stages, worked his way to contention on the outside and closed with good energy. VISCOUNTY rallied mildly after going evenly. SHOT PUT was held safe. YOUR CHANCE, slow to begin, was hard rushed early, bumped with MIOLAND at the first turn, went wide while reaching contention boldly and stopped suddenly. SAGUENAY II saved ground while racing in the first flight, but weakened gradually after a half. HONEY CLOUD set the early pace, almost fell and was pulled up.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place driving. Went to post at 5:31½. Off at 5:33. Winner, Mrs. D. B. Miller's ch. g. (9), by Diadochos—Malapata. Trained by B. Austin. Value to winner, $700. Time, 1:55⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MALANO, $75.80, $22.10, $19.30; ELAMP, $13.30, $8.40; ROCKY MEADOW, $9.10.

MALANO came wide to improve his position on the backstretch, came around the leaders to take command and drew out to win easily. ELAMP dropped back during the opening half, came between horses to better his position and closed with a bold rush on the outside. ROCKY MEADOW was well placed from the start, took command leaving the backstretch and held on gamely although no match for the winner. LITTLE PERCY closed a gap.

EIGHTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place same. Went to post at 6:01. Off at 6:02½. Winner, H. Neusteter's b. g. (5), by Sun Meadow—Irish Morn. Trained by H. Heustetler. Value to winner, $700. Time, 1:54⅘.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—MEADOW MORN, $10.80, $5.50, $3.80; GRAND DUKE, $12.60, $9.00; CHERRY'S CHILD, $5.00.

MEADOW MORN was close from the start, came to the outside when straightened out in the stretch and drew clear under a hard drive. GRAND DUKE had speed to take command at the start and held on gamely. CHERRY'S CHILD was in close quarters at the first turn and closed willingly. LOVE MARK ran an even race.

Selections at Pimlico.

Dear Al:

A few months make a whale of a difference sometimes. For instance, last fall at the Laurel meeting, the horse Crius was found to have been stimulated after he won a race in the colors of Walter Susini. George Hamilton, who trained Crius was promptly suspended. H. G. Bedwell, whose Ace Call finished second claimed the purse. Now the shoe is on the other foot. By a strange coincidence. Bedwell was suspended after his Ginoca was found to have been stimulated in that Havre de Grace race and Trysak finished second while racing for this same Susini. Now Susini is claiming the purse won by Ginoca. Although I would rather write about Saturday's Preakness and the opening of Charles Town on Monday or some other pleasant subject, I'm going to devote the remainder of this to the Bedwell case. The drug or chemical used on Ginoca, was benzedrene, according to the chemist who examined the saliva. This was put in the horse's nose. Bedwell denied that he used this or any other drug on the horse. At any rate, benzedrene is regarded as a stimulant when administered to humans. The racing commission has another stimulating case on its hands. Trainer C. E. Durnell has been suspended pending an investigation and the horse in this case is Cleveland Putnam's Swain which won by a nose with Johnny Gilbert riding, also at Havre de Grace. Swain, incidentally ran last in the Kentucky Derby and was saddled by Bill Winfrey. I don't say Bedwell is guilty and I don't say Durnell is guilty but I do say that a 60-day suspension if onl for carelessness is a joke. See you on the rail. BILL.

First race—BERSERK showed good speed in the early stages of that last and may go on today despite high weight. EASTER RABBIT is better suited at this sprint route. MISTASSINI was a fair sort last year.

Second race—GARDEN GAL finds a route that is O. K. and needs only a ride to turn back these. The entry of LER-LIN and BAR SHIP is formidable. The last named closed like the wind recently. BUCKETS would improve with a change of pilots.

Third race—SHE DAST passed up a race yesterday for this and looks like the goods. FRESH START is a Vanderbilt juvenile with plenty of speed. VERY GRACEFUL was second at Bowie.

Fourth race—IRISH MOON probably will put on the stretch push and take this test. BLACK GROUSE and STURDY DUKE to take care of the others.

Fifth race—The Tartiere entry of LIGHT OF MORN and BELLE D'AMOUR seems to have a lock and key on this. Either can take it. SWYNSTAN is at tops and is dangerous. HIGHANLOW is from the Headley barn.

Sixth race—SASSY LADY won in fast time here. She totes 122 pounds, but is best. NASCA has worked well and is dangerous. OASIS is favored by feather weight.

Seventh race—JONGLEUR won like a real good horse recently and is the natural choice in this field. PORT ALIBI was second in fast company. HAPPY HUNTING for the show end.

Eighth race—INTERLACE gets the call in the day's finale. PREDICATE won a sprint and should like this route. HYPOCRITE is as good as those ailing legs.

ENJOY
—it's Price!

IN THE BOTTLE: An unusually smooth, fine flavored whiskey—the kind preferred by those who know whiskies.

BEHIND IT: An old name that has always meant quality—The Fleischmann Distilling Corporation.

FULL 90 PROOF

The straight whiskies in this product are four years or more old; thirty per cent straight whiskies, seventy per cent grain neutral spirits.

Mrs. Chandler Heads South Golfers

Memphis, Tenn., May 7 (AP).—Mrs. Dan Chandler, of Dallas, Tex., was elected president of the Southern Women's Golf Association today, and Sea Island, Ga., was chosen for the 1942 tournament.

Mrs. Chandler succeeds Mrs. George Thompson, jr., of Fort Worth, Tex. Other officers elected were Jane Cothran, of Greenville, S. C., vice president; Mrs. Estelle Lawson Page, of Chapel Hill, N. C., treasurer, and Mrs. David Roberts, of Birmingham, Ala., secretary.

Ted Williams Beats Chisox For Boston, 4-3

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 7.—Ted Williams hit two homers today, his second coming in the eleventh inning to give Boston's Red Sox a 4-to-3 victory over the Chicago White Sox and boost Boston into third place in the American League.

The defeat, fourth in a row for the White Sox, dropped them to fifth place behind Detroit, but there still was some cheer in the Chicago camp.

West's Single Downs Pirates For Braves, 7-6

By International News Service

Boston, May 7.—A longe single by Max West with the bases loaded and two out in the ninth today gave the Boston Braves a 7-to-6 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Leader of the Braves' attack was the veteran John Cooney, who belted three doubles and a pair of singles in five times up.

The game was heatedly contested from the outset, and before the ninth finally was concluded both Manager Frankie Frisch, of the Pirates, and Manager Casey Stengel, of the Braves, had been ordered from the field by the umpires.

The winning rally was sparked by Jim Tobin, who allowed 10 hits in pitching the victory. With one out in the ninth he singled to left. Rowell flied out, and Cooney made his fifth hit, a double, that moved Tobin to third. Gene Moore was purposely passed and West then connected for the game winning hit, which accounted for his fourth run batted in during the day.

'Hank' Greenberg Goes Into Army

Dressed in a light gray suit and carrying a calfskin overnight bag, he received shouted farewells from all who recognized him along the way.

A Friendly Goodby

It was a friendly goodby, Hank thought, and once he wondered aloud, "Where are all those guys this morning who boo me at the ball park?"

At the induction center Hank was No. 46 of his group to go before Army medical examiners.

It was announced that Greenberg's feet, pronounced by a Florida examiner as too flat for military duty, were flat, all right, but to a minor degree. Lieut. Carl J. Sprunk, chief examiner, said, "We consider them satisfactory for Army service."

Through it all, Greenberg did not seem to be dissipirited, but it was evident that his thoughts on induction day were on Briggs Stadium, where for eight years he has earned his livelihood by belting baseballs out of the park.

Cubs Triumph Over Phils, 11-2, As Lee Stars

By the Associated Press

Philadelphia, May 7.—Big Bill Lee pitched and batted the Chicago Cubs out of the National League cellar today at the expense of Philadelphia. He limited the Phils to five hits, and garnered two home runs himself while his teammates blasted four hurlers for an 11-2 victory.

A ladies day crowd of 3,517 saw Lee gain his initial victory of the season. It was the Cubs' first triumph in five games and by virtue of it, they pushed the Phils back into last place.

The 'Schnozzle' Homers, Reds Beat Giants, 1-0

By the Associated Press

New York, May 7.—Ernie Lombardi hit his second home run in two days in the second inning today to decide an airtight pitching battle between Bucky Walters and Hal Schumacher and give the Cincinnati Reds a 1-to-0 triumph over the New York Giants.

Schumacher gave only five hits and walked just two batters, while Walters, in achieving his fourth straight victory after one defeat, allowed seven safeties and walked five. Twice the Giants got two hits in one inning without scoring, but Schumacher never gave the Reds more than one hit in a chapter.

Both pitchers received spectacular support and Shortstop Eddie Joost of the World Champions tied the major League record for fielding chances by accepting 19. There were seven double plays, four by the Reds 1 nthe first four innings, and the entire game was reeled off in an hour and 40 minutes.

Haltal Captures $20,000 Dixie Handicap

Haltal, shipped here for the race, had Jockey Conn McCreary in the saddle, and the little fellow proved a big factor in the victory which added $19.50 to the 4-year-old's earnings. McCreary and his hard-running mount were equal to the trouble encountered, and they were doing an "all-out" job at the end of the mile and three sixteenths.

"Howard Luck," much discussed in racing circles of late, failed him in the Dixie. Mioland was in a tangle soon after the start, and was bumed at the first turn, was forced to "bull" his way to contention and then hung at the end. Jockey Leon Haas was in Mioland's saddle and he was just a victim of poor racing luck. Haltal was getting 19 pounds from the West Coast ace and this was enough to give him the victory as the race was run.

As expected, Mioland was the favorite in the field of 11 and Haltal was a $17.10 shot. His victory was loudly cheered, indicating that the $2 betters were clinging to McCreary's fine riding.

The winner was clocked in 1:58 2-5 for the Preakness route, the same as the time of Calumet Dick in 1937 and a fifth under that of Honey Cloud last year.

Mioland was off in fifth position as the speed horses cut loose in an effort to get a clear lead going to the first turn. Haas steadied Mioland when he was in close quarters, but at the clubhouse bend, Mioland collided with Your Chance. In the meanwhile, Honey Cloud and Dit were battling for the lead with Saguenay II running third and Haltal fourth.

McCreary booted Haltal as if his life depended on the outcome, Mioland cut down the advantage to a half, then a neck and hen a head. Mioland was through gaining. He did not lose any but he had definitely hung as Haltal reached the wire.

On the Line . . .

on the typewriter. "I might'a hurt him if it had gone longer," Joe said in his slightly grisly matter-of-fact way after the fight.

More often than not when a fighter gets mad he cannot fight. At least he cannot fight well. He loses the coordination that makes him outstanding. The night Billy Conn fought Fred Apostoli for the second time, and they suddenly lost their tempers in the midst of a savage exchange, Conn was so sick with a quick boiling of hate that he dropped his fists and couldn't fight. Neither could Fred. They had to cool off before they could go back to the dispassionate business of belting out each other's brains.

Ken Credits Bride

It might interest the laity to know that Overlin thinks that marriage has helped him. That is, remarriage. Ken was married in a Norfolk ring once, amid a shower of dimes and quarters. He fought his best man that night, then, apparently, began fighting the old lady. Anyway, it broke up after a while and the gob went back into circulation.

Now he has remarried, this time for keeps. His bride of four months drove all the way from Decatur, Ill., Ken's home town, to New York the other day, for the fight. Greater love hath no woman. Ken, in his more mellow moments, feels sorry for the bachelor state of his opponent (though Soose seems to be getting by rather nicely) but not sorry enough, he says, to restrain him from trying to deposit him into Mr. Moss' lap to climax the fight.

P. S. Open letter to Mike Jacobs. Dear Mike:
You've made much of the fact that Private Bummy Davis, the war hero, will be the star of a Polo Grounds show for the benefit of the Army Relief Fund. The fight will draw about 25,000—which will leave about 40,000 empty seats in the ballyard. Why not admit the draftees of Camp Dix, Fort Jay, etc., etc., for half price, and fill the joint?

ALL-WELDED SHIP—The African Comet, shown in a designer's sketch, will be launched in June at Pascagoula, Miss., as the first all-welded passenger ship. It's for American-African trade.

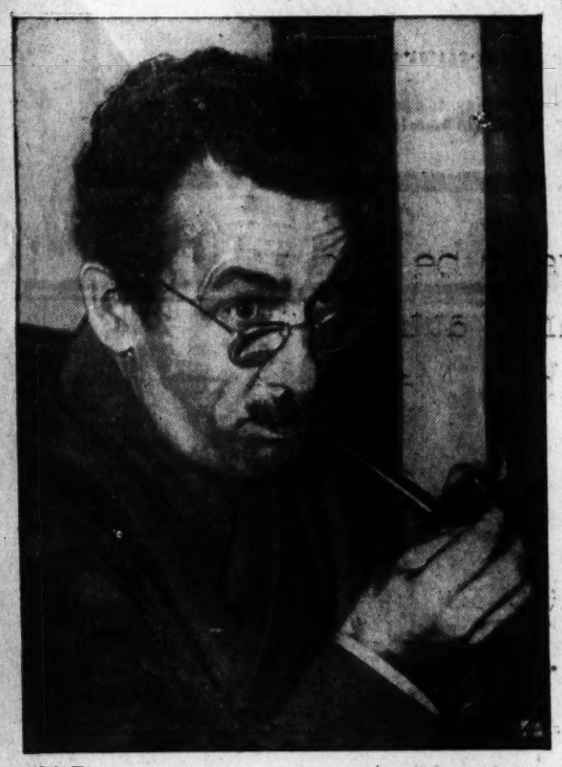

BOTH NIGHT AND DAY—During the short winter days when the sun hangs close to the horizon and an arctic haze dims the air, street lights must burn throughout the day at Fairbanks, Alaska (above), the town which would be one terminus of a road to be built from Seattle, Wash., if legislation now before Congress is passed. Juneau is the capital of Alaska.

TENOR OF HIS WAYS—Three non-operatic fishermen join with Frederick Jagel (white cap), Metropolitan opera tenor, to celebrate musically his designation as captain of a Grand Banks fishing schooner, Mary, by the N.Y. Fishery council.

OUT—Thomas Benton (above), noted Ozarks painter, has lost his job as a department head of the Kansas City Art Institute. Recently he labeled museums "graveyards of art run by pretty boys with delicate wrists and a swing in their gait."

Synthetic Rubber, Defense Ace in the Hole

The rubber of past decades has come a long way—from the East Indies, Africa, South America. When war has invaded shipping lanes, supplies have been threatened. Today American rubber men say they can produce a suitable synthetic rubber from our own resources. Here is how it is manufactured:

1. Synthetic rubber plantation. Coal, limestone, salt and petroleum are ingredients of this newly developed commodity

3. No, it's not licorice—still synthetic rubber. The tubing machine removes impurities, prepares product for rolling

Sub-surface hardness is measured before final fabrication

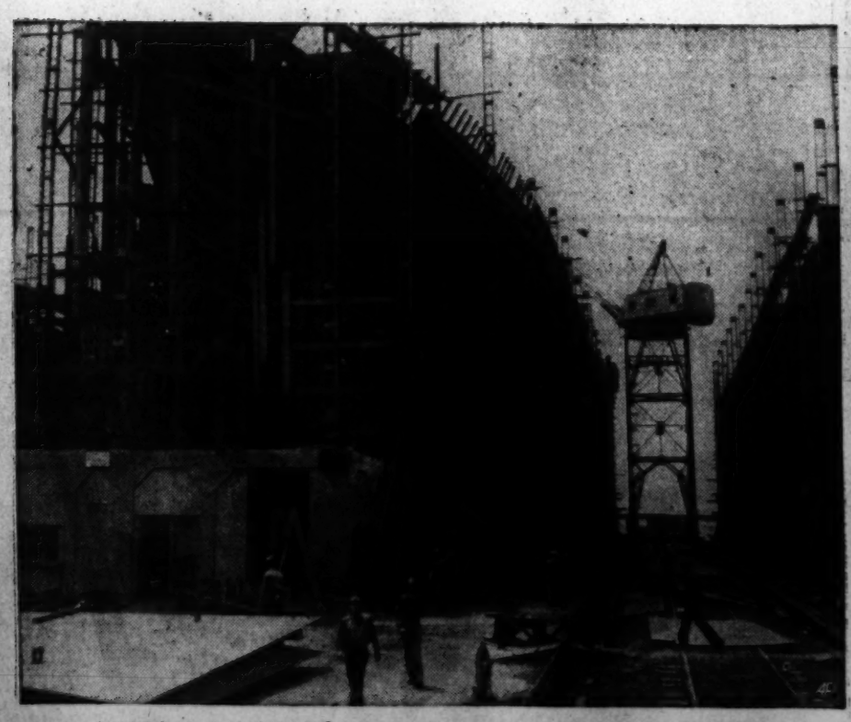

And presto! We have spinning loom rollers all finished

IDEAS IN CLAY—Alois Lang of Grand Rapids, Mich., works out his ideas for an original woodcarving with clay. He finds clay more convenient for developing ideas, but turns to wood for final work.

U.S. SHIPS A-BUILDING—Here's a view of the Ingalls shipyards at Pascagoula, Miss., where men are at work on a $50,000,000 contract with the U.S. maritime commission for construction of 12 all-welded ships. They're intended for American-African trade and will make the New York-to-Capetown trip in 16½ days. First ship of group is the $4,000,000 African Comet.

POLITENESS PAYS—That eloquent "please" along with this contraption made of some gloved waterpipe and the effigy of a man persuaded Clarence Duet (above) not to park in this space—used for freight loading—near a New Orleans store.

Here's how you can rent your property—

1. Government workers–and there are 179,000 of them in Washington now–get 26 days annual leave with pay. They have the time to take the family away for a month or to leave the family at the beach for the summer and use their vacation in long weekends.

2. Washington is a prosperous city. Recent figures show that the average income here is $1,179–greatest in America! Today Washington is even better off than before. You will find in the Nation's Capital more of the people who can afford to buy or rent a summer home.

3. Washingtonians do not have to be sold on the idea of spending the summer at the shore . . . they already have the habit. Many take resort properties for the whole summer. Get them to come YOUR way!

Yes, Washington is the place to find prospects for all kinds of property.

C. J. Bergmann Named Head of Building Ass'n

Election of Carl J. Bergmann as president of the Washington Permanent Building Association was announced last night following a meeting of the board of directors. Mr. Bergmann, treasurer of the group, fills the office left vacant by the recent death of Eckert J. Sacks.

Mr. Bergmann has been associated with the institution since 1904 and is widely known in local financial circles. He is a director of the United States Savings and Loan League and president of the American Fire Insurance Co. of the District of Columbia. For many years he has served as treasurer of Washington Permanent and pending the selection of an officer for that post he will continue to act in that capacity.

All other officers and directors were reelected. William L. Moore, native of Washington and prominent real estate man, was added to the board. Reelected officers are John Henderson, vice president, and Hermann H. Bergmann, secretary. In addition to the officers, directors are: John H. Clipper, C. Rammling, James R. Ellis, Walter B. Avery, Clyde H. Miller, Wax Walten, Joseph N. Saunders and Mr. Moore.

Secretary H. H. Bergmann reported last year's business was one of the best in its 60-year history. He added that total resources now exceed $10,750,000. The association's offices are at 629 F Street Northwest.

Washington Permanent, founded in 1881, is a member of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, the District of Columbia Building and Loan League, the United States Savings and Loan League and the American Svings and Loan Institute.

S. N. Shaw Promoted

Stanley N. Shaw was elected vice president of Standard & Poor's Corporation at a meeting of the board of directors. For 18 years Mr. Shaw was editor of various business and investment advisory services of Standard Statistics Co., Inc., and, in his new capacity, will be in charge of certain sales activities. Prior to 1923, Mr. Shaw was for several years in the economics department of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York.

Advertising Gains 5.9 Per Cent

During the week ended April 26, retail display advertising in newspapers of 83 cities totaled 22,104,141 lines, Advertising Age reports, for an increase of 5.9 per cent over the comparable week of 1940, when 20,-876,399 lines were carried.

For the 17-week period since the beginning of the year, newspapers in the 83 measured markets have printed a total of 338,155,860 lines of retail display advertising, compared with 326,584,482 lines during the corresponding 17 weeks of 1940. This is an increase of 3.5 per cent.

Business Notes

The Census Bureau says 579 leading manufacturers of paint, varnish, lacquers and fillers boosted their sales in the first quarter of 1941 to $104,487,759, compared with $83,570,-541 in the similar period last year.

Reports from 344 retail establishments showed first quarter's sales of $38,732,200, compared with $32,882,-440 last year.

The Commerce Department has called a conference in Washington June 3 to 6 for officials and manufacturers concerned with weighing and measuring apparatus to discuss standards and other problems of the industry.

The Census Bureau reports March production of uniform garments included 1115,935 wool pants, 456,256 cotton pants, 67,170 wool coats and no overcoats. Febuary figures were 348,063 wool pants, 204,613 cotton pants, 58,645 wool coats and 6,309 overcoats.

Rising Prices In Furniture Marts Noted

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 7.—Buyers attending the midseason markets of the home furnishing industry in unprecedented numbers this week are discovering war echoes in the form of rising prices, increased use of synthetic materials and a tightening of credit terms.

Plastics in many forms have replaced metals, woods and other materials. Glass and mirrors are being used in increasing quantities, in wood.

Many of the pieces being shown at the Merchandise Mart and the American Furniture Mart are finished with synthetic lacquer, another result of the war and defense program. The ne wlacquer replaces those in which nitro cellulose, used in making munitions, is an important ingredient.

Because of anticipated raw material and labor shortages under the armament program, rising prices and increasing demand for goods occasioned by rising employment and building activity, many buyers were discontinuing short-order buying and seeking to place orders which normally would be written during the July market.

More sales were reported written at the Furniture Mart on the opening day this week thon during the one-week show of May, 1940. There were 1,755 buyers—a record-breaking number—registered Monday.

The Merchandise Mart reported an attendance of 1,078 buyers the first two days, also a record, and that salees were 67 per cent ahead of 1940.

Compared with 1940, prices at the to 10 per cent; at the Merchandise Furniture Mart were reported up 5 Mart, 5 to 8 per cent, with a greater price acceleration on the cheaper goods.

Rayon Output Sets New High in Period

New York, May 7 (AP).—Rayon Organon, publication of the Textile Economics Bureau, Inc., reported today output of both rayon yarn and rayon staple fiber by United States mills set a new record in the first quarter of 1941 with the trend "definitely upward."

It said rayon yarn production for the quarter was 106,200,000 pounds, exceeding the previous record of 103,700,000 pounds in the fourth quarter of 1940 by 3 per cent, and the first 1940 quarter figure of 95,-800,000 pounds by 11 per cent.

Tokyo Stocks Slump On Stimson's Speech

Tokyo, May 7 (AP).—A drop in iron, steel, munitions and shipping isues on the Tokyo Stock Exchange today was attributed to United States War Secretary Henry L. Stimson's call for convoy duty by American warships. Cotton wheat and rubber were not affected.

The Agriculture Department yesterday increased its subsidy rate from $1.05 to $1.35 per barrel on flour exported from all U. S. ports to other countries in North and South America.

Two Idle Blast Furnaces Bought By Koppers Firm

Pittsburgh, May 7 (AP).—Koppers United Co. tonight announced it has purchased two idle blast furnaces and two batteries of coke ovens from the Granite City Pig Iron Co., Granite City, Ill. The purchase price was not disclosed.

The blast furnaces, of 500 and 600 ton capacities, have been closed down since 1932. The two coke plant batteries, with 80 ovens, have been idle since 1935.

Koppers United officials said the plant would be reconditioned and the first furnace would be ready for production not later than July. It will add 200,000 tons of pig iron a year to the Nation's capacity, a sum exceeding the 189,514-ton deficit of pig iron production which the Office of Production Management reported existed if mills run on a basis of 102½ per cent of normal rating.

Freight Records Set On Ohio Valley Rivers

Pittsburgh, May 7 (AP).—All tonnage records for freight handled on the Alleghany, Monongahela and Ohio Rivers were broken in 1940, the United States Engineers Office here disclosed today.

Records for the Monongahela and Ohio Rivers considered separately also were shattered last year, the engineers' figurs showed.

Total tonnoge on the three rivers, after eliminating duplication occurring when the same cargo moved from one river into another, was 35,644,204 tons, compared with 33,-741,106 tons in 1929, the previous record.

Decca Buys Stock Of Brunswick Radio

New York, May 7 (AP).—Jack Kapp, president of Decca Records, Inc., announced today his firm had purchased all the capital stock of Brunswick Radio Corporation from the parent company, Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc. The Brunswickr Radio Corporation owns plant properties at Dubuque, Iowa, and Muskegon, Mich.

S. J. Solomon Made Head of Airlines Firm

Special Dispatch to The Post

Boston, Mass., May 7.—Samuel J. Solomon, of Washington, was elected president of Northeast Airlines here today at a meeting of the board of directors. Paul F. Collins, of Winchester, Mass., resigned and was elected chairman of the board.

SOLOMON

Solomon, who will assume the presidency of Northeast Airlines immediately, has been connected with the line as vice president since it started operations as Boston-Maine Airways in 1933. He is also vice president of National Airport Corporation, and manager of the Washington Airport. He will continue in these capacities pending completion of the new Federal Airport at Washington.

Solomon, who will make his headquarters at the East Boston Airport, was born in Washington July 11, 1899. He was educated in Washington public schools and Central High School. He was about to start a four-year scholarship at Lafayette College when the war changed his plans. After the war he entered the service of the Treasury Department.

When he resigned in 1923 to enter the real estate and building business, he was head of a unit in the Liberty Loan Division of the Treasury.

He has been actively connected with aviation since August, 1933, when he and Mr. Collins and the late Amelia Earhart formed National Airways, Inc., to operate Boston-Maine Airways, the latter having been organized by the Boston & Maine Railroad and the Maine Central Railroad.

Power Output Up 14.6% in Week

New York, May 7 (AP).—Electric power output for the week ended May 3 topped by 14.6 per cent the figures for the comparable period last year, but was down slightly from the previous week, the Edison Electric Institute reported today.

Outturn was 2,734,460,000 kilowatt hours against 2,750,277,000 in the week ended April 26 and 2,386,210,-000 in the same period in 1940. The week-to-week decline was less than seasonally due and because of this the Associated Press power production index advanced to 141.2 from 141.0 the preceding week.

Mexico Studies U. S. Offer of Rail Loans

Mexico City, May 7 (AP).—Informed sources said today the Government-operated National Railways are studying three United States offers of a $40,000,000 loan for a large-scale improvement program.

Three well-known financial houses in the United States outlined terms for such a loan, these sources reported. The loan would enable the Government to rehabilitate the 9,000-mile system without reducing wages or dismissing any of its 50,000 employes, it was asserted.

Cash Butter Prices Hit 11-Year Seasonal High

Chicago, May 7 (AP).—Butter prices continued their upward surge on the local cash market today, once again moving to new 1941 tops and the highest levels for May in 11 years.

Cash butter gained ½ to ¾ cents, the 92-score quality selling at 34¾ cents a pound. November future contracts hit 36.25 cents a pound, highest for any delivery since 1930, and closed at 36.20 cents.

Hargrave Elected Eastman President

Rochester, N. Y., May 7 (AP).—Directors of Eastman Kodak Co. today elected Thomas J. Hargrave president, named Frank W. Lovejoy chairman of the board and advanced William G. Stuber to the newly created office of honorary chairman.

Hargrave previously had been vice president and secretary, Lovejoy president and general manager, and Stuber chairman.

New York, May 7 (AP).—The New York Stock Exchange announced today that the average market price of all bonds listed in the exchange as of April 30 was $943.20 per bond of $1,000 face value, compared with $937.30 a month earlier.

Carib Syndicate to Liquidate; Graphic Oil Chapter Closed

By the Associated Press

New York, May 7.—A special meeting of stockholders was called today to write "finis" to a picturesque chapter of international petroleum operations entitled "Carib Syndicate, Ltd."

The stockholders will meet May 27 to vote on a proposal for the complete liquidation of Carib Syndicate with its present assets of $840,835 in cash and $340,750 more in oil properties and other securities.

Time was when the whole world wondered just what the real assets of Carib Syndicate might be. Its own organizers were not sure. All they knew was that they held a concession to oil lands in the republic of Colombia—half a million acres of jungle known as the "Barco Concession."

Gen. Virgilio Barco, Colombian army, retired, had been given the property for services to his government. He discovered oil indications there in 1905.

But he needed capital. He came to New York in 1907—and was snubbed when he tried to tell his story to the late John D. Rockefeller, sr.

But other capitalists listened to him. A group, outside the oil industry, formed what they called Carib Syndicate, the name under which it was incorporated in 1915.

But the Barco concession was difficult and expensive to develop. The World War years dragged on, blocking action. The Carib Syndicate sold 75 per cent of its interest in the Barco property to H. L. Doherty in 1918, and an organization called Colombian Petroleum Co. was formed to develop the oil field. Then the Mellon interests of Pittsburgh bought out the Doherty interests.

Still no oil was brought to market from the property. The Colombian government canceled the concession. Long diplomatic negotiations and court trials intervened.

Finally, in 1937, the Colombian Petrolium Co. was purchased by Socony-Vacuum Oil Co. and Texas Co., jointly. The Barco concession at last is producing oil—via a pipeline reputed to have cost the present operators $40,000,000.

Schram Choice Seen Surprise. To Wall Street

By the Associated Press

New York, May 7.—Wall Streeters viewed with high hopes, but some uncertainty and confusion today, the surprise move of the New York Stock Exchange yesterday in selecting Emil Schram, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, as its new $48,000-a-year president.

Brokers said Schram was virtually a stranger to Wall Street, so they were uninformed as to his ideas or plans beyond his acceptance statement that he was taking the job on condition that the proposed administrative reorganization, providing for a small board of directors and increased responsibility for the administrative personnel, be accepted.

While the immediate reaction of Wall Streeters was that the move represented a drastic step to cut the Gordian knot of conflict and disagreement between Wall Street and Washington, sources close to the stock exchange said today that Schram was selected chiefly for his proven administrative abilities. One spokesman said, "We went out to find a first-rate administrator, and got one."

It was said in exchange quarters that it would be at least a month before Schram could take his new job, since his choice must be formally approved by the exchange's new board of governors taking office later this month, and he is continuing as head of the RFC and an assistant in the OPM organization until others can be found to take those posts.

Schram's selection, some pointed out, seemed to go counter to the recommendations of 34-year-old William McC. Martin, jr., who in his final report last March, in preparing to become a private in the United States Army, said the new executive should if possible be found right in the financial community. He said a "politician" would not be the type of man to solve the exchange's problems.

Nevertheless, there had been a strong movement among the exchange membership to obtain a leader who was at least persona grata in Washington. Friends of Martin said that at the beginning of his three years as president he got along well with the Securities and Exchange Commission, particularly with William O. Douglas, then chairman, but that differences multiplied as time went on, particularly after Jerome Frank became head of the SEC.

With Frank now retiring from the SEC to accept a Federal judgeship, some Wall Streeters expressed hope that changes in that Federal regulatory body would be of a nature to lead to a smooth working relationship with the exchange's new president.

Corporate Earnings

Bristol-Myers Co. and subsidiaries reported net income for the first quarter of 1941 of $861,490, equal to $1.29 a share, compared with $773,-031 or $1.13 a share for the like

W. B. Jarvis Co., automobile accessory manufacturers, reported net profit in the first 1941 quarter of $307,770, equal to $1.02 a share on its capital stock, compared with $219,144, or 73 cents a share, in the initial quarter of 1940.

Union Bag & Paper Co. reported for the quarter ended March 31 net profit of $560,59', equal to 44 cents a share on the common stock, compared with $516,931, or 41 cents a share, in the first quarter last year.

Illinois Plans Control Of Oil Production

Springfield, Ill., May 7 (AP).—An oil conservation bill which would create a three-member State commission with authority to regulate Illinois oil production—but not to limit the amount of petroleum pumped from existing wells—was introduced in the State Senate today with the backing of Gov. Dwight Green.

Sales of Fertilizer Up 9% in Period

The National Fertilizer Association reported yesterday that fertilizer sales in 17 southern and midwesten States, as measured by State tax tags, totaled 4,352,317 tons during the four-month period ending April 30.

This volume represented an increase, the association said, of about 9 per cent over sales in the corresponding period in 1939 and 1940.

Stock Advance Stalls on Profit Taking; Leaders Off Fractionally; Trade Shrinks

New York, May 7.—Traders took profits in today's stock market, stalling the all-'round rise which appeared to be getting under way in the previous session.

The close found many leaders off fractions, although the declines were reached in slow movements which at no time resembled the spirited trading flurries of yesterday's market.

The Associated Press average of 60 selected stocks slipped .1 of a point at 39.9. The turnover was 558,560 shares compared with 907,-940 yesterday.

Early operations bade fair to continue the upward trend. Overnight buying orders awaited the opening and gains ran to major fractions at once. However, a trickle of sell-offs ended the upturn and a series of small rallies in metals, steels, rails and motors failed to stem the downward trend.

Wall Street commentators cited the action as "technical," pointing out the lack of any real pressure on the downturn.

Among the shares which carried minus signs at the last were U. S. Steel, oungstown, Chrysler, Phelps Dodge, Owens-Illinois, Texas Corporation, Great Northern preferred, Pacific Gas and North American. The last two reached new 1941 lows. Included among advancers were Bethlehem, Air Reduction, Cerro de pasco, Montgomery Ward and U. S. Rubber.

Slipping in the Curb, where 79,-000 shares were exchanged compared with 129,000 yesterday, were American Gas, Humble Oil, Stroock Co. and United Gas. On the upside were Sherwin Williams, New Jersey Zinc and American Potash.

The bond market rested at slightly lower levels today with rails yielding more than half of Tuesday's sharp rise.

Profit taking in the wake of almost a week of rising prices was responsible for the sell-off, brokers said, adding that this sort of sentiment was aided somewhat by balky stocks and a tendency in investment quarters to go lightly on new commitments until the war situation at home and abroad clarified.

Sales of $9,780,500, par value, were considerably under the high volume of $14,590,600 yesterday when the general market, especially the rails, was in a rising mood. The Associated Press average of 20 rail bonds gave up .3 of a point at 66.2. The day before, the group reached a new 1941 high at 66.5.

In the backward group with declines up to a point were, among others, Southern Railway 4s at 64½, Southern Pacific 4½s at 55½, Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s at 30, Missouri Pacific 5s at 24½, Nickel Plate 4½s at 64½, Delaware & Hudson 4s at 56¼, Baltimore & Ohio convertibles of '60 at 19⅛ and Western Union 5s at 81⅝.

United States Governments followed the major trend downward but losses on both the stock exchange and over the counter were small and trading light.

Wheat Reaches $1 Peak; Corn At 4-Year Top

By the Associated Press

Chicago, May 7.—Dollar wheat returned to the Board of Trade today for the first time in a year.

A miller bought a load of No. 1 hard in the spot market at that price. In the futures pit May wheat soared as much as 2¼ cents to 98½, and, despite profit taking, held the advance until the close.

The 12 months peak established by wheat was accompanied by heavy professional and public buying of soy beans and lard but price gains in those commodities were not fully maintained. Early peaks of $1.29¼ for May beans and 9.9 cents a pound for October lard were the highest since late 1939 and early 1938 respectively. Corn rose a cent to above 70 cents, hignest since 1937.

Bullishness in grains was associated with Congressional plans to raise loan rates for new crops and inflation talk associated with the armament program and war. Selling that appeared in the wheat pit from time to time was encouraged partly by receipt of beneficial moisture in the soft winter wheat zone and possibility of some stored grain being released because of favorable prices.

Wheat closed 1⅛ to 2⅛ higher than yesterday, May, 98¼@98⅝; July, 96⅛@96¼; corn ⅝ to 1 up, May, 70½; July, 70½@70¾; oats unchanged to ⅜ up; soy beans, ⅛ to 2⅛ higher; rye ¾ lower to 4 higher and lard unchanged to 3 higher.

U.S. Agency Places Huge Food Orders For British Aid

The Agriculture Department yesterday purchased 24,625,055 pounds of lard and 41,379,796 pounds of por meat products for disposal under its British-aid and domestic relief programs.

The Department did not report prices paid for these products. This was the largest quantity of lard and por products bought by the Department since enactment of the lend-lease program under which food supplies as well as war materials are being made available to the British.

Other purchases, made for the same programs, included 16,860 bushels of apples, 3,696 boxes of oranges, 74 tons of grapefruit and 38 tons of carrots.

New York Cotton

New York, May 7 (AP).—Heavy profit-taking and hedge selling tripped the cotton futures market today after a notable run of steep advances. A resumption of active buying by trade and speculative interests put the list up as much as 17 to 22 points in the early trading. The new rise was the signal for a broad increase in selling, and final prices were 1 lower to 6 up.

The market's about-face was expedited by a tapering of business in cotton fabrics in Worth Street after several days of high volume. This coincided with Washington reports that Army needs for cotton textiles were on the decline as a result of heavy Government purchases in the recent past.

Listen!

with Glynn

When Davis Ross, narrator on WJSV's "Golden Treasury of Song," which each day features the tenor voice of Frank Parker, began asking listeners to write in requests for their favorite songs, he started something.

If the U. S. postal receipts don't show a marked increase for 1941, it won't be the fault of Parker-Ross, Inc. For something like 100 letters a day have been coming in since, asking that Parker sing everything from the latest song of the hour to tunes that were written when knighthood was in flower.

One "Golden Treasury" fan writes every week, in verse, presumably because Ross reads a poem on each program. She writes whether she has a song to request or not. Another lady, however, has hit on a more labor-saving device. Evidently not caring as much for letter writing, she incorporated all her song requests in one letter, asking for a mere 65, which is the record thus far.

The boys also hear regularly from self-appointed "listeners' clubs." The last letter they received from one such club was pretty triumphant. It seems the "listeners' club" had been formed in an office where the boss usually was out at that time. But he surprised the members one afternoon, coming in right in the middle of the program. There wasn't time to shut the thing off, and everybody was pretty apprehensive. But the boss liked the program so well he suggested the force listen every afternoon.

Tokyo Hears U. S. Will Close Panama Canal

By the United Press

Tokyo, May 7.—The usually well-informed newspaper Nichi Nichi said yesterday it had received a report that an Osaa shipping firm had been advised from San Francisco that the United States would close the Panama Canal within ten days.

Plans are to close the canal to all but limited traffic for an indefinite period, the newspaper said, adding that if the plan is carried out ten Japanese steamers remaining in waters east of Panama will be compelled to return to Japan via Capetown.

The newspaper Hochi published a similar report attributed to New York advices via Shanghai and added that the precautions were decided upon for fear of an attack by German submarines.

Closing of the canal to Japanese shipping would be a severe blow to Japanese steamship lines operating to the east coast of South America, it was pointed out.

By the United Press

Officials refused comment last night on reports published in Tokyo that the United States planned to close the Panama Canal within ten days.

Their attitude privately was that the reports did not merit comment or denial. It was recalled that similar reports have circulated in the past and have been shown erroneous by the passing of time, and that ranking officials have said it was vital that the canal be kept open.

British No Longer Dress for Dinner, E. P. Warner Finds

WARNER

That's what Edward P. Warner, vice chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, now in London as assistant to W. A. Harriman, special United States lend-lease representative, has written Mrs. Warner in letters recently received here.

"America is full of wives who want to come to London," he wrote in a letter mailed April 17 and received April 29.

Warner, an engineer, said that most of the buildings demolished in bombings were of masonry and especially of brick. He added he was living on the eighth floor of a solid steel frame and concrete building and said, "A structural collapse would be almost inconceivable."

Colonial Estate Sold

Leesburg, Va., May 7.—Greenway, the colonial estate owned by Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Knight, of New York, and situated near Leesburg, was sold this week to Mrs. E. S. Seigle, of New York. The place was formerly owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Miller, of Washington.

Army Air Corps Officers Will Study Spanish

All Army Air Corps officers soon will be studying the Spanish language, it was announced Tuesday by Howard O. Hunter, acting commissioner of Work Projects, as a gesture of Latin-American good will.

The WPA project has been approved by the President. The plan was worked out by Maj. Gen. H. H. Arnold, chief of the Army Air Corps, and representatives of the WPA adult education program.

"Air Corps officers will, perhaps," Gen. Arnold declared, "more than any other group be making contacts and developing friendly relations in Latin America."

Special texts are being prepared based on a vocabulary keyed to the particular needs of the Air Corps, Hunter said. This is being done by language specialists of the WPA adult education program.

Over Forty Group Hears Californian

Representative Jerry Voorhis (Democrat), of California, discussed his bill seeking elimination of age restrictions for Government workers at a rally of Americans Over Forty at the clubhouse, 1413 H Street Northwest.

Voorhis advocated the measure as a means of creating additional employment for persons of mature age. He said that with America "facing the greatest crisis" in industry in its history, the efforts of all its citizens, regardless of age, would be required to meet the crisis.

Buyers for Soviet Planning to Quit U. S., Court Is Told

New York, May 7 (AP).—Federal Court proceedings yesterday disclosed that approximately 100 Russian purchasing agents were planning to leave the United States immediately because they could obtain no export facilities for their purchases.

This was revealed when an attorney for Gaik Badalovich Ovakimian, arrested Tuesday on charges he had failed to register as a foreign operative until he was ready to leave the country, told the court that Ovakimian was an official purchasing agent.

After Judge Murray Hulbert denied a motion for bail reduction, $25,000 cash bail was posted for Ovakimian's release pending a further hearing next Tuesday. Attaches of the Soviet Consulate General brought the cash to the courthouse in bundles of $50 and $100 bills.

Referees Named For Conscientious Objection Cases

Washington Selective Service headquarters Tuesday announced the names of seven Capital registrants who will be inducted into the Army at Baltimore today. They are replacements for men who failed induction physical tests.

At the same time, Attorney General Jackson announced the appointment of hearing officers for conscientious objection cases in 24 Federal judicial districts, including Virginia and Maryland.

Samuel H. Williams, Lynchburg, Va., lawyer, was named hearing officer for the western part of the Old Dominion, while John H. Skeen, Baltimore attorney, was appointed hearing officer for Maryland.

Board 1—James E. Faircloth, Robert Ellerbe, Lewis B. Whitley.

VITAMIN B

NEURITIS

Repeated scientific tests have shown that vitamin B, is most beneficial in many conditions of neuritis, such as those due to anemia, pregnancy, pellagra and even chronic alcoholism and peripheral neuritis. But vitamin B_1 is only one factor of the vitamin B complex. Nuval-Aid, the important vitamin B remedy, contains not only a rich quantity of vitamin B_1 but vitamin G and the whole vitamin B complex as well. Vitamin B has done wonders for many cases of loss of appetite due to vitamin B deficiency and scientists everywhere agree that an abundant supply of vitamin B is an important factor in growth and good health. Get a FREE sample of Nuval-Aid today.
